THIRD VICTORY BY GIANTS, 4-3, ALL BUT PUTS YANKEES OUT OF RUNNING

American Leaguers' Play, After Flash of Hitting Power Nets Two Runs in First Inning of World's Series Contest, Is as Dismal as the Weather.

M'GRAW'S MEN SCORE FOUR TIMES IN FIFTH

Stupid Work Prevents Huggins' Players From Winning Out Later; Drenched Fans Real Heroes of the Day.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Drowned! That goes for the drenched bleacherites, as well as for the "Yankees'" World's Series hopes. Those loyal uncovered-seat heroes didn't deserve their fate, but the Huggins' men today went down for the third time at the Polo Grounds, fully meriting their defeat.

Incompetent on the bases, incapable of thinking quickly, inept in fielding and totally out of luck when the horseshoes were distributed, the American League representatives were submerged again by the "Giants", 4 to 3.

The Yankees' who opened the series overwhelming favorities, as a result of today's disaster are now all but out of the running for the title and for the major share of the rich prize to be distributed to the players.

Persons desiring to wager on the Yankees' hopes can write their own tickets here tonight.

The Giants still must win another victory to clinch their title; but, if the games played thus far are forerunners of what may be expected tomorrow, the series will end tomorrow afternoon, weather and ground conditions permitting.

Yankees' Fine Start.

Starting out as though they intended to batter pitcher Hugh McQuillan from the box and to make up for their previous hitting shortcomings, Huggins' men, by consistent hitting, gained a lead of two runs in the first innng. Then the slugging terrors faded to a whisper and the Giants caught and passed them with a four-run rally in the fifth inning, in which "horseshoes" and five hits resulted in four runs.

The Yankees came to life in the seventh, with Aaron Ward's home run, and again in the ninth inning; but, with a wonderful chance to win the game, they played in the pinch like a team of municipal leaguers, failing to score a run when amateurs would have counted two and won the game.

Alibis they have none, Outhit, outplayed, outgamed, outpitched and outwitted, they have no claim on the public's sympathy and only a faint excuse to offer for failure.

The only person who is entitled to Mr. Fan's sympathy is pitcher Carl Mays, who should have won his game, and would have done so had the Giants, instead of the Yankees, been behind him.

Giants Seize Opportunities.

The McGraw horde played with snap, fight and determination throughout, and took advantage of the few opportunities Mays and good fortune gave them, with alertness and the activity of a starved terrier. They had the "breaks" with them, but they also had the courage to force the opening which eventually won them the struggle.

No lone hero stood out down there in the field, but there were about 32,000 of them who sat during the two-hour rain, wet to the skin, but refusing to forego the spectacle. Several Yankees had chances to earn places in the hall of fame, but foozled them in the zero hour.

Perhaps the outstanding surprise was the showing of Hugh McQuillan, the Giants' pitcher, who, battered and buffeted in the first inning by the Yankees' clubbing, came back like a game bird and held the Yanks helpless to the ninth. There he weakened slightly; but his record was saved by the "dumb-bell" performances of the men opposed to him.

It was a day for ducks, not men. With the morning light, the mist

BUSH AND NEHF ARE EXPECTED TO PITCH IN TODAY'S CONTEST

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

ONLY, a forlorn hope remains to the New York "Yankees" in the world's baseball championship struggle. It demands that they win four victories in succession. One more victory for the "Giants" will end the series.

For tomorrow, if weather and ground conditions permit the playing of the contest, Joe Bush probably will pitch for the Yankees and Art Nehf unquestionably will pitch for the Giants.

This pair met in the opening game and both were taken out of the fray, Bush being punished much harder than Nehf.

The rotation of umpires will bring Klem behind the plate again, with the order the same as on the opening day.

ROBBER REPORTED KILLED, DEPUTY IS SHOT IN HOLDUP

Five Men Enter Road House When Three Deputy Constables Are There and Shooting and Chase Follow.

In a fight with five robbers who attempted to hold up the bartender and customers at Rose Inn, on the North and South road, one mile south of Clayton road, at 12:45 a. m. today, Deputy Constable George J. Roth was shot and seriously wounded and is believed to have killed one of the robbers and wounded another.

Three of the robbers escaped after a running pistol fight with Roth, who was wounded five times, and two other deputies. It was reported from Roth's home early today that his condition was critical.

George Niederberger, proprietor of the inn, said that Roth, Thomas Manion and Lee Yaden, Deputy Constables of Central Township, were standing at the bar when five men entered, four of whom drew revolvers and ordered those in the place to hold up their hands.

He said Roth drew his revolver and began firing, one of the robbers falling in his tracks. The other three armed men fired at the officers and seized their wounded companion and put him into an automobile, which they entered, driving north. Roth and Manion gave pursuit in another car, and Niederberger and Yaden, in a third car, all firing at the robbers' automobile.

The robbers turned west on Clayton road and skidded into the roadside ditch about 100 yards west of the intersection. Four of them left the car. Roth shot one of them down. The remaining three ran north through fields and escaped, Manion and the other pursuers pausing to attend Roth, who had fallen from hsl wounds.

THE MOSQUITO NOW PRESENTS HIS BILL

Drizzling rain yesterday brought a drop in temperature to a more seasonable level than St. Louis has experienced recently. The rainfall was only .03 of an inch from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. yesterday, but this was in addition to 1.03 inches, from 2 a. m. Friday to 7 a. m. yesterday, which was the heaviest rain since Sept. 10, when the fall was 2.02 inches. The maximum temperature Friday was reminiscent of summer, 88 degrees; the highest yesterday was 69 degrees, during the morning, and the mercury dropped steadily to the chilly point of 52 at 9 p. m. A rise is expected tomorrow, but the lowered temperatnure probably had the effect of killing mosquitoes, which have been numerous of late.

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY MRS. TIERNAN; CRUELTY ALLEGED

Custody of the Three Children Asked by Notre Dame Professor's Wife in Her Suit.

HUSBAND TAKES FAMILY TO MICHIGAN

Couple, Despite Separation, Will Continue Fight to Have Poulin Declared Father of Third Child.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 7.—The parting of the ways was reached by Prof. John P. Tiernan and his wife, Augusta P. Tiernan, today when the couple separated and Mrs. Tiernan filed suit for divorce from the professor. She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment.

Mrs. Tiernan asks for the custody of the three children, Irene, 4; Mary, 3, and William, 10 months. The latter is the child which both Prof. and Mrs. Tiernan claimed was the offspring of Harry Poulin, who is not mentioned in the divorce complaint.

The suit which was filed at 4 o'clock this afternoon refers to the alleged cruel and inhuman treatment by the statement that "The defendant immediately prior to separation, and for many weeks prior thereto threatened that he would take the two daughters of the plaintiff and defendant, to-wit, Irene Tiernan and Mary Tiernan, of the ages of 4 and 3 years respectively, away from this defendant and place them in a home apart from the plaintiff.

Further Allegations.

"Plaintiff further says that during the more recent weeks of their married life the defendant cruelly and in an inhuman manner personally told the plaintiff that this plaintiff and himself, the defendant therein, were not naturally calculated to live together, that their ideals were different, and that on account thereof it would never be possible for this plaintiff and defendant to live together in a happy, congenial marriage relation."

In view of the fact that the divorce complaint was prepared before the separation actually took place Saturday afternoon, it is presumed that the Tiernans have reached this solution of their difficulties of the last several months through agreement and that Prof. Tiernan is permitting his wife to obtain the decree of divorce. Prof. Tiernan has repeatedly stated that he detests divorce and separation because of "My belief in the integrity of the home, the sanctity of marriage and the happiness of the united family." For this reason it is probable that he refused to become a plantiff in an action for divorce.

Takes Family to Michigan.

With all arrangements made for the divorce and with the understanding that the complaint would not be filed until late in the afternoon, Prof. and Mrs. Tiernan, accompanied by the three children, drove to Bronson, Mich., leaving the city at 11 o'clock this morning. It is at Bronson that Mrs. Tiernan will find a haven of refuge with her mother until the case comes up for the attention of the court. She will then return to South Bend long enough to prosecute the divorce, her course from then on being uncertain. Prof. Tiernan is expected to return to South Bend Sunday and on Monday probably will be found conducting his law classes at Notre Dame.

From friends of the Tiernans it was learned tonight that Prof. Tiernan intends to turn over the family home here to Mrs. Tiernan and also provide the money that will pay for the education of the children, provided they are placed in a Catholic school.

Not to Affect Paternity Case.

It is stated that the filing of the divorce suit will not cause a withdrawal of the appeal from the City Court in the matter of the case wherein it is the intention of Prof. and Mrs. Tiernan and Prosecuting Attorney Floyd Jellison to place the paternity of the 10-months-old boy, "Billie," on Harry Poulin. Whatever financial means are necessary in prosecuting the case, it is stated, will come from Prof. Tiernan.

Conferences between Prof. Tiernan and Prosecutor Jellison are to be held during the next few days relative to the details of carrying on this legal fight. The Professor is quoted as stating that both he and Mrs. Tiernan are agreed that whatever hapuens, so far as their domestic relationship is concerned, they will stick together in their ef-

LONG BRONZE HAIR ONLY CLEW IN DERNIER SLAYING

Phoenix Authorities Are Baffled as Each Avenue Indicating Solution Leads to Nothing.

CLUBMAN FOUND IN CANAL SEPT. 12

Developments Show Chicago Man Led Dual Life Interlaced With Many Affairs With Women.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 7.—A single long, dark hair—one that carries a glint of bronze when it is held to the light—is the only real, tangible clew Sheriff John Montgomery and his deputies have had to work on since the body of Guy Dernier, Chicago and California clubman, was found floating in the Arizona Canal, the afternoon of Sept. 12.

This one hair carefully stored in an envelope in the Sheriff's safe, was found clinging to one of Dernier's socks shortly after his body was found. It was the only thing about Dernier's effects that did not belong to him, said the Sheriff today.

Sheriff Montgomery today returned from a tour of towns in the southeast part of the State in connection with the case. Also, Deputy Sheriff Frank W. Bell returned from Los Angeles. He disclaims responsibility for much of the interview attributed to him yesterday in the coast city and he is supposed to have said that the lists of suspects in the Dernier case had narrowed down to two prominent business men of Phoenix. Bell states that the Los Angeles story originated almost in its entirety with a Los Angeles County Deputy Sheriff.

"Affairs With Women."

"There are perhaps 20 men who would have had a motive for killing Guy Dertner," said Sheriff Montgomery today. "He lived a dual life. His familiars were to be found in all strata of society, from the top to the dregs. To say that this man or that man, especially at this time, is the man who killed Guy Dernier would be foolish.

"In all our investigations we are constantly finding evidence of Dernier's affairs with women—many women, not one or two—and the investigations have led us all over this State and into California.

"We have decided that the side Denier's life connected with the underworld was unknown to his friends of respectable society. As far as narrowing down our suspicions is concerned, it amounts to just this—Dernier might have been killed by a jealous husband or he might have died at the hand of some woman's paramour."

"Promising Clew—Nothing."

City Detective Lewis A. Parham and V. T. Bledsoe, special investigator for the County Attorney's office, who have been working on the case, confirmed Sheriff Montgomery's statements.

Bledsoe returned only last night from Douglas, where he had gone in connection with the case.

"The same old thing," he said today. "A promising clew, and then the blind wall."

All the officials unite in denying the reported charge made by R. T. Dernier, brother of the dead man, in Chicago, last night, that the probe of Dernier's death was being squelched.

"You may say for me," said the Sheriff, "that I shall continue my investigations, and when I have something of any real importance to announce I shall announce it."

HAS OWNER RIGHT TO PARK CAR IN FRONT OF HOME? POLICE ASK

Problem Not Covered in Ordinances Is Presented for Ruling by One of Judges.

The question of an automobile owner's right to park his machine in the street in front of his home over night is raised in a complaint forwarded to police court yesterday by the police, directed against Edgar Supp of 5801 Cates avenue.

The complaint sets forth that Supp, night after night, has parked his machine at the curb in front of his home and refuses to put it elsewhere. A policeman has instructed him to discontinue the practice on the ground that the machine there is dangerous to traffic, especially the fire department. Supp, however, says he has a right to park the car there and the police, unable to find anything in the city ordinances covering the question, decided to let one of the police judges pass on it.

VOLIVA PREDICTS NEW WORLD WAR TO SAVE HOLY LAND FOR JEWS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.

WILBUR GLENN VOLIVA, overseer of Zion City, today pronounced a prophecy, gleaned from between the lines of Scripture, he said, of a forthcoming world war in which England and the United States will succor the Jews from the ravages of all other peoples.

There will be three alliances of nations according to Voliva, Russia, Japan, China and Germany, under the leadership of Trotzky, will form one; 10 nations of Western Europe appearing as the 10 horns that Daniel saw in his interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, will comprise the second, and the United States and Great Britain, hand in hand with Jehovah, the third. All the fighting, according to Voliva, will be over the Jews and their desire to fulfill biblical prophecy to restore Palestine. Trotzky, he said, would try to overrun the Holy Land on horseback, carrying out a prediction found in Ezekiel. The devastation will start as soon as they get the horses, he said.

In the meantime, however, Voliva saw Israel as saved by American and British aviators, flying with their planes filled with Jews, toward Palestine.

JUDGE SENTENCES TEAMSTER TO READ "BLACK BEAUTY"

Continues Case of Chicagoan Until He Can Be Examined on the Story.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—As a fine for alleged overloading of his horse-drawn wagon, James O'Donald, president of a local teaming company, today was sentenced to read "Black Beauty" by Municipal Judge John F. Haas. The Judge then continued O'Donald's case until Nov. 4, when the defendant must pass an examination on the story.

An officer for the State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, testified that O'Donold's three-horse team was overloaded 4500 pounds when it stalled yesterday in the loop district.

MARIE LLOYD, 52, LONG A STAR ON STAGE, DIES IN LONDON

Singer Was Tremednous Favorite in England, United States, Australia and South Africa.

(Copyright, 1922.)

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Marie Lloyd died this morning after a brief illness at her home in Golders Green here. She was 52 years old.

For more than 30 years she was a much applauded star, not only in the music halls of London but in those off the United States, Australia and South Africa. She had an agreeable voice, a jolly temperament and was a tremendous favorite wherever she sang. Most of her songs gained their popularity because of the insinuations she injected by her clever and humorous by-play.

She was married three times. Her third husband, by whom she is survived is Bernard Dillon, once a celebrated jockey.

THRACE EVACUATION PLAN APPROVED BY THE BRITISH CABINET

Greek Deputies Appeal to Harding for Protection of Christians in Thrace

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Oct. 7.

TWENTY-EIGHT Greek Christian deputies of Thrace in the Greek national assembly have cabled President Harding and the American Congress, seeking protection for the Greek, Armenian and other Christian populations in Eastern Thrace, should that territory be turned over to the Turks.

The Christians of Thrace, says the message, are in a state of consternation over the probable terms of the Mudania armistice, whereby Eastern Thrace will be restored to Turkey.

"They are under no illusion of the fate awaiting them, if this iniquitous decision is carried out," continues the message. "For no paper guarantees will insure the fulfillment of any Turkish promises, and the Kemalists make no secret of their determination to wipe out the Christian populations under Turkish rule by massacre, exile and deportation."

The deputies protest against such a decision and denounce it as "A reproach on Christian civilization and the most glaring act of international injustice and bad faith in modern history."

They declare that at the close of the World War, the allies gave the Christians of the Ottoman Empire the pledge of liberation from the Turks, and Thrace was annexed to Greece by the treaty.

MEN CHARGED WITH RATHENAU SLAYING REPORTED POISONED

Several Defendants on Trial Ill After Eating Chocolates.

By the Associated Press.

LEIPSIC, Oct. 7.—A sensation was caused at today's session of the trial of 15 persons accused of complicity in the assassination of Dr. Walter Rathenau, the Foreign Minister, when it was rumored that the sudden illness of several of the defendants was due to poisoned chocolates. The rumor had it that an attempt was made by extreme nationalists to kill certain of the accused prisoners whose evidence tended to compromise prominent reactionaries.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON FINISHES TRIP OVER OLD ROUTE BY TRAIN

Veteran Congressman Covered Most of Road He Traveled as Child in 1840 by Auto.

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ill., Oct. 7.—"Uncle Joe" Cannon, who retires next March after 46 years of service in Congress, came home to Danville today, after traveling most of the way over the same road he followed when he came West with his parents and brothers in 1840.

On that trip of 82 years ago, he rode, a child of four, in his mother's arms on the high swaying seat of a lumbering prairie schooner. Now, more than foursome years later, he has fulfilled a long cherished ambition to make the same trip again, following the old national road from Frederic, Md., to Indianapolis, by automobile.

Because of fatigue he was forced to abandon his car at the Hoosier capital and complete the journey by train.

TALKS TO LONDON FROM JERSEY

Sir Thomas Lipton Speaks Message Across Ocean by Radio.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 7.—Sir Thomas Lipton, famous yachtsman, succeeded in talking to London last night by radio, it was learned today when a radiogram arrived from Harry Gorden Selfridge, London department store man, confirming receipt of Sir Thomas' greeting. The message was sent from a local department store broadcasting station.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 7.—The attempt of H. Gordon Selfridge Jr., son of the well-known London merchant, to transmit his voice from San Francisco to his father in London yesterday through the agency of land and radio telephony was indifferently successfrul, according to a cablegram received today from the senior Selfridge. The cable said that "A few faint words were heard," in London.

Selfridge used the regular long distance telephone to Newark, N. J., where his voice was taken up by a radio station and sent to London. As far as is known it is the first trial of the sort.

POSSES HUNT FOR NEGRO ASSAILANT OF VETERAN'S WIFE

Woman, 22, Is Dragged Into Ditch From Road 100 Yards From Home Near Brentwood.

Armed posses from Brentwood and vicinity last night searched the woods in that part of St. Louis County for a negro who attempted to assault Mrs. Eric Pritz, 22 years old, wife of a disabled war veteran, at 7:30 p. m., as she was walking from a car line to her home on the Manchester road, in Brentwood.

A fierce struggle by Mrs. Pritz, of slight stature, averted the consummation of attack by the negro, after he dragged her from the road into a ditch. Part of her clothing was torn from her body. She suffered only minor injuries in fighting off the negro, but later collapsed of shock.

The attack took place within 100 yards of her home, which is above a small store, a quarter of a mile east of the Kirkwood-Ferguson car line. She was unable to scream until the negro abandoned his attempt and fled.

Mrs. Pritz is employed in St. Louis. Her husband was gassed during the war and is unable to work.

Tries to Run Away.

Mrs. Pritz said she left a westbound Kirkwood-Ferguson car at the Manchester road and started to walk to her home. The negro accosted her, she said, when she was within 100 yards of home, and seized her when she started to run. He dragged her into a ditch parallel to the road. A struggle ensued, Mrs. Pritz's head being pounded against a fence post and her clothing torn. Apparently becoming frightened, the negro ran from the Manchester road south into a wooded strip known as Shady Lane Bottoms, at one edge of Brentwood.

Vague Description Given.

Posses searching for the negro have no description of him other than that he was dressed in working man's clothes and may bear marks on his face where Mrs. Pritz attempted to scratch him. The searchers combed the Shady Lane Bottoms and a nearby negro colony and then, augmented by more armed possemen from Brentwood, Maplewood and nearby towns began a systematic hunt.

Deputy Sheriffs who went to Brentwood from Clayton were unable to get in touch with the posses but remained at Brentwood to prevent disturbances.

Efforts were made last night by Brentwood officers to get bloodhounds from St. Charles and several points in Illinois to trail the negro.

NEUTRAL ZONE VIOLATED BY TURKS

Advances by Infantry and Cavalry on Asiatic Side of Constantinople — Evacuation Question Deferred at Mudania Parley.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—The agreement formulated by Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon at Paris on the Thracean question, was approved by the Cabinet council late tonight and will be communicated forthwith to the Mudania conference.

Latest dispatches from Mudania say that the Thracean question is in abeyance at the conference pending instructions from the allied Governments. It probably will be taken up Sunday.

In the meantime, although there seems to be a feeling of relief in both Paris and London. British war like preparations have not been halted. The battleship Benbow, a sister ship of the Iron Duke, is sailing from Malta for Constantinople tomorrow with several smaller craft, all taking large quantities of arms and ammunition.

According to a semiofficial dispatch from Paris, Turkish circles there favor acceptance of the allied decisions respecting Thrace while other Paris dispatches record "a deep feeling of relief after many alarms."

The following official communique was issued late tonight after a full Cabinet meeting, resummoned at 9:30 o'clock to consider a dispatch from Lord Curzon at Paris:

"M. Poincare and Lord Curzon reached an agreement this afternoon that the Greek army should be invited to evacuate Eastern Thrace on the understanding that the allies should occupy the evacuated territory for a period of 30 days from the date of the completion of the evacuation of the Greek forces, in order to guarantee the safety of the non-Turkish population.

"This agreement now must be presented to the Turkish representative at Mudania on the understanding that effect thereto will only be given if the Turkish representatives accept the remaining conditions laid down by the allied note of Sept. 23, particularly respecting the neutral zones on both sides of the Bosporus and the Dardanelles."

EVACUATION PLAN APPROVED BY FRANCE

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Lord Curzon British Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in a flying visit to Paris, has not only obtained assurances that reports from Mudania that the French representatives there are encouraging the Turks to extend their demands are entirely unfounded, but has secured the approval of M. Poincare to a formula regulating the transfer of authority in Eastern Thrace which will safeguard the Christian minority.

The French cabinet has approved the formula, which provides that the Greeks shall immediately evacuate Eastern Thrace, that allied troops shall undertake to preserve order, that Turkish civilian authorities shall at once replace the Greeks,

U. S. BAN ON LIQUOR TO AFFECT FOREIGN VESSELS ON OCT. 14

President Defers Application of Ruling to Ships Sailing After That Date for American Ports.

ENFORCEMENT ON U. S. CRAFT AT ONCE

Masters of Shipping Board Steamers Ordered to Remove and Surrender All Stores of Intoxicants.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Foreign vessels sailing for the United States after Oct. 14, next, will be subject to the prohibition against the bringing of intoxicating liquors into American territorial waters, it was announced tonight at the Treasury Department.

Decision to defer in the case of these craft the enforcement of Attorney-General Daugherty's ruling with respect to the prohibition of the transportation of liquor cargoes or stores was made by President Harding. The executive, in a letter to Secretary Mellon, said any earlier attempt at enforcement in the absence of due notice and ample regulation "would be inconsistent with just dealings and have a tendency to disrupt needlessly the ways of commerce."

Applies to U. S. Ships at Once.

"This delay in enforcement does not apply to the sale of intoxicating liquor on vessels sailing under the American flag," the President said. Immediate cessation of such sales was ordered yesterday by Mr. Harding after the Attorney-General's ruling had been presented to him.

Masters of Shipping Board vessels were ordered today by Chairman Lasker to remove and surrender to Treasury officials all intoxicating liquours aboard such ships. The order became effective immediately as to ships in their home ports and will be made effective on those at sea and in foreign ports upon their arrival in the United States.

A formal notice to foreign steamship lines and to lines operating privately owned American craft of the application of the prohibition amendment and enforcement act to carriers entering American waters probably will be given early next week.

Formulating Regulations.

Meantime, Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair is having formulated the necessary regulations to enforce the law with respect to foreign and privately owned American craft.

Although not yet officially advised of Daugherty's opinion, foreign diplomats notified their home governments, with the intention of supplying official information as soon as it could be obtained from the State Department.

BARS OPEN AS USUAL ON OUTGOING SHIPS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Bars were open as usual upon liners putting out to sea today, despite Attorney-General Daugherty's ruling on high seas liquor and the announcement of Chairman Lasker at Washington that all Shipping Board craft had been ordered to travel dry.

Incoming vessels were first to feel the effects of the Attorney-General's ruling. On arriving in port each vessel, irrespective of the flag she flew, was boarded by customs officials who locked and sealed up all bars, liquor stores and even the private supplies of ships' officers and seamen.

Confronted by the possibility of a parched voyage across the Atlantic, a score of passengers scheduled for the Shipping Board liner America threatened to leave the ship at the last minute. Only when officers of the United American lines assured the thirsty ones that "in the absence of definite instructions from Washington the bars would open as usual" was the ship able to depart with her full sailing lists.

Majestic Carries Liquor.

The Majestic, mastodon of the seas, likewise sailed without interference from customs authorities, her $10,000 supply of liquor ready for the expected onslaught beyond the three-mile limit. White Star line chiefs declined to discuss Daugherty's ruling, except to say "it apparently wouldn't hit the Majestic this time."

Orders to turn the spigots and seal the casks were received by radio aboard the North German Lloyd ship Hanover, while she still was some distance out, according to passengers. Not understanding the order, they said, ship officials closed the bars long before the three-mile limit was reached.

The general opinion of local steamship men and experts in admiralty law was that Daugherty's position was backed by numerous precedents, some dating back more than 100 years. In some quarters the belief was expressed that by prohibiting all ships from bringing liquor into American ports Shipping Board craft would be placed upon a more even competitive basis with foreign-owned vessels.

May Dock at Canadian Ports.

Transatlantic passengers will shun dry voyages, however, was the opinion of other shipping men, and may result in some of the big foreign companies docking at Canadian ports instead of at those of the United States. Still others declared it would be possible for large ships, such as the Majestic and Mauretania, to establish regular "booze lighters" outside the three-mile zone, where they would leave supplies on entering and pick them up on sailing away.

It also was pointed out that America would in no case be able to prevent ships bringing liquor from Europe, as long as supplies were disposed of before they touched the three-mile line.

That Shipping Board craft would be at some disadvantage under the new ruling was indicated in a statement issued by the American Steamship Operators' Association which declares that "even with its inclusion of foreign ships entering our waters, it adds a further handicap to American passenger steamers in the foreign trade."

Disadvantages Pointed Out.

The statement continues:

"American steamers operating to South America, to the Orient and elsewhere carry passengers between foreign ports, but they will be unable to serve liquors, while foreign vessels will be free to do as they please. As a result the merchants of foreign countries, with whom we must build up our foreign trade if we are to have any, will travel on the ships of our competitors, to our growing disadvantage. To many of these people light wines are as food, and as they will not be able to obtain wines on board American ships or to bring their wines with them, it is inevitable that they will forego patronizing American steamers when foreign ships are available. This is sure to have a detrimental effect upon development of foreign trade and thus upon American cargo-carrying steamers.

"But the hard fact must be faced that it imposes another grave disadvantage on American ships, particularly on the largest and swiftest steamers, the most valuable element in our merchant shipping and our national naval reserve. The action of the Attorney-General makes it all the more imperative that Congress should lose no time in the enactment of vigorous national aid or the greatest of our American steamship lines will most certainly disappear from the ocean."

Hailed by Prohibition Foes.

Enforcement of the prohibition amendment on sea as well as on land was hailed tonight by individual and organized foes of the Volstead act as a measure which would speed the legalized return of beer and light wines.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment issued from its national headquarters a statement giving its "emphatic approval to the ruling of Daugherty that all ships, whether foreign or domestic, should be bone dry."

It then proceeded to "go the Attorney-General one better."

Pointing out that the association's platform held that "so long as the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act are the law of the land they should be obeyed," the statement continued:

"In pursuance of this viewpoint, we would urge that under the provisions of the Volstead law nothing remains for the United States Government to do but to issue blanket search warrants empowering Federal officials to search every home in the country, that all intoxicating liquor contained therein should be seized, except where a householder can prove that it was acquired prior to the time the eighteenth amendment became effective."

British Cabinet Approves Thrace Evacuation Plan

but that Turkish troops cannot enter the territory until after the signature of the peace treaty.

Premier Poincare has sent instructions to this effect to the French representatives at Mudania.

M. Poincare left soon after the termination of the conference for the Department of the Meuse, where tomorrow he will inaugurate a monument to the war dead. Lord Curzon will depart for London at noon tomorrow.

The French Premier and British Foreign Secretary discussed other aspects of the question of peace between Turkey and Greece, and agreed to adhere strictly to the joint note to the Angora Government of Sept. 23.

It is affirmed in French circles that the reports that the French representatives at Mudania have been exceeding their instructions and going outside the terms of the allied note, are based on a misunderstanding. The result of Lord Curzon's visit has brought a feeling of relief in Paris, though the situation was not taken so seriously here as in London.

NEUTRALITY ZONE VIOLATED BY TURKS

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—Turkish infantry and cavalry, it is announced, have violated the neutral zone around Ismid.

This is the first violation of the zone protecting Constantinople on the Asiatic side and is regarded as a matter of first importance. The Kemalists, however, have not yet advanced far enough to come into contact with the British troops in the outskirts of Constantinople.

The nationalist cavalry has occupied Shile, which is on the Black Sea Coast, within the Ismid neutral zone. Small infantry and cavalry detachments also entered Darije and Guebize, on the Anatolian railway, about midway between Constantinople and Ismid.

The Turks are adopting a similar method in this zone as in their advance in the Chanak zone, with white flags swung down.

The movement necessarily will attract attention at Mudania and it is contrary to the understanding with the Kemalists that there shall be no troop movements pending the completion of the Mudania negotiations. But it has another and more important significance. It is recalled that the Kemalists justified their violations of the Dardanelles neutral zone on the ground that they had never recognized that zone nor participated in its formation.

But this excuse cannot be employed in the case of the Constantinople zone, because that boundary was established in agreement with the Kelamist authorities a year ago.

General headquarters of the Turkish army has been transferred from Smyrna to Brusa. Kemal Pasha is expected at Brusa early next week.

Athens Investigating Reports of Greeks Mistreating Turks.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, Oct. 7.—The Government has ordered an investigation of the alleged mistreatment of Turks in Thrace by the Greeks, it is announced.

In this connection it is declared in a Greek statement that subsequent to the Smyrna tragedy the Greek authorities delivered widespread propaganda among the Turks to institute an armed uprising in Thrace and that the Turkish leaders therefore were arrested and deported. The Government says that these Turks had been given arms by agents of the Constantine regime, supposedly to enable them to resist invading Bulgarian bands and also to please the Turkish Deputies in the Greek Parliament, who had requested permission to distribute arms among the Turks in Thrace.

The disclosure of the Turkish plot which followed the Smyrna affair, the statement adds, excited the Greeks in Thrace and it is alleged that in some cases the Greeks burned Turkish villages and committed outrages against the Turkish individuals. These allegations are now being investigated.

10,000 Greek Troops Reported in Eastern Thrace.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Ten thousand Greek troops have been concentrated in the Tchatalja district, Eastern Thrace, which is under control of French cavalry, says a Central News dispatch from Constantinople.

Greek officers are reported to have distributed arms to some of the population of Thrace, telling them to repulse the Turks.

ADRIANOPLE, Oct. 7.—The important troop movements by the Greeks in Eastern Thrace have continued throughout the last two days. Every train from Saloniki, Macedonia and Western Thrace has carried units of infantry and artillery.

Gen. Nider, the Greek commander, who has taken up his headquarters at Adrianople, told the correspondent today he was satisfied with the military situation and had sufficient forces to defend Thrace against any incursions.

Turks at Mudania Demand Release of Prisoners of War.

By the Associated Press.

MUDANIA, Oct. 7.—The question of the evacuation of Eastern Thrace was not discussed at the morning conference between the allied Generals and Ismet Pasha, but was deferred, pending receipt by the allies of further advices from London and Paris.

Ismet Pasha, acting in behalf of the Angora Government, asked that a clause be included in the Mudania convention to the effect that since Turkey had released all Greek civilian prisoners, all Turkish civilian prisoners in Greek hands should be released. He demanded also the release immediately of all Turkish prisoners of war, but was not willing to reciprocate.

The allied Generals replied that regarding the release of civilian prisoners, this matter would be referred immediately to their Governments, as it was not a point on which they were competent to decide. The release of prisoners of war, they declared, was a matter to be settled between the two belligerent countries themselves.

SPENCER DECLARES AGAINST FURTHER LOANS TO EUROPE

Missouri Member of Congressional Delegation Abroad Supported in View by Two Others of Party.

PREDICT GERMANY CAN WORK HER WAY OUT

Junior Senator Says Wisdom of U. S. in Not Joining League Is More Manifest Daily.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Cancellation of allied debts to the United States was opposed unanimously today by three senators, McKinley, Republican, Illinois; Spencer, Republican, Missouri, and Harris, Democrat, Georgia, in discussing their impressions of an extensive tour of Europe as American delegates to the Interparliamentary Peace Union. All three agreed on their arrival here that there was much suffering and economics distress in Europe, but that the American Government should make no more loans there. They united in predictions that Germany would work herself out of her present difficulties.

As to the League of Nations, the two Republican Senators differed somewhat from their Democratic colleague. Senators McKinley and Spencer declared the United States should not be in the League but Senator Harris said affairs both in Europe and America would be better today if America had become a member at the start.

Senator Spencer said that "from every aspect the wisdom of the United States in refusing the obligations of the League is daily becoming more manifest," adding that had this government become a member "our solders and sailors would be gathering around Constantinople today."

Declaring the League was not operating as its Republican opponents had predicted, Senator Harris said that "Europe now feels that it is the only thing that will prevent another great war."

SPENCER SCOFFS AT REPORT OF CARAWAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—"Rats," said Senator Spencer today, when told of Senator Caraway's remark that all the 10 American congressional delegates to the interparliamentary union at Vienna left Europe with decided leanings toward American entrance into the League of Nations.

Spencer, who was one of the delegates, just had returned to his office after a European trip beginning Aug. 12. He was asked to give his own impressions of the league's workings and the present state of Europe.

Though holding that the United States should not become a member of the league, he said he saw no objection to its taking a seat in the Court of International Justice, provided that it assumed no obligations under the league and was given an equal voice with the other powers in the selection of Judges.

Visit to Cheppy.

An interesting feature of his trip, Spencer said, was a visit to Cheppy, France, one of the high spots in the fighting of the Thirty-fifth Division. A Missouri monument, provided by the State Legislature, is to be erected there.

Spencer saw the foundation and later, in Paris, the monument itself, which he described as "wonderfully beautiful." It is the bronze figure of a woman, with an olive branch in one hand and a wreath of victory in the other. The monument will be dedicated at Cheppy on Armistice day, or the day later.

"The monument site," said Spencer," is sentineled by three trees on a hillside. Out of one of the three, which has been shot to death by shell fire, you can still pick bullets. The other two are living. Back of the site is a half-demolished crucifix, which will be allowed to remain. The memorial will be the most beautiful yet erected on the battlefields."

Spencer said the town of Cheppy was fast being restored and that wheat now grew in the fields over which the Missourians and Kansans of the Thirty-fifth Division fought.

Refusal to Join Was Wise.

In reply to questions about the League of Nations, Spencer said:

"No one could observe the workings of the league without an intense recognition of the wisdom of the United States in absolutely refusing to assume the obligations which the covenant imposes.

"The present members of the league have definitely come to the conclusion that the United States never will take upon itself these obligations. They are successfully trying to minimize the effect of the obligations on themselves. It may be a certain kind of diplomacy to think that a positive obligation does not mean what it says, but it is not the diplomacy of the United States.

"The league has become a sort of clearing house for the discussion, if not the settlement, of European difficulties. Always there is the absolute obligation of article 10 staring every member in the face. No member can escape the unequivocal meaning of this article.

Regrets for Article 10.

"I talked with Lord Balfour, Lord Robert Cecil and with Frenchmen interested in the league. They told me they understood why the United States would not assume such an obligation, but said that among themselves they were not interpreting article 10 as binding. Still, it is there, and they regret that it is there.

"The International Court of Justice is an American production and is functioning. There is no reason why the United States should not cooperate in such a court, so long as it does not become a member of the league or assume any of its obligations. Our participation in the court should be made conditional on our being given a voice in the selection of Judges.

"What is true of the court is true of some other matters in which the league is interested, such as the suppression of the opium and the white slave traffic. These are questions in which the United States has always been interested and toward the solution of which it is proper that we should give our aid—but without becoming a member of the league.

Sees Little Prospect of Entry.

"I do not think there is any prospect of the United States ever becoming a member of the league with its binding obligations. I doubt very much whether the present covenant could be refashioned so as to make it acceptable to us, for the French and some of the other nations are insistent upon the retention of Article 10.

"We could only participate after all binding obligations had been entirely removed. If this had been done, we would not have had an association like the Washington disarmament conference.

"I doubt very much whether we should send a delegate to sit in the Reparations Commission. The more we keep clear of European entanglements, the better it will be for us. If we had joined the league we should now be involved in all the current European quarrels, and because of our honest intention to fulfil our obligations we should now have soldiers and sailors at the front in foreign countries."

Austria Must Have Help.

Spencer said he did not see how Austria ever could get on its feet again unless it were furnished with financial aid and given the benefit of a close working agreement with Italy and Czecho-Slovakia.

He said he sent Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Samuel Gompers each a note for 100,000 kronen as a souvenir. They cost him $1.20 each.

Spencer predicted that within five years the devastated area of France would be in better condition than it was before the war.

SPENCER SAYS HE DRANK TO WIRTH AT BERLIN IN "LEGAL BEVERAGE"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A MYSTERY which has been the subject of some speculation in the Just-A-Minute column of the Post-Dispatch was partly cleared up today when Senator Spencer told the correspondent that the liquor in which he pledged the health of Chancellor Wirth at a recent dinner in Berlin was "a beverage legally sold in Germany."

BOY FINDS 50 QUARTS OF ETHER NEAR WABASH RAILROAD DEPOT

Two Cartons Were Within 15 Feet of Tracks Half Mile From the St. Charles Station.

Fifty quart cans of ether were found 15 feet from the Wabash Railroad tracks one-half mile west of the Wabash passenger station at St. Charles yesterday afternoon by Thomas Pallardy, 14 years old, son of George Pallardy, a track walker of the Wabash. The boy was hunting when he made the discovery. One carton, containing 25 quart cans, was found in a clump of weeds and another carton was found in a ditch nearby.

Ether, when used with other substances, such as gasoline, is explosive. Sheriff Grothe seized the ether and notified the Wabash Railroad. The metal cans containing the ether bore the label of a New York manufacturer.

8000 ARE MADE HOMELESS BY CANADIAN FOREST FIRE

Property Loss Estimated at $8,000,000—Bodies of 48 Identified—Cobalt Relief Agencies Care for Refugees.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Oct. 7.—Eight thousand persons have been made homeless by the fires that swept over Northern Ontario this week according to Provincial Premier Drury, who returned to his home at Crown Hill, Ont., from the devasted regions today. He estimated the property loss at $8,000,000.

Cobalt Relief Agencies Are Caring for Refugees.

By the Associated Press.

COBALT, Ont., Oct. 7.—Provincial police have identified 48 bodies recovered by searching parties from the Northern Ontario forest area, swept by flames last Wednesday, entailing property loss it is estimated that, may reach $15,000,000.

Refugees from the outlying districts are still arriving in Cobalt and are being cared for by the Red Cross and other relief agencies. Much needed supplies of bread, cooking stoves, bedding and blankets arrived by special train today from North Bay.

The Ontario Government has ordered an official investigation of the cause of the fire.

HARDING TO OUTLINE NEAR EAST RELIEF PLAN

Statement on Aid for Refugees to Follow Conferences With Red Cross Officials.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—President Harding, it was said tonight will issue a statement tomorrow dealing with plans for aiding the thousands of refugees in the Near East. The statement, it was added, will deal with the situation in the light of conclusions reached at a series of conferences at the White House today for co-ordination of the efforts of the American Red Cross and the Near East Relief in such relief work.

Participating in the conferences were officials of the two organizations and former Postmaster-General Hays, it being their purpose to draft a final recommendation to President Harding, who was asked recently by the Near East Relief to give his support to a nation-wide appeal for funds.

No announcement was made at the the conclusion of the meetings, it being understood that the President would cover the subject in his forthcoming statement, but it was said that the Red Cross would deal with the situation "adequately."

Vice Consul Barnes at Smyrna reported to the State Department today that evacuation of refugees from Smyrna had been completed except for 500 who are to embark tomorrow.

Since the fire, the report said, 22,000 refugees had embarked from Smyrna and neighborhood and of the total 18,000 were cared for by American naval forces and American relief workers, the latter being assisted by British naval officers.

GREEK REFUGEES PROBLEM CALLED BIGGEST OF ITS KIND

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 7.—Declaring that the migration of half a million Greeks due to the Near East conflict offered the most colossal problem of its kind in history, H. C. Jaquith, director of the Near East Relief Administration here, addressed a group of relief administrators in a conference in this city today. At the meeting were Admiral Mark L. Bristol and Dr. Fridtjof, who represents the International Red Cross and the League of Nations.

Jaquith's recent tour of the refugee centers took him to the islands of the Aegean and along the shores of Greece. He dwelt upon the bigness of the problem presented.

"This situation is unique as compared with teh other large refugee movements of the past few years," he said in opening the conference, "because there are practically no ablebodied men among the present refugees. The action of the Turks in forcing families to depart from Asia Minor without their breadwinners complicates manyfold the difficulties of caring for the fugitives. At least 95 per cent of the half million exiles may be classed as dependents or women and children and old men. The other five per cent are young boys or men above military age who are still capable of manual labor."

The minimum cost of supporting the rehabilitation of the half million homeless during the coming winter is estimated at $15.000.000.

Homebrew Taken in Hotel Raid.

Forty cases of homebrew beer were confiscated at 11 o'clock last night in a police raid on the New London Hotel, 7 South Sixth street. Samuel Schwartz, 54 years old, proprietor, who said he had the beer for his own consumption, was arrested.

May Bring in New Evidence.

Prof. Tiernan is also said to be authority for the statement that certain testimony, which was not offered in the lower court, regarding the strained relations in his household, will be introduced in the second hearing and that this testimony will go a long way towards convincing the court that while the Tiernans actually lived under one roof, they were not living as husband and wife.

"For three years, our home has been a living hell," Prof. Tiernan stated, "And when the second hearing takes place we will spare no one." By some, this statement is accepted as meaning that new sensations will come out and that other South Bend families may be drawn into the case.

The appeal of the Tiernans is now in the hands of City Clerk Gladys Monroe. The latter will send it to the Circuit Court at St. Joseph next week.

Prosecutor to Rush Case.

It is the intention of Prosecutor Jellison to ask the court to set the second hearing at an early date so that the case can be cleared up while he is still in office.

Prof Tiernan regards his wife with compassion rather than with condemnation, it is said. He realizes, his friends state, that circumstances so developed that she was thrown in the path of the temptor, he not being aware of the approaching tragedy because he was so intently at work on his law books. During the last week, in fact ever since the end of the hearing in the City Court Prof. Tiernan has endeavored to shield his wife from the public and especially from newspaper men who still continue to visit the Tiernan home.

When informed that Mrs. Tiernan had told a Detroit correspondent that she still loved Poulin, the Professor exclaimed:

"Of course, I cannot speak for Mrs. Tiernan, but I hope to God that she can make a denial.

The denial, however, was never made, as Mrs. Tiernan has since kept away from the newsgatherers.

BURLINGTON EMPLOYES HELD ON NEWSPAPERMEN'S CHARGE

Yardmaster and Special Agent Accused of Assaulting Reporter and Photographer at Explosion Scene.

Jasper McQuire, a special agent, and Joseph Chrismer, yardmaster, of the Burlington Railroad, were arrested last evening by order of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Connor, on complaint of William G. Reis, photographer, and Herbert L. Monks, reporter, of the Times staff. The newspaper men allege McGuire and Chrismer assaulted them for attempting to take pictures of the Burlington trestle north of Baden that was blown up yesterday morning.

McGuire lives at 3113 North Ninth street and Chrismer at 4459 Clarence avenue. Neither McGuire nor Chrismer would make a statement. They were released on bonds of $1200 each, provided by representatives of the railroad.

McGuire had stationed himself at the trestle while a section gang worked to repair it, and forbade the taking of pictures. He seized Reis' photographic plates and threw them away. Previously to the encounter with Reis he is said to have struck another newspaper photographer in the face with his fist and pushed him down an embankment.

DETROIT AIR MEET, DELAYED BY RAIN, WILL BEGIN TODAY

Ten Navy Seaplanes to Race for the Curtiss Marine Flying Trophy in Opening Event.

"MYSTERY SHIP" ARRIVES AT FIELD

Tractor Biplane, With 600-Horsepower Engine, Will Be Piloted in the Pulitzer Trophy Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SELFRIDGE FIELD, Mich., Oct. 7.—Rain and wet grounds today caused postponement of the aerial derby, the opening event of the Detroit aviation meet. The 10 navy seaplanes which will compete for the Curtiss Marine flying trophy will race tomorrow if the weather man is considerate.

The pilots were all set to go this afternoon, but officials decided that a drizzling rain, a London fog and rough waters on the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair did not comprise conditions auspicious for competitive flying.

"Mystery Ship" Arrives.

The disappointment of the navy men was in part allayed by the arrival of the much discussed "mystery ship," which Lieut. Lawson H. Sanderson of the United States Marine Corps will pilot in the Pulitzer trophy race. It is a tractor biplane, powered with a Wright 12-cylinder 600-horsepower engine rated at 200 miles an hour.

If it performs as the Government expects, it will eventually replace the Liberty motors in torpedo and bombing planes. The mystery ship has a retractable landing gear that enables it to tuck up its toes when in flight.

Detroit is aviation mad. It is estimated that 200,000 persons will be at Selfridge Field to watch the Pulitzer trophy and other races. In cigar stores, clubs and hotel lobbies they are making books on the Pulitzer event.

Army-Curtis Racers Favorites.

Two army-Curtiss racers rule favorites in the betting, which is not surprising considering what Lieuts. Maitland and Maughan did with them at Mitchell Field.

It was learned today, by the way, that Maughan's flight will stand as an official record for a straightaway kilometer course. While in unofficial flights he made 221 and Maitland 223 miles an hour, Maughan was clocked officially at 220.45 miles an hour.

By the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, which govern all international speed flights, a pilot must make four dashes over the one-kilometer course, two in each direction consecutively. Maughan did this.

He made the first dash in 10.4 seconds, or at the rate of 215.1 miles an hour, the second in 10 seconds flat, or 223.704 miles an hour; the third in 10.2, or 219.318 miles; the fourth in 10 flat again. The average, to offset for wind assistance, gave him the official record of 220.458 miles an hour.

Won War Decorations.

It was the third time that Maughan had flown the plane. The reason he made the official flight was that he went up after Maitland had flown and was still in the air when it was decided to try for the record.

Maughan rates exceptionally high as a pilot. He was one of the first pilots to go overseas. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross with one bronze oak leaf for exceptional gallantry. He is officially credited with bringing down four enemy planes. He was the winner of the transcontinental reliability test flight in October, 1919.

Aviation experts expect to see a great battle between Maughan and Maitland. They are piloting identical planes and the race will therefore resolve itself into a question of pilot craftsmanship.

More than 100 planes have been entered in the various races. They will constitute a test of the experience gained by Yankee engine builders in the war.

Crack flyers of the army, the navy, the marine corps, and civilian aviators will compete in the chief events, which are the Curtiss Marine Flying Trophy, Oct. 7; the Detroit News Aerial Mail Trophy, Oct. 12; the Aviation Country Club of Detroit Trophy, Oct. 12; the Liberty Engine Builders' Trophy, Oct. 13; and the Pulitzer Trophy, Oct. 14.

"On-to-Detroit" Race.

In addition, there is the on-to-Detroit race, for which only civilians are eligible. Awards will be made on a basis of average speed, elapsed time. A cash prize of $500 and a silver loving cup goes to the winner.

Keen interest attaches to the special event to be held the afternoon of Oct. 13, in which army, navy and civilian flyers will attempt to lower the world's record for straightaway on a one-kilometre course. It is now held by Sadi-Lecointe, a Frenchman, with a mark of 212 miles an hour.

"Automobile racing did more to develop the motor car than anything else," said Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the navy. "Racing like that at Detroit will do the same for the airplane. It provides a supreme test of all equipment. If an engine has any bugs it reveals them. No defect, no matter how trivial, can escape discovery in a race."

Pulitzer Race Supreme Test.

Both Admiral Moffett and Major-General Masson M. Patrick of the Army Air Service regard the supreme test at Detroit as the Pulitzer Trophy race. To compete for first-place honors over the 114.34 miles of the triangular course they have picked their best pilots and supplied them with planes powered by engines of proved endurance.

A total of 16 machines has been entered by the army and six by the navy for the Pulitzer Trophy Race. To be within hailing distance of the trophy each man must do around 200 miles an hour. If you care for statistics that means about 300 feet a second, one-fourth the muzzle velocity of a .45-caliber bullet, four times that of the Twentieth Century Limited.

Altogether the cash prizes for all events approximate $12,000. The gold and silver trophies are valued at $30,000.

Selfridge Field, which is to mark the start and finish of the land races, is being rebuilt to accommodate the 50,000 persons who are expected to flock there the week of Oct. 7-14. In addition to the grandstand facilities, parking space has been provided on the field for 10,000 cars.

The meet, the largest ever held in this country, is under the auspices of the Detroit Aviation Society, Inc. Its officers are Col. Sidney D. Waldon, president; Mason P. Rumney, secretary; William E. Metzger, treasurer, and Lieut. Harold H. Emmons, counsel.

TWO OFFICIAL FLIGHTS FOR PULITZER TROPHY

THE Pulitzer Trophy Race, recognized as the world's speed classic, has been flown officially twice.

The 1920 winner was Capt. Corliss C. Moseley, in a 600-horsepower Verville-Packard. His average speed was 156.5 miles an hour. The race was held at Mitchel Field, near Mineola, L. I. Forty planes were entered. Twenty-eight finished.

The 1921 winner was Bert Acosta, in a Curtiss-Navy CD-12 biplane. His average speed was 176.7 miles an hour. The race was held at Omaha, Neb.

The Pulitzer Trophy, a winged figure upholding an airplane, was donated to the Aero Club of America by Ralph, Joseph and Herbert Pulitzer.

A race was held for the trophy in May, 1919, at Atlantic City, N. J., and was won by Capt. Mansell R. James, formerly of the British Royal Air Force. Capt. James was lost on his return from Boston to Atlantic City and his body was never found. As that was prior to the reorganization of the Aero Club the flight is not officially recognized in reckoning "legs" on the trophy.

Mother Who Claims Baby Girl Was Substituted for Boy in Hospital

MRS. EDWARD RICH.

MRS. Edward Rich, of Jersey City, N. J., claims a girl was substituted for a boy born to her in the city hospital there. The attending physician and all the hospital attendants, for six days after the child was born, Mrs. Rich says, called the baby a boy, which she named Edward. On the seventh day, Mrs. Rich asserts, a new nurse was in attendance, and insisted her baby was a girl. Mrs. Rich and her husband have refused to accept the girl as their child, and declare it was substituted for the son.

REED SILENT ON QUESTION OF MODIFICATION OF DRY LAW

Senator Refers to President as "Amiable Man" Who Likes Golf and Yachting.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHELBINA, Mo., Oct. 7.—Senator Reed again was silent on the question of prohibition law modification in a speech tonight before about 2500 persons. He was introduced by Senator Stanley of Kentucky. Reed assailed Secretary of the Treasury Mellon because of his attitude toward the soldiers' bonus and toward repeal of the corporation tax and excess profits tax.

Reed told the audience he is a partisan Democrat, adding that "any who say I am not are either misinformed or something worse." He said he would discuss neither his opponent, R. R. Brewster, or Gov. Hyde. President Harding he characterized as an amiable man who gols three days a week and spends three more yachting on the Mayflower. The great danger to America today, he said, is not from without, but from bad laws within. He assailed the tariff act, saying certain trusts will profit greatly from it.

Stanley quoted Brewster as saying he did not know whether he favored a high or low tariff. Brewster, he charged, "is wet in the city and dry in the country."

Byron Hewitt, Democratic county committee chairman, presided.

DELAY IN NAMING JUDGES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—It was stated at the Department of Justice today that appointments to fill the new Federal judgeships in the Eastern and Western Missouri districts would not be made before the election and probably not until the next session of Congress.

POSTAL RECEIPTS $845,575

Amount Taken in by St. Louis Office in September Shows Increase.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Postal receipts in St. Louis for September were $845,575, an increase of 15.02 per cent over the receipts for the corresponding month of 1921. The Postoffice Department announced today the average increase in 50 selected offices was 11.55 per cent.

Plans Laid for Arendes' Campaign.

W. Frank Carter, president of the Arendes-for-Collector Club, which is supporting the candidacy of M. C. Arendes, Democratic nominee for the collectorship in St. Louis, yesterday announced committee appointments for the campaign. W. H. Hughes, former Democratic City Committeeman from the Eleventh Ward, will have charge of Arendes' campaign. William Durkins is secretary of the club and Joseph Carr is treasurer. Sam Lazarus, A. C. Stuever and six others are vice presidents. Committee chairmen are Carl F. G. Meyer, Executive Committee, and Otto Hainmeyer, Finance Committee.

REPORT OF COUPLE IN PATH AT SCENE OF HALL KILLING

Police Search for Couple Said to Have Fled After Seeing Auto and Hearing Shots.

VESTRYMAN IN HALL'S CHURCH QUESTIONED

Asked About Visit to Farm Where Rector and Singer Were Slain; Is Told "Some One Has Lied."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A couple, reported to have been eyewitnesses to the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall of New Brunswick, N. J., and Mrs. James Mills, choir singer, and to hold the key to the mystery, were sought today by investigators, who have been working on the baffling case for three weeks.

As the report ran, the couple sought were in a path of golden rod beside "Lover's Lane," the red shale dirt road into the farm where the bodies were found. There was the whirr of a motor and a sedan came along in the darkness, its occupants shouting excitedly. There was a woman's scream, then five shots—three in succession, followed by two more.

Mistaking the shooting for a hold-up and fearful their presence there would be revealed, the couple ran to Buccleuch Park, nearby, where the man had left his automobile. After they reached there they saw the sedan, with a woman and two men in it, speed past under a street light toward New Brunswick. They hurriedly went to their homes.

The story was given credence because A. E. Soper, who was driving home with his family that night, from Somerville, saw a car with a man and two women in it. Thus far the couple have not been found.

Vestryman Questioned.

Ralph V. M. Gorsline, a vestryman of St. John the Evangelist Church, of which Hall was rector, and who admitted some days ago that the pastor's relations with Mrs. Mills had reached a point where Hall was approached on the subject, was questioned by the officials as to whether he had been to the farm. He said that a week before the double killing he was in that vicinity with his wife.

"The inquiry is pointing to the Mills and Hall families," Assistant Prosecutor John A. Toolan, of Middlesex County, said. "Somewhere, in one of them, some one knows more than has been told.

"Neither Mrs. Hall and those near to her, nor Sexton Mills has reacted normally. They have shown little grief, and Mrs. Hall has not acted like the average wife should. She seems to me to show little interest in the case, and is unlike the average wife, who would try to bring the murderer to justice. Instead, she has secluded herself.

"We have not discarded any theories. To be sure, we will not overlook the right one. This much is certainly true—there are many sharp and significant conflicts. Some cannot be explained away as immaterial. More than one person has lied.

Joseph E. Stricker, Middlesex prosecutor, admitted he was considering resigning as campaign manager for George S. Silzer, Democratic nominee for Governor of New Jersey, to devote his whole time to the murders. He said he did not expect to come to a decision before Monday morning.

Governor Demands Solution.

Gov. Edwards made the following statement in Trenton:

"I am standing squarely behind this investigation. The murder must be cleared up. There has been too much time lost. I have sent Col. Swartzkopf, commander of the State troopers, to New Brunswick to get the murderer and not to come back until he does. I want the murderer arrested, whoever he is.

"I expected an arrest yesterday and was surprised there was not one. The daughter of the murdered woman has appealed to me for help. The people of this State want to see this mystery solved and the murderer punished. I am going to give the prosecutor all the help in my power."

Neither Mrs. Hall nor Mills, husband of the slain woman, was examined, as one of the many wild rumors in the investigation had them stated to be.

Still another report of the movements and sayings of Willie Stevens, eccentric 50-year-old brother of Mrs. Hall, the morning after the murders, was that an acquaintance had seen him on the steps of a bank, twisting and wringing his hands. The acquaintance was reported to have asked Willie what made him so nervous, and he was said to have replied:

"Don't believe a word you hear about them. They are just as pure as they can be."

He did not explain what he meant. The bodies of Hall and Mrs. Mills had not then been found.

Eccentric Questioned.

The further inquisition of Willie Friday night was with the idea that under a gruelling he might reveal something, or at least clear up the discrepancies between the conflicting statements of Mrs. Hall and Mills.

The officials also questioned him as to whether he accompanied his sister when she was seen returning to her home about 2:30 a. m. the night Hall and Mrs. Mills were slain. William Phillips, night watchman at the New Jersey College for Women, insisted the woman he saw was alone. Mrs. Hall says it was she, but that Willie was with her. Willie stuck to his sister's story.

Detectives took Willie from the Hall home to Somerville, past the farm where the bodies were found, and carried him back at 2 a. m. In Somerville they were joined by Prosecutor Beekman of Somerset County. The authorities had said gum-shoe and police methods had to be abandoned. Prosecutor Beekman said: "Willie was not treated with third-degree methods."

"Did you cover the same ground as you did before?" Beekman was asked.

"That is what the Hall family would like to know," he replied.

It was learned later that during the questioning Willie repeatedly exclaimed:

"Don't you call me a liar."

Timothy K. Pfeiffer, former Assistant District Attorney here and counsel for Mrs. Hall, issued a statement attacking the authorities for the alleged use of third-degree methods in the examination of Willie Stevens.

Pfeiffer said Mrs. Hall had been incorrectly quoted regarding the number of times she had seen Mills on the day following the disappearance of her husband and Mrs. Mills. She admitted seeing Mills at least twice and possibly three or four times that day.

Statements Contradicted.

In the signed statement Mrs. Hall gave to reporters she only told of seeing Mills once. Then she added that she went home and remained there all day.

Mills was asked again about his statement that he met Mrs. Hall four times.

"If Mrs. Hall says she met me only once, she is lying," Mills said. "I remember very distinctly that I met her at the church in the morning about 7 o'clock. At noon I was preparing dinner for myself, as my wife was not there, and Mrs. Hall came in and asked if I had heard any news. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon she came back to my house again. About 7 o'clock in the evening I went to the church to get ready for choir practice. I did not want to hang around there, so I went over to the Hall house and I sat upon the front stoop and talked to Mrs. Hall for a long time."

Mills said that he had been much worried over the case and had lost 12 pounds on account of it.

WILLIAM S. HART IS REPORTED SERIOUSLY ILL OF TYPHOID

Movie Actor Became Ill, Apparently of a Severe Cold, Several Days Ago.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—William S. Hart, motion picture actor, is reported to be seriously ill at his home here tonight. Physcians who are attending him held a consultation late today. It has been learned that Hart is suffering typhoid fever and complications.

Hart became ill several days ago of what appeared to be a severe cold. His condition took a turn for the worse yesterday. Throughout today he has been delirious. His sister, Mary Hart, is at his bedside.

Hart and his wife, Winifred Westover, separated several month ago. He made a property settlement which provided for their unborn child.

POLICEMAN SHOT AT FROM AUTO

Men in Speeding Car Without Lights in Columbia Avenue Escape.

One of several men in a speeding automobile without lights fired a shot at Mounted Patrolman Arthur J. Smith at 11:30 o'clock last night in the 6000 block of Columbia avenue, but missed their mark and escaped westward.

Smith, riding west, heard the automobile, with muffler open, approaching at a high rate of speed from behind.

He wheeled his horse, intending to command a halt, when one of the men exclaimed, "Run over him," and then fired a shot that Smith said passed close to his head. Smith emptied his revolver at the automobile.

ROCKEFELLER JR. IN AUTO CRASH

None Hurt When Runaway Car Collides With Financier's Machine.

By the Associated Press.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 7.—John D. Rockefeller Jr., driving an automobile in which three children and a chauffeur were riding escaped injury today when the machine was struck by another driven by Earl Lohenstein of Rye, N. Y. The brakes on Lohenstein's car failed to work as it was going down a hill. Despite signals from Lohenstein, Rockefeller was unable to avoid the collision.

The Rockefeller car proceeded to Pocantico Hills while Lohenstein's machine was put out of commission. No one was hurt.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. Oct. 7.—The Rev. Harding M. Hughes, aged minister, tonight was found not guilty of a charge of being an accessory to murder in connection with a fatal shooting of Mrs. Anna McKennon, aged recluse, in Montgomery County last year.

On his first trial on the charge Hughes was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, later being granted a new trial.

URGES REGULATION OF RADIO BROADCASTING

Exposition Speaker Advocates State or National Control to Prevent Jumble of Sound.

Legislation by Congress to govern the practice of radio broadcasting stations, to prevent jumbles of sound in the air, as heard by listeners, due to duplication of wave lengths used, was advocated by Paul Godley, a radio engineer of New York City, in an address at the first St. Louis radio exposition, at the Coliseum last night.

"Now when an amateur tunes in at a certain wave length to hear his favorite station," said Godley, "he sometimes hears sounds as on the old farmers' party telephone lines, when half a dozen people were on the wire at once. He may hear a lady's shrill voice and a man's deep bass, but the sounds from all the other broadcasting stations have a hard time getting through.

Listeners Should Take More Pains.

"Legislation is necessary to regulate the wave length bands of broadcasting stations. The last legislation was in 1912, when radio was in its incipiency. The chief remedy now lies in the education of those who receive the programs. They must learn to take more pains in arranging their sets.

Opposes Government Ownership.

Godley said he did not favor Government control of radio through Government ownership of all broadcasting stations. He recently returned from a trip to Europe, where he was sent to study radio conditions by the industry in this country.

"The number of amateurs and others interested in radio has grown in a few years from 30,000 or 50,000 to 8,000,000 or 10,000,000. There are in this cuntry about 50 major broadcasting stations, including Station K S D, the Post-Dispatch, which is one of the best in the country. Many of these stations have sacrificed selectivity for simplicity, have dropped the four-current system brought out by Marconi for the single-current system."

The radio exposition, which opened Friday, will be open daily until Wednesday, the hours today being 2 to 11 p. m. The play-by-play account and score of the world's series baseball game in New York this afternoon, which will be broadcast by station K S D, will be received at the exposition and transmitted to the crowd. More than 1000 persons attended last night.

There are about 30 exhibits, and those who attend may compare the products of various manufactuers by actual tests in the same room.

DETECTIVE ACCUSED OF ATTACKING TAXI MEN

Manager of Cab Company Charges Sergeant Dempsey Struck Employes at Garage.

Investigation of an affidavit filed by C. F. Meir, manager of the Black and White Cab and Baggage Co., 3950 Olive street, charging Detective Sergeant Frank Dempsey with assaulting several employes at the Black and White garage without provocation, was instituted yesterday by Inspector Gerk. Dempsey has been detailed to special duty for several weeks to prevent disorders against taxicabs of the Taxicab Trust Estate—Yellow Cab and Columbia—during the chauffeur's strike.

Dempsey, who is a brother of Father Timothy Dempsey, well known as a peacemaker in labor and gang troubles, is alleged by Meier to have made the assaults about 3 a. m., Oct. 4, just before arresting four men, three of them Black and White employes. These men were taken to the Central Police Station, he said, and later released.

Attack Without Warning Alleged.

The complaint charges Dempsey attacked Harold Bourgoin, night superintendent at the garage, without warning while Bourgoin was standing in the garage doorway. Bourgoin returned the blow, later stating he did not know Dempsey was an officer. The latter is alleged to have struck Bourgoin on the head with his revolver and struck him several times with his fists.

Joe Cullen and George Detweiler, Black and White drivers, and John Murphy, 4300 Lindell boulevard, a fare who was standing in the garage, also were roughly handled, it is charged. The four alleged assault victims then were taken to the Central Station, where no charges were preferred.

Locker Searched.

Statements attributed to the four men by Meier charge Dempsey had been drinking. Inspector Gerk searched a locker at central headquarters, used by Dempsey and several other detectives, and said he found a gallon jug, containing a small quantity of whisky. The ownership of this has not been established.

Dempsey has submitted a report to Inspector Gerk, stating he went to the Black and White Garage with E. T. Clifford, superintendent of the Taxicab Trust Estate, to investigate a complaint of taxicab strike disorders. He said he was assaulted when he entered the place and used his fists to defend himself, but denied that he had struck any of the men with his revolver or that he had been drinking. Dempsey still is on duty pending Gerk's investigation.

FRENCH DOCTORS TO CALL HERE

Will Inspect Children's Hospital and Washington U. Medical College.

The St. Louis Children's Hospital and the Medical College of Washington University will be inspected this week by Dr. George Weiss and Dr. Lucien Pauprier, noted French physcians, who are reorganizing the medical college at Strassburg. The two physicians are being accompanied on their tour of the United States by Dr. Clifford Wells of New York, who is representing the Rockefeller Foundation. They will arrive about 5 p. m. tomorrow and will remain in St. Louis until Oct. 13. They will attend the opening dinner of the St. Louis Children's Hospital financial campaign at the Hotel Statler tomorrow night at 6:30 o'clock.

While in the city they will be the guests of the St. Louis Medical Society.

LEGION PREPARING FOR ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Ball to Be Held in Evening—National Commander MacNider to Be Present.

American Legion posts of St. Louis are preparing to celebrate Armistice Day, Nov. 11, with an industrial parade, emblematic of the return to peacetime vocations, and a ball that evening at the First Regiment Armory, 220 South Grand boulevard. All patriotic, civic and military organizations in the city will be invited to participate in the celebration.

A queen of the American Legion, to be selected in a beauty contest, will be crowned at the ball and will reign as queen until here successor is elected for the 1923 Armistice Day celebration.

The Chamber of Commerce is co-operating with the Armistice Day Committee of the Legion in arrangements for the industrial parade by sending letters to industrial plants requesting them to enter floats in the parade depicting the change from wartime to peacetime industries. The committee already has been promised more than 30 floats.

Employment Bureau Planned.

Money derived from the ball and celebration the night of Nov. 11 will be used in Legion work, particularly in caring for disabled or destitute former soldiers and in establishing an employment bureau for former soldiers. This bureau will be opened early in November at the Planters Hotel.

The beauty contest in which the queen will be chosen is open to girls in the city and St. Louis County. Entry will be by picture, the only requirement being that the photograph be submitted by a member of the American Legion. A committee, which probably will include several photographers and artists, will select the queen from the photographs.

National Commander Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Ia., and State Commander James E. Kinkead of Fornfelt, Mo., will participate in the celebration and will direct the coronation of the queen.

Members of Committee.

The Armistice Day Committee of the Legion comprises N. W. Larimore, general chairman; Robert Tomsen, vice chairman; Frank G. Jonah, vice chairman; Dr. R. E. Owen, grand marshal; Dr. E. C. Funsch, treasurer; Harry Reid, secretary, and Dr. A. D. Brix.

The City Executive Committee, of which Jerome F. Dugan is chairman, has announced that the American Legion will provide three-minute speakers on Americanism or other patriotic subjects to any schools or organizations that desire them in connection with Armistice Day observance

Music for the celebration will be furnished by the American Legion band. This organization will be sent to the American Legion national convention at New Orleans, Oct. 16-20, and will give several concerts en route to the convention.

MAJOR WATSON TRANSFERRED

Barracks Officer to Join Thirty-Third Infantry in Panama.

Maj. James A. Watson of the Sixth United States Infantry, now stationed at Jefferson Barracks, has been transferred to the Thirty-third Infantry, and will leave New York to join his regiment in Panama on Oct. 26. Maj. Watson was with the Sixth when it made the 900-mile hike from Camp Jackson, S. C., to St. Louis last autumn.

Maj. Watson was the chief promoter of the horse show held at Jefferson Barracks in May. On the second day of the show, he was severely injured in falling from his mount when it failed to clear a four-foot brush jump. He suffered a fractured collar bone and other injuries.

BREWSTER BRANDS REED 'DEMAGOGUE, FRAUD AND FAKER'

Challenges Him to State What He Has Ever Done in Interest of Farmer, Labor, Women or Wets.

"SKILLFUL WORDS INSTEAD OF ACTS"

Republican Nominee Delivers Attack in Boonville Address; Spoke at Fayette in Afternoon.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Oct. 7.—R. R. Brewster, Republican nominee for United States Senator, in his Boonville speech tonight, branded Senator Reed, his Democratic opponent, as a "Demagogue, a fraud and a faker," and challenged him to state anything he had ever done in the interest of the farmer, of the labor union man, of women, or of the wets.

"My distinguished opponent is asking for the vote of the Missouri farmer on the ground that he opposed Herbert Hoover. But what has he ever done in the interest of the farmer?

"He is pandering to the labor union vote by attacking the man who denounced the Herrin massacre. But what has he ever done for union labor?

"He is attempting to capture the woman voter by a beautiful word tribute to motherhood. But what has he ever done in the interest of women, in the interest of children, in the interest of the home?

"He is appealing to the wets for their votes by skillful wording, trying to lead them to believe that he can get intoxicating liquor for them. But he has been in Congress for a long time, and what has he ever done to obtain a change in the Volstead act?

Reed's Record Challenged.

"The candidate for office who stoops to such practices is a demagogue, a faker and a fraud. I challenge him to come out in the open and make a statement of anything he has ever done for the farmer, for the laboring man, for the women of the land or for the wets.

"The voters of Missouri are entitled to something besides sham and fraud from a candidate for office. They are entitled to proof of the statements he makes. Let Jim Reed get out where the spotlight can be turned on his acts, and let the people have proof instead of words."

An audience which filled the Circuit Court room greeted Brewster in Cooper County, one of the first Republican Counties in which he has spoken during this campaign.

Says Reed Is Afraid.

Brewster declared Reed had not discussed the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead law since his opening speech, and that he was afraid to discuss it.

"He faced both ways then and he has been afraid to talk about it since then, but he carries along somebody to tell how he stands. He has Senator Stanley, who talks about Reed being wet, and last night in Kirksville a woman told the audience that the women should not vote against Reed because they thought he was wet. She said he couldn't repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. So he tries to get them coming and going. Yet he refuses to say where he stands. Instead, he sat there when the lady was speaking, hiding behind a woman's skirts."

Brewster repeated the question on prohibition which he has asked Reed in every speech this week, and which Reed has said he would not answer. Brewster asked the wet Republicans who were thinking of leaving the party to vote for Reed to write to Reed and ask him the questions.

"He won't answer them; but try writing to him. Do your best to find out where he stands before you follow him off to get something that he can't give you."

Discusses Party Principles.

Being in a Republican county, Brewster devoted more time than usual to a discussion of the principles of the Republican party. He praised the party and President Harding, and recited praises of Abraham Lincoln and McKinley.

"I never defended the Wilson administration, not once. I fought the League of Nations with all the power I had. I wanted no super-government. I wanted no international banner."

Referring to Reed's opposition to suffrage, Brewster said:

"He opposed extending the franchise to women, but when it came over his opposition, he said, 'I never was against you really. I just thought you were too sweet and pure and gentle to become mixed up in politics,' and he insults womanhood by saying that he thinks so much of the ladies that he has always had a hard time to keep from liking too many women."

Afternoon Speech at Fayette.

This afternoon he spoke in Fayette, Howard County, a strong Democratic community, to an audience which filled the courtroom. Democrats said it was three times as large as any previous Republican audience in the county.

In both the Fayette and Boonville speeches he denounced Reed in stronger terms than in any of his previous speeches.

"A man running for office, who panders to the whims of the people and tries to inflame one class against another is a traitor to his country, is a mountebank and should not be trusted."

"It was George Washington who said at a critical time, 'Let none but Americans be put on guard tonight.' I'll say let none but Americans be put on guard in the United States Senate. The man who votes for a candidate for office because of his hatred for some foreign country, or because of his love for some foreign country is a traitor to this country.

"I want the vote of no man or no woman because of love for or hatred of any foreign country. There is only one country for an American. That is the United States, our country; and only one flag, our flag.

"Pandering for Wet Votes."

"My opponent is pandering for wet Republican votes in the hope of offsetting the Democratic votes he is going to lose. The only Republicans who will vote against me will be those who think I am too dry. It will not be because I am a traitor to my party, or because I am a traitor to a Republican President."

There is a large German population in Cooper County, and it is the expectation that Brewster will lose several hundred Republican votes to Reed. On the other hand, there is a strong Wilson following, which, home local Democrats say, will be against Reed and for Brewster.

"BETTER HOMES WEEK" TO BE FEATURED BY DAILY LECTURES

Women of County Will Have Charge of Programs in Department Store Auditorium.

One of the features of "Better Homes Week," which starts tomorrow, will be daily lectures under the auspices of the women of St. Louis County on the home and its purposes at the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney auditorium.

For demonstration purposes, rooms corresponding to those in a four-room bungalow and a ten-room residence have been furnished on the fifth floor of the store. Women from the larger towns in the county have charge of the program each day except Wednesday, when the Women's Chamber of Commerce of St. Louis will direct the exhibition. Ross Crane, chief lecturer, will speak daily on "Better Homes" and "Interior Decorating."

Mrs. Gillbert Fox of Webster Groves has been appointed chairman of a committee to promote better homes throughout the state.

BLIND CONGRESSMAN AND WIFE FILE $15,000 DAMAGE SUITS

Action Brought Against Street Car Company for Injuries Suffered in Collision.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Thomas D. Schall, blind Representative in Congress from Minnesota, and his wife filed suits today in the District Supreme Court for $15,000 damages from the Capital Traction Co. because of an accident last January when their automobile was wrecked in collision with a street car and they were both injured.

Representative Schall seeks $5000 damages, alleging permanent injuries and Mrs. Schall's claim is for $10,000. She alleges she was about to become a mother, and that the accident prevented. Mrs. Schall had been the constant companion of her husband since he entered Congress, doing most of his writing and reading for him.

HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN TO OPEN TOMORROW

Teams Will Try to Obtain $300,000 for Institution for Care of Children.

Five hundred team captains and workers are expected to attend the opening of the St. Louis Children's Hospital campaign, which will be held at Hotel Statler at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow. It is proposed to raise $300,000 during the campaign, which will close on Oct. 18. The principal speakers at tomorrow evening's meeting will be Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co. and general chairman of the campaign, and Robert McKittrick Jones, chairman of the Executive Committee of the campaign.

The funds raised will be used to build an addition to the hospital buildings at 500 South King's highway and to meet a deficit of $137,229.91, which has accumulated over a period of 32 months. The income at the hospital for the 32 months' period was $306,919.62, while the expenditures totaled $444,149.53.

The income for the period was received from the following sources: Income on endowment, $108,538.02; from Board of Managers and donations, $75,801.93; private and part pay patients, $82,438.70; from all other sources, $40,140.97. The expenditures during the same period are listed as follows: Administration, $26,885.95; professional care of patients, $108,405.65; provisions, $39,398.76; general house and property expense, $96,897.59; nurses' training school and home, $59,563.15; department and sundry expenses, $34,039.62.

The team captains and the workers will gather daily at noon at the Hotel Statler to make reports on the progress of the campaign. The first of the noon meetings will be held Wednesday.

ST. CHARLES YOUTH, 19, HELD FOR KIDNAPING GIRLS, 13 AND 15

He Was One of Three Seen With Them Day They Disappeared From New Florence.

The disappearance of two girls from New Florence, Mo., two weeks ago yesterday, resulted in the arrest of Leonard La Barge, 19 years old, of St. Charles, Friday, at the International Shoe Co. factory, at St. Charles, where he was employed, on a charge of kidnaping. He was taken to Montgomery City.

Peter Stewart, father of the girls, Lorena and Lillian, 13 and 15, respectively, reported to the sheriff of St. Charles County that La Barge was one of three younths from St. Charles seen with the girls on the day of their disappearance.

Stewart arrived in St. Charles early today to hunt for his daughters, who are thought to be in St. Louis.

La Barge was sentenced last May to five years in the penitentiary for stealing shoes from box cars in St. Charles, but was paroled.

FERGUSON TO CELEBRATE COMPLETION OF HIGHHAY

Concrete Road Which Cost $75,000, Connects That Town With Natural Bridge Road.

A good roads "jubilee" will be held at Ferguson next Saturday to celebrate the completion of a $75,000 concrete road, connecting with Natural Bridge road, and what is announced as "the emerging of Ferguson from 50 years of mud."

City officials planned the celebration, which is open to the county, and have invited numerous county, St. Louis and Government officials. Mayor Kiel has been asked to formally open the road, which was informally opened to traffic last week. An automobile parade from Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue to Ferguson will start the celebration.

A football game between the University City and Ferguson High School teams, a modified Marathon race, tennis matches and novelty contests are included in the program. Mayor Kiel has been asked to meet all comers at pitching horseshoes. A baby show has been arranged with prizes for the handsomest, most cheerful and loudest weeping babies. Radio concerts will be given in the afternoon and evening.

MAN KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Former Cashier of Defunct Bank Was Under Three Indictments.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 7.—Sam E. Lehnen, 50 years old, former cashier of the now defunct North Liberty Savings Bank, was killed by lightning when chopping wood near his home in North Liberty yesterday. His body was not found until today.

Lehnin was under three indictments in connection with the bank failure. He is said to have lost a small fortune in the failure of the bank.

PLATFORM NOT FOR PARTY BUT FOR REED, SAYS HYDE

Governor Tells Republican Editors It Does Not Reflect True Viewpoint of Democrats of State.

'WEATHERVANE OF REED'S EXPEDIENCY'

Asks That Reed "Come From Behind Fourth Amendment" and Discuss the Entire Constitution.

The Democratic State platform does not reflect the true viewpoint of the Democratic party but is "the weather vane of Jim Reed's expediency in his attempt to retain his seat in the Senate," said Gov. Hyde in an address at Clayton yesterday. He referred to Reed as "the attorney general of Tom Pendergast's angora government in Kansas City that for all these years has been prostituting elections". The Governor spoke yesterday afternoon at the closing session of the convention of the Republican Editorial Association of Missouri.

"Reed's high sounding defense of the Fourth Amendment to the constitution is the result of his sincere desire to serve his constituents, consisting, to some extent at least, of moonshiners and bootleggers" the Governor added: "He seems to forget that there are 18 other amendments to the constitution or that there was in the beginning a constitution which could be amended. He doesn't say anything about the constitutional guarantees for a clean election. I hope we will all of us insist upon his coming out from behind the Fourth Amendment and telling us what he thinks of the entire constitution.

"The Fourth Amendment, which protects every man in his home, making his home his castle, is one to which I heartily subscribe, but we must not forget that it is but one part of the constitution."

Reviews Republican Record.

Gov. Hyde reviewed the accomplishments of the Republican State administration, recalled the pledges which have been redeemed and scored the Democratic politicians for holding up Republican administration measures through the referendum.

He declared that four vital problems confront the voters in this campaign; first, the election of an United States Senator; second, "shall the Supreme Court of Missouri be controlled by the politicians or by the Constitution, and the laws of the State?" third, the laws suspended by referendum which were intended to consolidate State departments and, fourth, the county unit school law.

In discussing the county unit bill the Governor gave many figures tending to show improved conditions in the schools under the full valuation assessment plan of his administration. These figures are given in detail in a statement released by the Governor at Jefferson City yesterday which are published in another part of today's Post-Dispatch.

The Governor said that the consolidation program with the budget system provided in another measure suspended by referendum would have saved the State $1,000,000 in the last two years. He said the reference of these bills was costing the State $175,000, and charged Democratic politicians with responsibility for what he termed the needless expenditure of $1,175,000.

"Vicious 5 Per Cent of Voters."

Speaking of the referendum itself the Governor said "there is no such thing as responsible government when a vicious 5 per cent of the voters can overturn the work of the Legislature during a three months' session."

Gov. Hyde, in telling what his party has done in the way of constructive legislation, said that there were now 45 water gauging stations in operation in the Ozark regions, collecting data to be used in inducing industry to locate in that section.

"There is more water-power in the Ozarks than in all of the New England states combined, yet New England has used that power to make it the industrial center of the nation," the Governor added.

Other speakers were State Senator Richard F. Ralph of Valley Park; Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd; Sam Hodgdon, Probate Judge of St. Louis County, and O. E. Janson of Wellston.

FINDS $580 IN OLD CUPBOARD

Twenty-eight $20 gold pieces, found in an old cupboard, which he had purchased for $1, by William Meers, a farmer living two miles west of St. Charles, Mo., was yesterday turned over by Meers to the administrator of the estate of William Schone of Black Jack, St. Charles County. Meers bought the cupboard from the Schone estate after Schone hanged himself in his barn Sept. 18. Schone, a 79-year-old recluse, who had a distrust of banks, was believed to have concealed a considerable amount of money about his home. A search after his death disclosed nothing of value.

Meers found the $560 Friday when he opened an old baking powder can he discovered in the cupboard.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE AGAINST 'DRAFTING' ELECTION OFFICIALS

20 Members, in Conference With Hyde, Object to Election Board's Method of Ignoring Selections.

GOVERNOR "WILL LOOK INTO MATTER"

Objectors Say "Importing" of West End Residents for River Wards Opens Way for Fraud in Voting.

Twenty members of the Republican City Committee, in conference last night with Gov. Hyde at the Planters Hotel, voiced objections to the plan followed by the Election Board in "drafting" election officials, instead of accepting the suggestions of the party committees for these positions, and in importing West End residents into downtown precincts as judges and clerks of election.

Congressman Newton and Lieutenant-Governor Lloyd attended the conference, which began with a dinner in Parlor B of the Planters. Reporters were not admitted to the gathering.

Gov. Hyde, after listening to the complaints of the committeemen against the Election Board's methods, said he would look into the matter. He said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, after the meeting, that the objection, as he understood, was to having imported officals in downtown precincts on the Republican side only, while the Democrats had their judges and clerks from within the precinct, thus giving them a local advantage.

Position of Objectors.

Members of the committee said their position was that the Election Board should accept the suggestion of the party committees unless, in the case of some person, there was a well grounded objection, in which case the Board should make another choice.

As to importing West End residents into river wards, they said that such imported judges and clerks would be handicapped by lack of acquaintance, and that repeating and frauds would be more likely under such circumstances.

Primary Under New Plan.

The primary, about which there has been comparatively little complaint, was conducted under the new plan, but the committeemen believe that an election would present very different conditions.

The Governor, Lloyd and Newton addressed the committeemen. Gov. Hyde spoke of the importance of electing the candidates for Supreme judgeships. Congressman Newton talked of the new tariff. The Brewster senatorial campaign was not mentioned at length. Gov. Hyde, however, is taking an active interest in Brewster's candidacy, and is trying to line up the St. Louis organization for Brewster.

M. A. KRAUS JOINS PARENTS IN JAIL ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Unable to Provide $1500 Bond—Mrs. Kraus Reported to Be Growing Weaker.

By the Associated Press.

POMEROY, O., Oct. 7.—M. A. Kraus, tonight occupies a cell in the Meigs County Jail along with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Krause, whose questionable financing methods are said to have netted them more than $300,000 from Pomeroy citizens, who, it is alleged, were lured into loaning them money on unsecured notes with the promise of big returns. The son was arrested late today on a charge of embezzling $1500 from the Pomeroy Building & Loan Co., of which he formerly was secretary. He had been arrested previously on a charge of forgery, but was at liberty under bond. He was unable to provide $1500 bond tonight.

Mr. Kraus tonight was reported by prison officials to be growing much weaker and scarcely able to speak above a whisper. Her throat is said to be partly paralyzed. To her new nurse she converses mainly in whispered German. She and her husband were separated tonight.

THREE MEN HOLD UP SHOE STORE, GETTING $150 TO $200

Robbers March Those in Charge and Woman Customer to Rear and Rifle Cash Register.

Three men, wearing handkerchief masks, and armed with revolvers, at 10 o'clock last night held up the shoe store of Isaac Wohl, at 1322 Biddle street, and took between $150 and $200 from the cash register.

Philip, Jacob and Adolph Wohl, sons of the proprietor, were in charge of the store, and Philip was fitting Mrs. Ida Bert of 1024 North Fourteenth street when the three men entered and chorused, "Everybody throw up your hands. Line up in the back, everybody."

One went to the register and two marched the Wohls and the customer to the back of the store. One of them started to search Philip Wohl, but the one at the cash register said, "Come on, we've got enough," and they ran out with a warning not to move for "10 minutes."

ANOTHER SPECIAL WAR FRAUD GRAND JURY IS ASKED FOR

Chemical Foundation Case and Bosch Magneto Sale Said to Be Under Question.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Another special grand jury to investigate war frauds is to be impaneled within a week. District Attorney Peyton Gordon has requested Chief Justice McCoy of the District of Columbia Supreme Court to assemble this jury to hear evidence in the Chemical Foundation case and to investigate the sale of the Bosch Magneto plant by former Alien Property Custodian A. Mitchell Palmer.

Special Assistant Attorneys General Hoover and Crim are to have charge of the presentation of evidence, it was said. The first special jury was dismissed last week without taking action on the principal war fraud scandals.

According to a further statement issued today by the American Legion Attorney-General Daugherty's failure to prosecute these cases is an even greater scandal. The legion charges that a $16,000,000 deal with a large Japanese importing firm in New York was hushed up and former investigators of the Department of Justice who uncovered evidence of irregularity in this case lost their jobs as a result.

RESOLUTION AGAINST PROPOSED STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Chamber of Commerce Sends Objections to Features of Plan to Constitution Convention.

A request that the State Board of Education, provided for in a new Constitution proposal, be given no supervision of schools in cities which now have full control over educational matters, was made in a resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce and forwarded yesterday to the constitution convention at Jefferson City.

The proposed change in the Constitution, which is said to have been approved by the Committee on Education for its report to the convention, is opposed in St. Louis on the ground it would destroy home rule of educational affairs. The amendment would make the members of the State Board elective, and give them supervision over all public schools of the State. The Chamber of Commerce resolution urged that the board be an appointed body instead of elective, thus removing educational work from politics.

Protests against including the new section in the revision of the Constitution have been forwarded to the Constitution convention by the St. Louis Board of Education. Members of the board declared such State control would divide authority, lower efficiency and deprive St. Louis of self-determination in school matters.

NEGROES IN ORIENTAL FANTASY

Urban League Will Present "The Eastern Gate" This Week.

A cast of about 50 negro men and women will present the second annual play of the Urban League, "The Eastern Gate," at the Odeon, next Thursday and Friday evenings. The play is described as an Oriental fantasy. Almost $3000 has been spent in making preparations for the production, the proceeds of which will go to the Provident Association for relief of the destitute.

J. Gerald Tyler, director of music at Sumner (negro) High School, who wrote some of the music for the Missouri Centennial celebration, has written three numbers for "The Eastern Gate," which will be directed by Harry McClain. George W. Jaeger painted special scenery for the show. The Urban League is a negro social service organization, affiliated with the Provident Association. George W. Buckner is executive secretary.

GIANTS TAKE THIRD STRAIGHT GAME FROM YANKEES, 4-3

Stupid Base Running Outstanding Factor In Defeat of A. L. Team

Smartness of the National League Club's Performance in Striking Contrast to Blundering of Losers — Victors Forced Breaks and Vanquished Made Them.

By Heywood Broun.

(Copyright, 1922.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Giants won their third game in the world's series today, but not without a good deal of help from the Yankees. The score was 4 to 3. As the Yankees have yet to win a game their chances seem slight. Only a series of perverse blunders could have kept them from victory today. They ran the bases like dancing mice, never stopping until destruction overtook them. During the entire game it seemed as if the strategy of the team were being directed by the Headless Horseman, but probably it was merely Miller Huggins.

The climatic conditions may have puzzled the Yankees. Several of the players know enough to go in when it rains, but as that privilege was denied them the limits of their judgment were exceeded and they floundered.

Although a steady drizle fell the game was almost mechanically perfect. Perhaps the Yankees would not have seemed so stupid if the Giants had not been so smart. The Giants forced breaks and the Yankees made them. On top of everything else luck favored McGraw's men a little, but they deserved it since every player on the team behaved as if he were a charter member of the reception committee appointed to welcome it. On the contrary whenever opportunity knocked at the door of any Yankee he promptly leaped up and jumped out the window. In addition to leaving undone the things which they ought to have done they were facile in doing the things they ought not to have done. There was not much health in them.

Yanks Throw Away Runs.

Occasionally they threw away runs by taking chances which were much too desperate and again they loafed when a little initiative might have saved the day. Indeed the Yankees did not fight as a good team should. They got away with a two-run lead in the first inning which ought to have been much larger but they wilted when the Giants passed them and their rally in the closing innings was much more furious than sound.

The most disgraceful play of the afternoon was made by Bob Meusel who almost certainly cost his team a tally by failing to run out a tap to Groh in the seventh inning. The Giant third baseman had an easy play in front of him and Meusel admitted it. He slowed down to a walk and when Groh threw low and Kelly fumbled Meusel could not get going again fast enough to reach first base in safety. A moment later Erin Ward drove a home run into the left field bleachers. If Meusel had only tried this would have tied the score.

In the ninth, needing only one run to tie, the Yankees made a double and a fine long single and yet failed to score. Every move which Miller Huggins made was wrong. The Giants only needed to allow the Yankees enough strategy and they were pretty sure to hang themselves. It now seems evident that the Yankees must be at least fifty per cent better than the Giants in any given game in order to win it. McGraw's club is a great one. Its ability is enhanced by both nerve and brains.

Hugh McQuillan was on the point of being blown completely out of the park on several occasions but a wonderful defense pulled him through. One of the stirring tales in the Bible relates how victory was achieved when two men held up the arms of the Prophet who led the Israelites. Eight men supported the right arm of Hugh McQuillan today. As a matter of fact he did some little supporting himself and contributed a two base hit at a critical moment.

Substitute Cunningham Makes Feature Play of Game on Ruth's Long Drive

Most vital of all the defensive deeds of the Giants was a miraculous catch by Cunningham in the first inning when it seemed as if the Yankees were going to decide the issue then and there. Cunningham lived up to the tradition that world's series glory is won by substitutes. The little redheaded outfielder would now be on the bench if Casey Stengel's Charleyhorse had not afforded him an opportunity to ride into action. During this first inning it seemed as if the Yankees had at last found a pitcher whom they could hit. Under a vague and uncertain light they leaped upon the speed which McQuillan served them.

Whitey Witt, who played a bang-up game, took a ball and then shot a single right past McQuillan's head. For an instant it was hard to see whether itwasn't the head which was shooting off into center field. Dugan had two strikes before he got a ball he liked and then he singled to left. Witt staying on second. McQuillan tried slow ones on Ruth and couldn't control the wet ball very well so he ventured a fast one. For the first time in this series Babe actually got hold of the ball. His drive was high but also mighty. It headed into dead center.

Falls, But Clings to Ball.

Cunningham was playing deep but he had to turn and run. Every now and then he would look back over his shoulder despairingly as if he did not know a ball could go so far. He and that drive seemed like parallel lines destined to meet only in infinity. But at last infinity came. Cunningham was not to be jilted after so long a chase. He stretched out as far as he could go and made the catch. The business of slowing up was even harder. Falling on his face, Cunningham's feet and legs kept going. He spun around on his neck like Fred Stone in an acrobatic act. Finally he came down again and slap against the wall of the center field bleachers.

It was impossible to hear the thud because of the cheering, but even the shouting of the 37,000 came to Cunningham like a whisper because he was so badly shaken up. They had to help him to his feet and induce him to give up the ball. Witt went to third after the catch and Dugan had ample time to have gone back to first and then on to second but he neglected to do so. Pipp hit a long one to right center and Witt came home and Dugan reached third. But Pipp himself foolishly tried for second and Young caught him a mile with a good throw to Bancroft. That error in judgment probably cost a run.

McQuillan Justifies Confidence.

Bob Meusel kept up the cannonade with a line single to right which scored Dugan. Bob stole second after two foul strikes had been charged against Schang and on Snyder's low throw he went to third. It seemed as if the case of McQuillan was hopeless, but McGraw knew better. He let him stay and he curved over a third strike on Schang. Thereafter he pitched beautifully although he was in grave danger in the ninth.

Carl Mays began for the Yankees and the Jinx which has been pursuing him all year followed him right into the world's series. It seemed just the day for the submarine pitcher and he would have been all right if only he could have thrown out the fifth inning. The two-run lead loomed large particularly as the rain persisted and even threatened to drown out the proceedings. The conditions under which the second game of the series was called were paradisical compared to today.

'Sand Lot' Luck Won for Giants, Says 'Babe' Ruth

One Hit Bounded Over Ward's Head and Mays Slipped Fielding Another in Fifth.

BAD COACHING HURT

Bambino Writes That Yankees Should Have Had Two More Runs in First Inning.

By Babe Ruth.

(Copyright, 1922.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—After Friday's game I wrote that every credit in the world belonged to the Giants. There wasn't an alibi in the Yankee clubhouse. There was nothing but an admission that we had failed to equal the Giants in every department of the game.

But today's game is another story. I have been in a lot of world series contests, and I don't remember where so much "sand lot" baseball luck figured in the scoring as was the case when the Giants scored their four runs in the fifth inning. After that frame the Giants never got as far as second base.

The Yanks started off in the first inning and lambasted McQuillan hard and far. Witt and Dugan hammered out ringing singles and I caught hold of one that drove Cunningham back to Eddie Grant's monument in deep center. Wally Pipp cracked a single past Kelly and Bob Meusel came through with one of his old-time wallops. But for Cunningham's marvelous catch and some bad Yankee coaching we would at least have had two more runs, but as it was, we drove two across with four solid blows, and don't forget that all this happened while the grass was comparatively dry and the Giants were at no disadvantage in the field.

Mudand Wet Grass Helps.

Everything went lovely until the fifth inning when mud and wet grass coupled with five Giant hits netted McGraw four runs. Look at the ball that bounded over Ward's head. I thought it was a cinch for him to nip Snyder at the plate. The ball took a hop on the treacherous turf and hurdled three feet over Ward's head, while Snyder went home standing up and Bancroft was safe at first. Groh then hit one to Mays that Carl would have ordinarily fielded with his eyes shut. But the first thing you knew, his feet shot out from under him and Heinie was safe. Outside of that one single inning, the Giants cut very little ice at the bat. Two hits before that inning and two later in the game was all they got.

It was the luckiest game the Giants have won in the world series this year or last. They won by the width of an eyelash with the Yankees clawing at them right down to the ninth inning.

And How's the Betting Now?

How's the betting now? Why it must be overwhelmingly against the Yankees. A man would be considered a fool to gamble on the Yankees to win the series now, unless he is influenced by sentiment alone, nevertheless nobody around the Yankee clubhouse is ready to quit. Outside of yesterday, the Yankees have been the equal of the Giants in every game.

Both Wednesday and Saturday one run and the luck of baseball robbed the Yanks of victory, while Thursday was officially a draw with Shawkey getting stronger every inning.

That leaves but one occasion on which the Giants have been our masters. Before discussing the possibilities of the Yankees winning the series, which of course the public now considers impossible, it is necessary for us to capture our first battle I am confident we will tomorrow and then make it two straight before the Giants recover from their premature congratulations.

Tennessee's Passes Win.

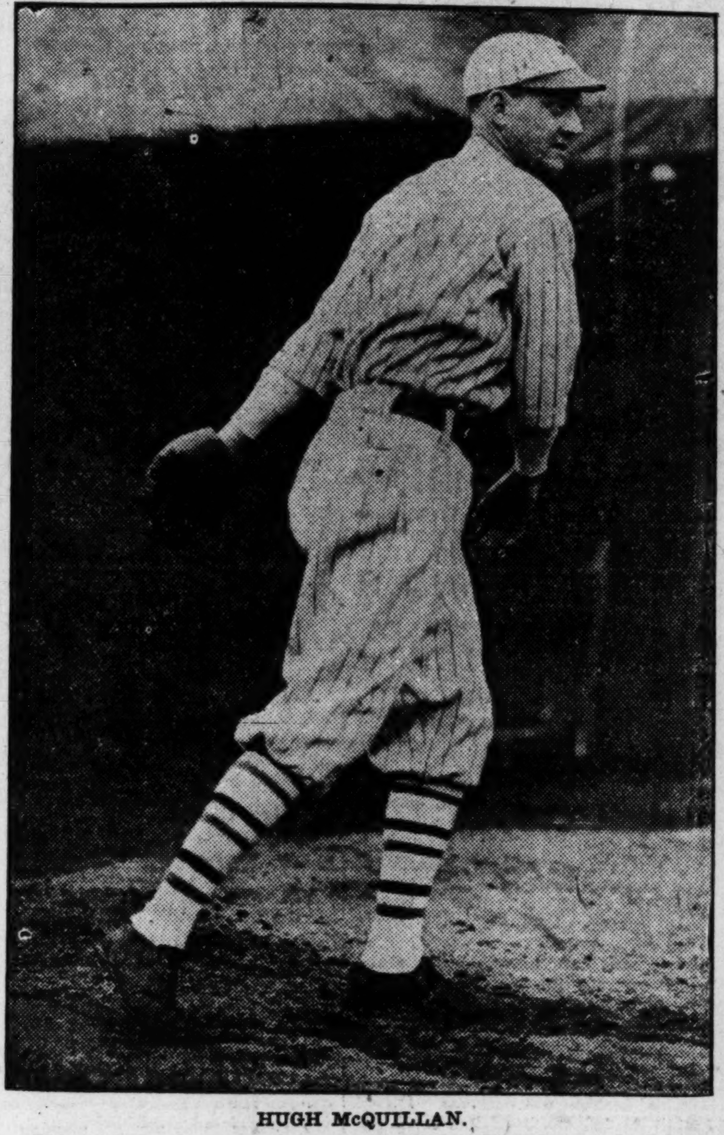
Another of McGraw's Surprises



HUGH McQUILLAN.

This right-hander, regarded as one of the Giants' second string flingers, as far as the world's series was concerned, was obtained from Boston in a trade, which sent players and cash to the Braves. In regular league games with the McGrawmen he did not startle the world, but he baffled the Yanks in all but the first inning yesterday.

O'HANLON MAY VISIT "BONESETTER" REESE

Because of the injury sustained by Cliff Brady last Sunday when he suffered a fracture of a small bone in his ankle during a baseball game, Manager Tate Brady of the Scullins finds himself unexpectedly at a loss for players. Special effort is being made to bring Tommy O'Hanlon, star halfback, into the game again. He was injured early last season and has not participated in a game since that time.

O'Hanlon is considering a trip to Youngstown, O., where the famous "Bonesetter" Reese holds forth. Tommy's injury is a severely sprained knee. A year's rest has not entirely repaired the joint. If he can return to the lineup this season the absence of Cliff Brady will not be felt so keenly. Joe Rooney is the forward who will probably be given a chance to fill Cliff's shoes.

CUBS AND WHITE SOX UNABLE TO PLAY THIRD GAME OF CITY SERIES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Cancellation of the third game of the city series between the White Sox and the Cubs for the championship of Chicago drew strong disapproval from Charles A. Comiskey, president and owner of the White Sox. The Old Roman declared that in his judgment the field was in condition to play, having been covered with tarpaulins last night and today to protect it from the rain.

However, the umpires arrived at the ball park shortly before game time, and after inspecting the grounds, claimed it to be unfit to play on. Their decision was final.

Thousands of ticket holders and fans started their journey to the ball park shortly after noon, and at game time were gathered about the gates trying to get into the park. Others formed in long lines about the new ticket booths outside the park, either to exchange their tickets for game No. 3, or obtain a refund, when announcement of the cancellation had been made.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—Rain prevented the playing this afternoon of the third scheduled game in the little world's series between Baltimore of the International League and St. Paul of the American Association. It will be played Monday.

The postponement was a keen disappointment to the players, as every reserved seat had been sold. In tomorrow's game Bentley will pitch for Baltimore and Sheehan or Benton for the Saints.

McQuillan's Game Great Exhibition, Asserts McGraw

Righthander Came Back Strong After His Poor Start in the Opening Frame.

ONE "BREAK" FOR GIANTS

Manager Writes That Bancroft's Hit in Fifth Was a Lucky Safety.

By John J. McGraw.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Another of my pitching staff came across today with a splendid exhibition of box work. Hugh McQuillan is entitled to no end of credit for his masterful display. The outstanding feature of his rare exhibit was that he came from behind after a start in the first inning that might have caused a less game fellow than Hugh to weaken.

In the Yankee's big inning, the first, they hammered Hugh for four clean singles and a terrific fly by Ruth. Did I take McQuillan off the mound? Not that anybody noticed. I hate to substitute a pitcher in an inning. I have done so, occasionally, but only when absolutely necessary. Especially do I hesitate to take that course in a world series. If I had done so today it might have spoiled a good pitcher. With 40,000 persons looking on, any player, pitcher or otherwise, feels more deeply his removal than if it was done in a regular season game. I had the confidence that Hugh would make good even after his poor start.

By keeping him in I feel that it will be the making of him. If I had not, the Giants might have lost a very valuable asset for the future.

Giants Know What to Do.

Of course, it will be said that the Yankees lost the game by "bone base running." While that may be true in a way, the fact remains that my fielders took due and proper advantages of the opening afforded them to retire the opposing base runners.

The Giants are not only a fine fielding team, but they also know what to do with the ball, to throw it where it belongs, to complete a play.

It will be noticed that we came from behind again. That is a habit my boys have had for a long while. Give them good pitching and they will pull through like the champions they are.

I will acknowledge that we had a "break" in the fifth inning when Bancroft's grounder (a very sharp one by the way) took a quick hop over Ward's head. That "break" gave us two runs, possibly, but if one goes through the play of the game carefully, it will be seen that a few of our hottest drives were right into Yankee hands. For instance, that one of Kelly's in the eighth inning.

Leaders Force the Breaks.

Horseshoes and "breaks" go hand in hand, but give me those players who are not looking for them for themselves, or worrying that the other fellows might get those kind of advantages. The teams that generally are in the lead, as a rule, force "breaks" to come their way.

When it is taken into consideration that today's game was started in a drizzle and from the second inning to its close, there was a drenching rain, the control shown by both pitchers, Carl Mays and Hugh McQuillan, and the fielding of both teams was, in my opinion, really remarkable. The Giants made but one error, and the Yankees none. There was lots of throwing done, too, as well as pitching with a wet ball.

While I am pleased as anyone can possibly be over the Giants' success, I am not gloating over my opponents' losses. However, for those propaganda experts, who predicted four straight wins for the Yankees, and thereby by their poor judgment influenced just as foolish people to take the "experts" dope seriously, I have no sympathy nor ever will. They always guess, and, as a general rule, they guess wrong.

M'Graw's Men Need One More Victory to Gain World's Championship

National Leaguers Overcome Lead by Pounding Carl Mays for Five Hits and Four Runs in Fifth Inning — McQuillan Effective After First Frame.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Rain drops and brain flops sent the New York Americans down to another defeat today in their almost hopeless fight with the local National Leaguers for the baseball championship of the world.

The Giants made four runs, just enough to win, because they were bright boys and fast on the muddy base paths, pelted with rain during every minute of the battle. The Yankees got only three runs because they thought and moved slowly, or not at all, in the high moments of their attacks.

Such breaks in luck as could be blamed upon the sloppy weather favored the Giants, who took quick advantage of them in a sudden fifth-inning spurt and produced all of their runs But the Yankees could have won the game in spite of the adverse fortune had they made use of their legs and heads with as much vigor as they put into swinging their heavy bats.

Tonight the National League pennant winners need only one more victory to renew their 1921 lease upon the title of world's baseball champions. The depressed Yankees find themselves up against a barrier that few think they can surmount. They must win four games in succession to escape another downfall at the hands of McGraw's men.

Yankees Start With Rush.

The Yankees started off with a rush and a furious pounding of the ball in the first inning, and gave their underhand pitcher, Carl Mays, a two-run lead. In the fifth the Giants began a hit-and-run attack. Helped along by freakish bounds of the muddy ball, this rally sent four runs across the plate.

Aaron Ward, the Yankees' second baseman, got his second home run of the series in the seventh, but there was no one on base, as there would have been had Bob Meusel used better discretion in running to first a moment before, and the Giants remained in the lead.

Once more in the ninth the Yankees were able to hit Hugh McQuillan hard enough to warrant a score, but they went down without one because of faulty base running.

Fate stuck out a mean, wet and slippery finger at Carl Mays in the fifth inning and marked him for defeat. Had the day been dry and the infield soil trustworthy, the underhand twirler would probably have shut out the Giants in that inning as he did in all the others he worked.

World Series Winners Will Divide $104,000; $14,000 for Brownies

IF the world's series money is divided on a basis of the receipts of the first four games, the players of the two contending teams will split $175,725.46, of which the winners receive $104,235.28 and the losers $69,490.18. If the Giants win, the individual share will be smaller than if the Yankees capture the next four battles. This is because the National Leaguers have 25 eligible players listed and the Yanks only 22.

Following is a table showing how the money would be divided:

Total players' share — $244,967.28.
Series players—$173,725.46.
Winning players—$104,235.28.
Losing players—$69,490.18.
Second place—$42,739.09; $21,369.54 each.
Third place—$28,492.73; $14,246.86 each.
Giants win, each $4169.41; Yankees win—$4737.97.
Giants lose, each $2779.60; Yankees lose—$3158.64.
Second place — $854.74 each man, figuring 25 to team.
Third place—$569.85 each man, figuring 25 to team; Cardinals and Pirates $284.92 because of tie.

Shares of the players of the Giants and Yankees are subject to change, according to vote of the athletes, as to whether or not some of the recruits will receive full shares.

Three of Five Safeties for McGraw's Men in Fifth of Infield Variety

But luck turned against him from the very start of the inning. Snyder, the first Giant at bat, sent a roller to short. Touching the mud, the ball took a queer bound and Scott could only knock it down, giving Snyder an infield hit. McQuillan then smashed a two-bagger into left field. Bancroft, the next batter, hit a short bounder toward Ward, who raced in, so that it seemed Snyder would surely be thrown out at the plate. But this ball, too, hopped in an unusual manner and went over Ward's head, both Snyder and McQuillan scoring.

The score had been tied and there was no one out. Mays began pitching hard to Groh. On the third pitch Groh also hit a light infield bounder that looked sure to be a putout, but the ball glanced off the pitcher's glove for another scratch hit. Frisch then sacrificed Bancroft to third and Groh to second.

Irish Meusel, the next batter, slapped the ball toward second. An ordinary bounce would have permitted at try for a putout at the plate, but the ball jumped high into the air and by the time it came down into Ward's glove it was too late to do anything but snuff out the batter at first base. Bancroft already having reached home. Next came a clean single to left from the bat of Pep Young, scoring Groh. The rally ended when Young was nipped off first.

Yanks Turn Down Chances.

The Yanks were always making opportunities for themselves only to turn them down in some careless manner. In the first inning they lost a run, when Pipp tried to run too far rather than not far enough, and was caught at second.

Bob Meusel began the Yankees' seventh turn at bat with a roller that Groh had trouble in handling. On the way to first Meusel slowed down, seemingly with the thought that it was no use to run. Otherwise he could have got there safely, for Groh's throw was bad and Kelly dropped it and had to step off the bag to pick it out of the mud. As it was, the play was very close. Only a few seconds later that Ward bombarded the bleachers with his home run, making a goat of Meusel.

Then came the ninth. Pipp doubled, but was trapped off second on Meusel's poke to Groh. Then Schang got a long single to left on which Meusel got to third. But Schang was not satisfied with one base. He tried to reach second and failed. Ward ended the game with a fly to Meusel, on which Bob Meusel could probably have scored after his brother caught Ward's efly.

Rain Always on the Job.

Even leaving the Yanks' base running out of it, the game would rank as one of the sloppiest in the history of the world's series. The rain was never weary. It began in the morning and continued all day.

Detailed analysis of the pitching shows that McQuillan and Mays worked on practically even terms. Each had one bad inning. McQuillan in the first when the Yankees bunched four of their eight hits for two runs, and Mays in the fifth, when the Giants registered hitless their nine hits for four runs. McQuillan held the Yankees hitless from the first to the seventh, while Mays allowed no more than one hit in any inning outside the fifth.

McQuillan pitched 113 times, 43 of which were balls and 26 strikes. Mays tossed to the plate 108 times in eight innings, and Jones, who worked in the ninth, pitched but seven times, all three of the men facing him going out on flies. Seventeen foul strikes and 10 fouls were nicked off Mays' delivery and but nine foul strikes and four fouls off McQuillan.

LAFAYETTE SURPRISES BY BEATING PITT., 7-0

PITTSBURG, Oct. 7.—A fumble in the third period spelled defeat for the University of Pittsburg eleven here today by Lafayette College, 7 to 0.

Pop Warner, the Panther coach, sent Hewitt, his big fullback, into the game for the third period. Hewitt plunged through the line for two first downs and it looked as if the Panthers were on the road to victory. But on a double pass, Winterburn, a substitute back, fumbled the ball. Prendergast, the fleet tackle, scooped u pthe pigskin and raced 20 yards for a touchdown. Brunner drop-kicked for the extra point. Brunner and Gazella starred for Lafayette.

Those So-Called Under Dogs Seem to Have a Bone to Pick With the Yankees

Mathewson Asks if Huggins Was Saving Bush for Some Exhibition Game After Series

Former Pitching Star Thinks That Mays Drew Mighty Tough Assignment — McGraw's Pet Play Helped Team Choke Off Threatened Rallies of Yankees.

By Christy Mathewson.
(Copyright, 1922.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—I thought Miller Huggings would surely start Joe Bush. Why not, pray? He's their pitching ace, insn't he, and it had to be a pitching ace to stop the on-rushing Giants. In my opinion Carl Mays had a tough assignment. He is essentially a slow curve ball man. With a slippery ball he didn't dare lob up a slow ball, for the simple reason that he couldn't control it. I counted 20 straight fast ones that he shot in before a couple of innings had passed. Bush wouldn't have been so handicapped. What were they waiting for—going to let Joe pitch an exhibition game after the series is over?

To me, Cunningham was one of the real stars of the game. Those two relays that he started, one on Pipp and the other on Schang, nailing both men at second won the game for the Giants and lost it for the Yankees.

The Yankee rooters went off the field probably gnashing their teeth over what they considered mad running on the bases. Possibly that may be true. They were desperate at that, but they fell prey to a play that I know McGraw harps on. He is ever schooling his fielders to whip the ball back to Bancroft full speed. The Yankees fell for it, and two men were cut down who might have brought over winning runs. McGraws insistance so far as that particular play is concerned, has about sewed up the series. "Mac" must have been tickled to death to see this play come through so well. It will take more than desperate base running now for the Yankees to win. They'll go out on the field tomorrow with the count of 3 to 0 staring them in the face. It's quite a burden to carry into a world's series game.

Of course Joe Bush is a tough bird to whip. A man who has piled up the record that he has this year is bound to be a hard one to down.

McQuillan Nervous at Start.

Each pitcher had a bad inning. McQuillan was nervous in the first inning. I know enough about the game to know that he was soaring in that first inning. It was to be expected perhaps. The boy was making his first start in the big baseball series. I noticed that when the catcher held the ball and was throwing the ball back to him, McQuillan could hardly wait for it to reach his hands before starting a pitch. And when the catcher gave him the signals he was all a-fever to get the ball over. But he rallied wonderfully. They made four hits off of him in that first inning, but after that he held them to four for eight innings. That's magnificent pitching for a youngster in these days of the fast ball.

Mays was a victim of several bad breaks in his troublesome inning. Two bad bounds helped those four Giant runs across, the one that Snyder bounced off Scott's glove and the one that hopped over Ward's head in the fifth. With better luck, both men might have been retired at first. Again Mays got the worst of the breaks when Heinie Groh, in ducking a bad pitch, accidentally hit the ball with his bat and beat the throw to first.

Another thing, Mays was fooled by McQuillan when he rapped out that two-bagger. Mays fed him one inside. Carl had possibly been told by scouts that this was McQuillan's weakness. After he fed McQuillan the first inside one he thought he had him and he flung the same ball back at him. "Mac" soaked it for two bags. Instead of making a pitcher look as a pitcher aught to—foolish he let "Mac" halp break up the game. Sam Jones tamed McQuillan at bat when he got into the game. Those were some of the bad breaks that came to Mays. Outside of that he pitched fine ball, under the handicap I have mentioned.

Groh Still a Great Star.

Groh still remains one of the greatest stars of this series. The Yankees promised them, but they have not bobbed up. Babe Ruth again failed to come up to expectations. I'll say this, though. His belt to the center field fence was an eye opener to me. It was the longest smash that I ever saw on a ball field.

McGraw seems to have the laugh on the other side. They had him worried about his poor pitching staff. Said that he'd have to use five pitchers to start every game. They tell me he is going to start Jonnard in the fifth game. That may be some sort of a josh. I think Nehf is the man. He is going good and I know that McGraw has his heart set on four straight. Therefore I can't see anybody but Nehf starting.

In a way one must admire the desperate chances the Yankees took in the fourth game. It takes nerve, but it doesn't always take the game. They are facing a smart ball club and ought to realize it. Ruth's attempt to steal home the other day was sheer desperation.

Moral Effect Disheartening.

I didn't expect to see plays like that attempted, especially in a short series of the best four out of seven. The games have been too close for any desperate work. Desperation breakes up real rallies nine times out of 10. In truth, the Yanks ought to have had seven or eight runs for themselves. They broke up their own rallies.

Of course, they'll fight to the last, but the moral effect of a 3 to 0 count is far more disheartening than it might appear, Bush or no Bush. He'll feel the weight of the burden himself tomorrow. It will take a whale of a ball team to win four straight, and that's what the Yankees face now. Jeff Pfeffer, who is with St. Louis, was telling me that he considered the Giants one of the most dangerous teams in any league.

"Right down the line they're nine tough guys to pitch to," was the way Jeff put it. After seeing these games I've come to the conclusion that Jeff is right.

When I pitched in the fifth game against the Athletics we had a count of three games to one on them. Just to prove that such a count is disheartening I'll say that one of the Athletics passed one of our fellows and mumbled, "Aw come on, get the game over with." The Yanks are in the same boat. It's like trying to make a broad jump across the East River. They might make it.

Danforth Blanks Mobile Team, 3-0

Umpires Throw Out Several Balls Pitched by Former Member of Browns.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 7.—Tulsa won the Western-Southern baseball championship by defeating the Mobile club this afternoon at Monroe Park, 3 to 0, due to the effective pitching of Dave Danforth, former member of the St. Louis Browns. Tulsa won four games and Mobile one.

The Oilers won two at home from the Bears, tied one at Dallas, Tex., and then came to this city and won two straight.

Henry, who started for Mobile, was taken out in the first inning after he walked three men and then threw the ball away into the bleachers to catch a player at third. Fulton succeeded Henry on the mound and was taken out for a pinch hitter, Sigman finishing the game.

The third score by Tulsa was due to a triple by Bauman and Stewart's single in the sixth inning.

The Mobile players were continually after the umpires to examine the balls pitched by Danforth in the game. A number were thrown out by Umpire Brennan.

The two teams played a fast fielding game, Niehoff and Cueto featuring for Mobile and Stewart and Baumann for the Oilers. Score:

Bases on balls—Off Henry, 3; off Sigman, 1; off Danforth, 1. Losing pitcher—Henry. Left on bases—Mobile, 7; Tulsa, 4. Umpires—Brennan at plate, Crosby at first, Pfirman at second, Hilmes at third. Time—2h.

FRENCH ARE ANXIOUS TO SIGN U. S. COACH FOR OLYMPIC SWIM TEAM

France is determined to make a fine growing in the next set of Olympic Games, which take place in Paris during the spring and summer of 1924. In addition to the ambitions the French have in the world of track and field, football, tennis and other sports they are now in the market for an American swimming coach, according to Allen H. Muhr, international secretary of the Olympic Games Committee, who is in this country at present.

Muhr said he had been instructed by the French committee to select an American swimming mentor before returning to France. The success of the American swimmers in the Interallied games in Paris in 1919 and one year later in the Olympic Games impressed the French officials in such a manner as to make them willing to loosen the purse strings to a considerable extant if this will insure them a good all-round representative team in the world of aquatics.

"Unless they come too high entirely for our pocket books I will engage a coach for our swimmers within the next few days," Muhr said. "Although we are pleased with the work and results obtained by our American track and field coaches in 1920 only French coaches will be engaged for the conditioning and preparation of our men [illegible] 1924."

"Bad Baserunning Cost Us Victory" Says Capt. Scott

Yankee Shortstop Accuses Teammates of Costly Oversight.

By Everett Scott.
Captain of the Yankees.
(Copyright, 1922.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The dumb base running and stupid baseball which beat us today and gave the Giants their third victory in the world's series leaves the Yankees standing with their backs to the wall, with just a gambler's chance to cop the pennant.

The Yankees showed every sign today of coming out of their batting slump, but the faulty base running broke up two promising rallies and kept us from scoring two and perhaps more runs. Ward did slam a homer, but just before that Bob Meusel was careless, and missed his chance of beating the ball to first on his hit to Groh. Kelly missed the throw and wasting a few moments in picking it up.

Had the fellows adapted their play to the wet condition of the ground and done better base running, the Yanks would have had an easy win.

Had we won the contest we would have an even chance, I think, for with the Yanks out of their slugging slump they don't mind a handicap.

Because it is such an important game in the series to lose, I want to point out a few of the plays that beat us.

Boner No. 1.

In the first inning Witt and Dugan singled. Babe hit a tremendous fly to center, on which Cunningham ran back to the fence, catching it, but falling down and rolling over a couple of times. Proper base running would have had Witt scoring and Dugan going from first to second after the catch. As it was, Witt went to third and Joe stayed on first. Pipp then lined a hit to center, scoring Witt, Dugan going to third, but Pipp fell into a trap and was caught at second when Bancroft cut off Cunningham's throw to third. This was bad base running, especially as the grounds were too wet to secure good footing.

Meusel singled, scoring Dugan, so if Pipp had not been caught we would have had another run and only one out.

In the ninth we had a great chance at least to tie the score. Pipp led off with a two-bagger, Meusel came up, and the right play was to get Pipp over to third some way. First he tried to bunt, fouling off the ball. Then he got the hit sign, but instead of hitting back of the runner to right field, Bob hit a grounder to Groh and Pipp was caught between bases. The same ball hit behind the runner would have advanced Pipp to third.

Then Schang came up and lined a hit to center, Meusel going to third. Schang fell for the same play that Pipp did in the first, and was caught at second. This proved fatal as Ward hit a long fly that would have scored Meusel had Schang played it safe.

With men on second and third, and no outs, it is customary to play the infield back and give the other team a run, providing the ball is hit to second or short. Bancroft hit a bounder to Ward in the fifth. Instead of playing it safe, Ward charged in on the ball with the intention of catching the runner at the plate, a dangerous play at all times.

Just as he got into position to get the ball it took a bad bound and went clear over his head, scoring both runners. Had he played it safe, the ball would have been on a nice bound and an easy out. Later both Bancroft and Groh scored, giving the Giants enough to win.

That is the sort of playing which lost for us.

Despite the overwhelming odds, the Yankees will go out tomorrow without loss of heart in a fighting effort to overcome their big handicap.

PLAY-BY-PLAY ACCOUNT OF THE FOURTH CONTEST

FIRST INNING.

GIANTS—Bancroft got a single off Mays' glove. Mays threw out Groh. Frisch lined to R. Meusel. Scott threw out E. Meusel. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Witt sent a sharp single to center. Dugan singled to left, Witt stopping at second. Ruth flied to Cunningham and Witt went to third after the catch. Ruth's drive missed going into the center field bleachers by a few feet. Witt scored on Pipp's single to right, but Pipp was out trying for a double, Cunningham to Frisch. Dugan reaching third. Dugan scored on R. Meusel's hot liner to right. R. Meusel stole second and went on to third on Snyder's wild throw. Schang struck out. TWO RUNS, FOUR HITS, ONE ERROR.

SECOND INNING.

GIANTS—Young flied to R. Meusel. Mays took Kelly's easy roller and tossed him out. Cunningham walked. Dugan threw out Snyder. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Rain was falling hard when the Yankees went to bat. Ward flied to Young. Bancroft threw out Scott. Frisch threw out Mays. All the Yankee batters hit at the first ball pitched. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

THIRD INNING.

GIANTS—Schang threw out McQuillan. Bancroft walked. Groh flied to R. Meusel. Frisch sent a long drive to Ruth, who made a running catch. NO RUNS, NO HITS NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Witt flied to Cunningham. Groh threw out Dugan, making a nice stop and throw. Ruth got a base on balls. Pipp flied to Young. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FOURTH INNING.

GIANTS—E. Meusel grounded to Dugan. Young singled passed Pipp. Kelly forced Young, Pipp to Scott. Cunningham forced Kelly, Ward to Scott. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES — R. Meusel struck out. Schang sent up a high fly which Young took. Ward struck out. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

FIFTH INNING.

GIANTS—Snyder got a single on a drive which Scott was able only to knock down. McQuillan doubled to left, Snyder going to third. Snyder and McQuillan scored on Bancroft's single which hopped over Ward's head. Groh scratched a hit off Mays' glove, Bancroft going to second. Frisch sacrificed, Mays to Pipp. Bancroft scored when Ward threw out E. Meusel at first, Groh reaching third. Groh scored on Young's single to left. Young was caught off first, Mays to Pipp to Scott to Pipp. FOUR RUNS, FIVE HITS, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Scott walked. Mays fouled to Kelly. Witt hit into a double play, Frisch to Bancroft to Kelly. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SIXTH INNING.

GIANTS—Kelly fouled off seven balls and then sent a drive to center on which Witt made a fine catch. Dugan made a one-handed stop of Cunningham's grass cutter and threw him out. Snyder singled to Witt. McQuillan struck out. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Dugan popped to Frisch. Ruth fouled to Snyder. Bancroft threw out Pipp. NO RUNS NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SEVENTH INNNG.

GIANTS—Bancroft flied to R. Meusel. Pipp took Groh's bunt and touched first. Witt caught Frisch's fly without moving. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Groh took R. Meusel's grounder and threw him out. Kelly dropped the ball but recovered it in time to catch the runner. Frisch tossed out Schang. Ward got a home run into the left field stands, his second of the series. Scott flied to Bancroft. ONE RUN, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

EIGHTH INNING.

GIANTS—E. Meusel singled over second. Young flied to R. Meusel. Pipp took Kelly's grounder, touched first and then threw to Scott, who tagged E. Meusel as he slid into the bag. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Elmer Smith batted for Mays and struck out. Witt got a two-base hit to left. Dugan flied to Cunningham. Ruth popped to Frisch. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

NINTH INNING.

GIANTS—Jones went in to pitch for the Yankees. Cunningham flied to Witt. Snyder popped to Scott. McQuillan flied to Witt. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

YANKEES—Pipp got a long hit into right field for two bases. Groh took R. Meusel's grounder and Pipp was runned down. Groh to Bancroft to Groh to Bancroft. Schang singled to left and was out stretching it, Cunningham to Bancroft to Frisch. R. Meusel reaching third. Ward flied to E. Meusel. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

SHRINE TEAM TO MEET BEACON NINE TODAY

Because of inclement weather yesterday, the scheduled championship baseball game between the Shrine team and Moolah Temple and the Beacon Lodge team was postponed until this afternoon. Sportsman's Park will be the scene of the encounter and the starting time is 3 o'clock.

Proceeding the ball game there will be drills by the Moolah Temple patrol and drum corps and by the De Molay drill team. These exercises will start at 2 p. m.

Returns from today's world series game will be posted on the scoreboard.

Sooners Beat Frosh.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NORMAN, Ok., Oct. 7.—Sixteen hundred howling, frenzied freshmen of the University of Oklahoma created a din of noise this afternoon on Boyd Field, while their class football squad was battling the Varsity Sooners to a dead standstill and at times plowing through the Sooners for great gains.

The freshmen were defeated by the low score of 7 to 0 and that score made when Schaffer, Sooner center, intercepted a forward pass for a touchdown.

Drew to Try Comeback.

Howard Drew, the Springfield, Mass., flash, will try a "comeback" as a sprinter. The colored flyer left the competitive ranks two years ago to practice law.

KANSAS AGGIES WIN FROM WASHBURN, 47-0

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 7.—The Kansas Aggies overwhelmed Washbprn, 1921 champions of the Kansas Conference, by a score of 47 to 0, in the opening football game of the Agricultural College season here today.

The Aggies second team was sent in at the middle of the second quarter, but the first string men returned to the game in the third period.

The visitors never were in the Aggie danger zone. Seven of Washburn's nine first downs were the result of Aggie penalties.

Tacoma Speedway Is Sold.

By the Associated Press.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 7.—The Tacoma speedway was today sold at the receiver's sale to Walter C. Baldwin, who gave $3850 in cash for the property and assumed $12,000 in obligations. He was the only bidder. Baldwin conducted the automobile meet last July 4 under lease from the receiver. The annual races are expected to be continued under the new ownership. More than $100,000 has been invested in the speedway track, grand stands, fences and other equipment.

Wisconsin Wins Easily.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 7.—Wisconsin overwhelmed Carleton College, 41 to 0, today, in the Badger's first football game of the season. Without resorting to intricate plays Wisconsin crashed through the Minnesota team for six touchdowns, and Tebell kicked goal five times.

Yankee Blunders Won for Giants, J. E. Wray Writes

Pipp, Alone, Prevents Two Runs by His Bone-Headed Work on Base Lines.

had settled down over Manhattan Island and the heavens threatened to weep at any moment. At times it drizzled and then it lightened. Sometimes it rained and threatened to create a parallel with the series of last year, when rain intervened with the Yankees owning two victories to none for the Giants.

Fans Undismayed by Rain.

Threatening weather meant nothing in the life of the world's series fans, and when the game began, with the rain coming steadily down, the vast grand stand seemed as well filled as on previous days, while, almost umbrella-less, some 12,000 bleacherites sat soaking, unmoved, until the last out was made.

The Yankees opened the first phase in their half of the initial inning with an onslaught on McQuillan. It was some onslaught, Bo. Witt hit a scorcher over the pitcher's head for a base and Dugan followed with a clean single to left. Sharp fielding held Witt on second. The big throng of Yankee supporters began its war chant right there—for the mighty "Babe" Ruth was advancing to the bat, a somewhat shrunken idol, but one still had hopes for him.

Up floated one of the slow ones that McGraw's policy had decided was the proper pitch to foil Babe. It was a ball. Two more floaters followed and then came a swift shot, breaking on the outside. Babe met it with a crash and the ball soared straight out to the center field fence. There was a doubt about it falling safe, and Witt held his place on second. Sure enough, it fell into the maw of the center field guardian, near the fence, but Witt scooted for third after the catch.

Yankees' First Blunder.

It wasn't a home run, but the crowd gave Babe a hand for his contribution. Pipp then landed on a first pitch for a hit that drove Witt home with the first run of the game and sent Dugan to third. But right here the first mistake of the Yankees developed. There was no need for Pipp to take chances. McQillan was on the run. Every one of the first four men up had landed solidly. There was every reason to believe the Giants' hurler would be batted from the box.

But that idea didn't penetrate Mr. Pipp's thought tower. Rounding first he sped on toward second and was thrown out, as he deserved to be. Mark that down as base running blunder No. 1—one of several during the game that hurt the Yanks.

However, the crowd was not in a critical mood. A run was in, a man was on third and Bob Meusel, with his big bat, was up. Hooray! A mistake or two doesn't matter when you have the enemy on the run. But it did. For Meusel came through with a single, a clean hit, scoring Dugan. Had Pipp remained on first there not only would have been two runs in, but only one man would have been out, with runners on first and third! A long fly would have scored a third man and three runs then, with what happened later, would have tied the old ball game.

Schang Waits Too Long.

But with two down Schang waited too long, was called out on strikes, and the Yankees sat down. They were fairly well satisfied at that, for it appeared that at last they had found a pitcher they could it.

And then, without warning, everything went on the rocks in the fifth inning. It was raining very hard. For several innings it had appeared that the umpires would surely stop the game. The ball was difficult to control and the Yankee defense was beginning to act with a lack of confidence in handling the ball that boded trouble.

Mays Works Own Undoing.

But, in the end, it was Mays himself and some "horseshoes" for the Giants that caused the cataclysm.

Snyder had singled to start the fifth, which in itself was nothing to worry about. But Mays himself laid the foundation of all his troubles when he tried to pitch one past McQuillan. Pitchers should be "easy," as batsmen; but a World's Series is no occasion to take liberties with anybody. But Mays did and McQuillan proceeded to prove that eternal vigilance is the price of success, as well as of liberty.

McQuillan slammed the "cripple" for a hard two-base hit to left which eluded Ruth momentarily. But Babe's mighty arm pinned Snyder to third base.

Two on, none out and the head of the batting list up, with the enemy only two runs away. Can't you hear that gallant, but drenched $5,000 roar?

Enter at this time, from the right, David James Bancroft, of the Giants; also one large horseshoe, invisible, but present. Mr. Bancroft jockeyed and posed and Mr. Mays fiddled and refused a signal or two; and finally Bancroft swung.

He hit an infield bouncer of no great speed. It was headed right for Aaron Ward and it was possible that the runner from third might be cut down at the plate. Ward was in front of the play and set for the throw. Ten feet from him the ball hit the ground and, as it rose, it took an unusual bound and just cleared the finger tips of the surprised second baseman, rolling on to the outfield, while Snyder and McQuillan sped homeward with the tieing runs.

The End Was Not Yet.

And the worst was yet to come.

That worst was another "horseshoe" for the Giants.

Two were in, none was out, a runner on first and Groh, of the bottle-shaped hat and the peculiar stance, was up—Groh, the most consistent hitter and fielder on either team during the series.

Groh swung. He did not hit the ball squarely. It rolled weakly out to Mays. He stooped to grasp it. It was wet and slithered away from him like an eel. Pipp recovered it, but Groh beat him to the bag.

It was not an error, and it was not a hit, though it went as one. It was one of those indefinite but all-powerful factors known as a "break"—freaks of fortune that win and lose ball games.

Frisch then sacrificed and the stage was again set for tragedy—a Yankee tragedy. Bancroft scored when Emil Meusel rolled out to Ward and Young then singled and drove in Groh with the fourth run of the inning. It gave the Giants a 4-2 lead.

It mattered not that the Yankees picked Young off first and ended the inning. The Giants had, for the third time during this series, pulled their trick of unloading their entire punch into one inning.

Today, with McQuillan going strong, the cluster of four appeared to be enough to win the struggle. McQuillan was master for the next two innings and, like Mays, who had regained his poise, was almost unhittable. The Yankee stock and Yankee mercury at this time were down almost to zero.

Then, with two down in the seventh, a second and appalling piece of stupidity happened. "Bob" Meusel hit a rap down to Groh. [illegible] instead of putting his head down and digging out for first for all he was worth, eased up and looked around to see what Groh would do with the play. Groh did just what might have been expected. He scooped up the ball and threw to first.

But here tragedy stalked in for Mr. Meusel.

First Baseman Kelly [illegible] the throw and lost a sufficient [illegible] of time in retrieving the ball to allow Meusel to reach the base safely had he properly run out the play.

Meusel was out, instead, and immediately afterward Ward hit a home run with none on base.

Had Meusel done his best the score would have been tied then and there.

Pipp was up. Remember Pipp who, in the first inning, spoiled a third run chance for the Yankees—a run that would have sent the teams into a ninth inning tie. Instead the Giants had a run lead.

Pipp's Second Blunder.

This self-same Pipp, then, [illegible] out a double to right and promptly went to sleep at second base. [illegible] tried to bunt him to third, but [illegible] Meusel then swung heartily at the next pitch. The ball rolled to Groh, on the third base line [illegible] the play right in front of him. [illegible] either lost his sight or his mind [illegible] started for third base!

Too late he saw that Groh had the ball. Pipp was run down. A [illegible] of dismay went up from the [illegible] and many disgusted fans [illegible] shouting derisively at the Yanks.

But the American Leaguers [illegible] still fighting. Shang singled and sent Meusel all the way to [illegible] which appeared very sweet to Yankee partisans.

Taht is to say, it looked so [illegible] second. But Schang turned it [illegible] gall when he tried for second [illegible] although it was plain to every [illegible] that he had no chance. It [illegible] even close. The ball was there [illegible] ing as he slid into the bag.

That was the final base running "boner" of the day. With [illegible] down Ward's fly to left would have scored the tying run, had [illegible] used any part of his anatomy [illegible] legs.

Some players have not yet discovered that a head was given them to think with—a circumstance which explains why the Yankees are three games down to the Giants in this World's Series special.

Large Gamblers From All Over The Land Now Wants Me to Pick 1923 Winners, Lardner Says

Ring Writes That He Hopes the Bird That Took His Bet Will Give a Large Share of the Receipts to the Home for Left-Handed Pallbearers.

By Ring Lardner.
(Copyright, 1922.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—We will start this article out with a little heart interest story which come off right after today's [illegible] battle at the alleged Polo Grounds. I had been invited to ride down in Harry Frazee's costly motor, which was parked inside the grounds and down near the Athletes' dressing rooms. We found the car all right but it took quite a wile to find the driver as he had bet on the Yankees. He finely showed up when everybody but we and 2 or 3 of the athletes had went home. Right outside of the gate was a couple of little kiddies, standing in the drooling rain to catch a glimpse of the heros as they drove out in their costly limousines.

Well, friends, in addition to the driver the inmates of our car was myself, Frankie Callahan, Mr. Frazee, the proprietor of the car, and a friend of his named Mr. Belwin. Well, friends, the two little kiddies seen us coming and one of them advanced dangerously close to the car so as to get a good look. He got his good look, and turning to his companion said: "There's nobody in there."

Reaching my costly office along about the time when people who had bet on the Giants was enjoying their supper I found the joint flooded with telegrams from large gamblers all over the land. Everyone of them wanted to know who I was picking to win the world series of 1923.

Those Terrible Gamblers.

Speaking about gamblers, I suppose you fans has read all the columns that has been wrote in regards to the betting on this serious. One day the boys come out and say that the Yankees is a big favorite for this game or that game and the odds is 7 or 8 to 5. The next day the odds has shifted a little and the big gamblers is offering 6 to 5 with the Giants favorites. You naturally suppose that somebody has offered to lay a few paltry hnd thousands on this club or that club and the supporters of the other club has eagerly snapped it up.

Well friends the real dope as for as I been able to find out is that some plunger from the fashionable lower East Side has laid 70 cents vs. 50 cents, and when the odds is 6 to 5 in favor of the Giants it means that some other plunger has laid three 2-cent stamps vs. 2 ones and a 2.

Once in a while you read that Mr. Strauss has got a commission of 10 thousand smackers to lay on the Giants and same can be grabbed by going over to his place in Brooklyn. But when you get there you find out that his place is a shoe repair shop and the proprietor's little gal is going over the floor with a broom trying to find the only dime in the joint.

A Real Worthy Charity.

John Doyle, the Sage of Broadway, is the boy around the Metropolis that knows what [illegible] is really made on big sporting events and John's dope is that outside of my enormous wager which runs up into dozens of dollars, the total amount bet on the here serious is $86.20. As far as I been able to find out I am the only guy in NY City that is more to be pitied than censured in regards to this serious and all I can say is that I hope the bird that took my bet will do what I was going to do in the case I copped, namely give a large share of the receipts to the Home for Left Handed Pall Bearers.

The lease said about the game out there to-day, why so much the better. After the 1st inning we was afraid that the game would be stopped on acct of rain. After the first half of the 5th innings we was afraid it wouldn't. I will not make no further comments in regards to how the game was played only to state that it had been played in St. Louis and some of the athletes had stopped a pop bottle with their bean they would of been showered all over the ball yard.

No Benefits for Ring.

The boys is now talking about playing a extra game for the benefit of this writer but I don't want no benefits played for me but if they are looking around for some worthy charity to who to give the receipts of the tie game, why my telephone number is Great Neck 103.

It ain't only betting on the Yankees that is expensive in a series like this kind, but coming to N.Y. every day keeps a person wearing different shirts and the lanudry bills is going to mount up something terrible. When there aint no world serious in progress or nothing else going on to bring me to town, why they's sometimes whole months passes when I don't have to change buttons from one costly garment to another.

Billikens, Defeated, 26-0, Hold Notre Dame Team to Six Points in First Half

St. Louis University Football Team Battles Gamely in the Face of Adverse Conditions — Miller of Notre Dame Runs 94 Yards for Touchdown.

By Joseph F. Holland,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 7.—St. Louis University came and saw, this afternoon, but failed to conquer the high-powered football machine which carries the 1922 hopes of Notre Dame. On the contrary the Billikens suffered a 26-0 defeat upon a wind-swept, roan-soaked field. They were beaten and beaten decisively. But 6000 spectators, who allowed a wonder football struggle to make them forget that they sat through a steady drizzle, will cheerfully admit that Notre Dame was not nearly 26 points better than St. Louis.

Three long runs, which contained their element of good fortune, gave Notre Dame three of its four touchdowns. The other was gained through a pretty exhibition of the vaunted power of Rockne's juggernauts.

The fierce opposition that St. Louis put up in the first half completely surprised Notre Dame. Thomas, the Indian quarterback, tried every artifice at his command to shatter the Blue and White defense in this period, but he and the powerful machine he directed failed dismally.

At the end of the first half Notre Dame led by a score of 6—0. And that single score represented a single slip in the superb defense that the Billikens threw into every play. Defense was the keynote of the Billikens' game. Their attack was pitiful. Their comparatively light back field tried time after time to smash the impregnable force in the heavier Notre Dame line. But it was futile. They could not gain and they failed to make a first down during the entire game. It was merely a question of giving Notre Dame a 10-pound a man advantage in weight and holding them down as best they could.

Billiken Defense Strong.

Notre Dame made first down an even dozen times. But when they reached the 20-yard mark of the Billikens, the Blue and White defense tightened and refused to yield. The line charged with speed and ferocity and the secondary defense was in on every play to stop the Notre Dame back who succeeded in plunging through the line.

It was such a wonderful defense that Maj. Griffith, the "Landis of the Big Ten," who umpired, rushed to Coach Steve O'Rourke after the game to congratulate him upon the excellent play of his lighter team and the fine team spirit which dominated every move.

One hundred yards was twice as much territory as was needed for this game. Fifty yards of football field would have been enough. Virtually all the play was centered in the Billikens' half of the field and they were never in possession of the ball in Notre Dame territory. Theirs was a constant fight against a superior team.

The first score of the game came late in the first quarter. St. Louis had the ball and was forced to kick. Hannegan sent one of his beautiful spirals down the field and Thomas, catching the ball on his 48-yard line, dropped in behind wonderful interference and was not downed until he reached the Billiken three-yard mark. It was the first time Notre Name really threatened.

Castner Scores First Touchdown.

Crowley plugged center for two and then Castner, the famed fullback, plunged across the intervening yard for the score. It was Thomas' run which gave that score and he narrowly escaped the clutches of Avis near midfield.

Again St. Louis tightened. Notre Dame would take the ball down the field and lose it on downs or allow Castner to try one of his drop kicks. Then the Billikens would try two or three plays and finally send Hannegan back to kick. Incidentally, O'Rourke showed a rare star in Hannegan. He punted beautifully and played a brilliant defensive game. He was all over the field all the time, backing up the line, caring for his own territory and encouraging his teammates.

The first play of the second half sapped a deal of the Billiken morale, which had been built up by holding Notre Dame safe for the first half. Hannegan kicked off to the Notre Dame five-yard line to Don Miller. The halfback fell into that "pocket" of interference and ran behind it for 95 yards as it bowled over tacklers, clear to the Billiken goal line for the second touchdown. It was the "break" which sent Notre Dame on to a greater score. Shortly thereafter Miller broke away again and skirted left end for 35 yards and another score. This time Castner kicked the goal.

The fourth touchdown was made by Stuhldreher at the conclusion of a steady march down the field. He shot through the line for a five-yard plunge that carried him over with the final score. Castner's goal made it 26. Notre Dame was powerless in the final quarter.

Coach O'Rourke Pleased.

St. Louis really impressed with its defense. If O'Rourke can build an attack to match it, the University should have one of its greatest teams in history. With the exception of three instances it held the powerful Notre Dame attack well in check.

In a baseball game, figured upon the basis of earned runs, St. Louis would have been beaten, one to nothing. That's how their defense looked against the powerful Notre Dame machine.

Lineup and Summary

Substitutions—Notre Dame: McNulty for Carberry; Mayl for Vergara; Stuhldreher for Thomas; Crowley for Bergman; Miller for Maher. St. Louis—Harlow for Kelly; Krug for Thornton; Kalkman for Quirk; Betz for Geraghty; Schaefering for Eggler; McConachie for O'Leary; Halloran for Harlow; Dolan for McCarthy; Moder for Dolan; Quielgey for Klausner.

Mistake not this revamped eleven which Knute Rockne has to offer. It is a marvel of smoothness. There is not a rough spot in its play. The interference given the man carrying the ball is perfect. But St. Louis broke through that interference and nailed the man many, many times.

Billikens Display Fight.

The St. Louis line played lower than its opponents, charged faster and fiercer and by sheer football fight overcame a more capable and heavier antagonist. Degree, Notre Dame star, suffered a wrenched shoulder in one of the numerous mixups. Castner was stopped entirely. He failed to do anything sensational against the Billiken defense. The wet field no doubt handicapped him.

Geraghty was the line star. He played a rousing center and was often down on kicks to tackle the man with the ball. He and Hannegan were the best football players in the Billiken line up today. Two hundred St. Louis University students were up to see the game.

Only one forward pass was attempted, that by Notre Dame, and it failed.

Notre Dame may play St. Louis at St. Louis on Thanksgiving day of next year.

GENERAL PUBLIC WILL BE WELCOMED AT HARVARD GRID GAMES THIS FALL

BOSTON, Mass.—In many quarters the belief exists that "the public" will not be welcome at the Harvard football games this fall. This is far from the true situation. Rather, in order to avoid a recurrence of the unplesantries of last fall, it has been decided to dispense season tickets only through the medium of graduates. But that applies only to one side of the stadium. The remaining 30-odd sections are open to the world, and the Harvard authorities are not desirous of dictating to the visitors as to what team the east side spectators should cheer. Gentlemanly conduct is all that will be asked. The theory is to keep the Harvard sections for Harvard men or supporters for the physical comfort and peace of mind of all concerned.

More than 7000 season tickets were sold last year, and, counting a special type of ticket issued to undergraduates, there usually were more than 10,000 in the "rush seat" section. At times this group of ticket holders flowed into the bowl, but this fall it is planned to dispose of only enough tickets to fill the straight western side of the stadium, and only 5000 have been printed.

CENTRE COLLEGE RUNS OVER MISSISSIPPI U. TO THE TUNE OF 55 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

DANVILLE, Ky., Oct. 7.—Centre College marched through the University of Mississippi eleven here today running up a score of 55—0.

Two minutes after the whistle blew the "Praying Colonels" had scored a touchdown. About three minutes after play had resumed Hudnigs broke away for an 80-yard run resulting in the second score.

Capt. Red Roberts seemed to give the team renewed life. In the second half the game was played mainly by subs. the regulars being reserved for Harvard. Covington again proved he was capable of filling the famous "Bo" McMillan's shoes by tearing off several long runs and kicking a field goal.

Mississippi depended largely on punting.

Gene Sarazen Defeats Hagen In 72-Hole Match

American Open Champion Overcomes Opponent's Early Lead.

By the Associated Press.

RYE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Gene Sarazen crowned his wonderfully successful season today when he defeated Walter Hagen, 3 and 2, in their 72-hole match for the unofficial "world" championship of golf.

Sarazen, winner of the American open and professional golfers' association titles, was two down after he had battled for 36 holes with Hagen over the Oakmont Country Club course in Pittsburg, Friday, but he quickly overcame that lead in this morning's round and led one up when they started the final eight holes over the Westchester-Biltmore course in the afternoon. Once in the lead he refused to relinquish it.

Sarazen and Hagen hold the two most sought titles in professional golf and agreed that whoever was returned the loser in the 72 holes just completed would be given another opportunity and a second match will be arranged, with Chicago as the likely scene for the first 36 holes.

The final 36 holes was contested in adverse weather conditions. A mist which drifted across the course during the meeting turned into rain and later a downpour as they fought their way over the Westchester hills. The rain did not dampen the ardor of some 1000 fans who stuck behind the champions until the end.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—Baseball was forced to take a seat behind golf in the Pittsburg theater of public interest today.

Two out of every three telephone inquiries received at newspaper offices were for the results of the Sarazen-Hagen match.

Several prominent Pittsburg sportsmen declared tonight that far more money was wagered locally on the golf match than on the Giants-Yankees struggle and most Pittsburgers bet on Gene.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH ELEVEN TRIMS McKINLEY, 7 TO 0

St. Louis University High School scored a victory yesterday in its first out of the season by defeating McKinley High, 7—0. The game was hotly contested. but the wet field made the open game an impossibility. The young Billikens kept the ball in the Crimson territory except in the final five minutes of the game.

At that point, Halloran was injected into the McKinley lineup to succeed Schultz at right halfback. The newcomer celebrated his entry by capturing a St. L. U. pass from Rice and rushing down the field for a 45-yard run. McKinley gained heart and started a march through the Blue and White line, but with the ball on the 3-yard mark McKinley fumbled and St. Louis recovered, immediately kicking out of danger.

An exchange of kicks opened the second half and then Browning circled the McKinley end and placed the ball on the 15-yard mark. Fegan and Rice made 12 more and Quarterback Cooney then plunged through center for the lone score of the game. Rice kicked goal.

The lineup:

PRINCIPIA-YEATMAN GAME IS FORFEITED TO ACADEMY AFTER FIGHT

The Principia Academy team defeated the Yeatman football eleven at Francis Field yesterday morning, the game being forfeited to Principia in the third quarter after the Academy team had rolled up a score of 26 to 0.

eYatman had possession of the ball and was gaining ground when Fullback Hannegan of Yeatman and Casmir of Principia engaged in a fight. Referee Beck ordered both players out of the game. Yeatman refused to allow Hannegan to be put out of the game. After the customary two minutes Referee Beck forfeited the game to Principia with the score of 1 to 0.

Principia scored in the first quarter when Peltret ran 25 yards for a touchdown. In the second period Clark caught a forward pass from Berringer and ran 40 yards for a touchdown. He repeated the same play a few minutes later for another score. Garland kicked two out of the three goals and the score was 20 to 0 at the end of the first half.

At the start of the second half Yeatman kicked to Principia. Clark caught the ball and ran through the entire Yeatman team and scored another touchdown. Garland missed goal. Six minutes after this play the game was called. The lineup follows:

Principia (1).	Positions.	Yeatman (0).
Conway	Letf tackle	Yeck
Green	Left guard	Bowers
George	Center	Drews
MackDowell	Right guard	Pabst
Schulz	Right tackle	Hannibal
Niemoeller	Right end	Stremmel
Clark	Quarterback	Nichols
Peltret	Right halfback	Meyer
Rice	Fullback	Hannegan

Officials: Referee—Beck (Neb.); umpire—Kamp (W. U.); head linesman—Smith (Iowa); substitutions—Yeatman: Eames for Stremmell, Muchow for Hannibal, Rower for Nichols, Crowder for Robertson; Principia: Everett for Green, Stone for McDowell, Casmir for Niemoeller, Fitzgerald for Rice.

British Golf Body Adopts Amateur Rule

THE Royal and Ancient Club at St. Andrews has adopted definitions clearly outlining the British amateur status. The amateur rules are as follows:

An amateur golfer is one who after attaining the age of 16 has not:

1. Carried clubs for hire.
2. Received any consideration, either directly or indirectly, for playing or for teaching the game or for playing in a match or tournament.
3. Because of his skill as a golfer, received after Dec. 31, 1922, a salary or remuneration, either directly or indirectly from any firm dealing with goods relating to the game.
4. Played for a money prize in any tournament.

(Thme acceptance without payment of golf balls, clubs or golf merchandise will render a player ineligible to compete in the amateur championship.)

"A professional golfer is any player who has played for a money prize or who has received payment for playing or teaching the game."

Missouri Defeats Grinnell, 23-0, in First Valley Game

Al Lincoln and Fowler Lead Tigers' Smashing Attack Against Iowa Eleven.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 7.—The University of Missouri football team opened its 1922 Missouri Valley football championship race with a 23 to 0 victory here this afternoon, with Allan Lincoln and Fowler leading a slashing attack upon the crimson-jerseyed crew from Greenville, Iowa.

The Tigers took the jump in the first few minutes of play, and after Grinnell had made a single first first down in scrimmage, the Missouri backs took the ball from a punt and marched down the field through center and off the tackles for a counter within five minutes. Lincoln was the star of the attack, but he failed to make good his place kick try for point.

The second Tiger counter came a few minutes later in the same period, Knight interrupting a pass, and the Missouri varsity mixing straight football and a forward pass to Walsh to send the ball across. This time Lincoln's effort was good. In the same period Lincoln kicked a place kick from a difficult angle on the 40-yard line.

The final Tiger score came in the last period, Knight intercepting a pass from Haas in midfield and racing with perfect interference 40 yards for a touchdown. Again Lincoln's toe added a point.

The line-up:

Missouri (23).	Position.	Grinnell (0).
Haas	Left end	Watson
Lewis	Left guard	Wood
Smith	Center	Nourelius
Wertz	Right guard	Grimes
Bunker (C)	Right tackle	Datesman
Kershaw	Quarterback	Whitehill
Lincoln	Left halfback	Haas
Bond	Right halfback	Walters
Fowler	Full back	Baker

Referee—Grover, Washington. Umpire—McCrary. Head linesman—Reilly, Georgetown.

The score by quarters:

Missouri	13	3	0	7—23

Substitutions—Walsh for Hays, Adams for Bond, Hays for Walsh, Fowler for Adams, Keller for Vandyne, Palermo for Wertz, Walsh for Rays, Schmidt for Wood, Wood for Duke, Miller for Jansen, Dare for Grimes, Hobbett for Watson, Critchett for Whitehill. Missouri scoring—Touchdowns, Bond, Walsh, Knight. Points from touchdown, Lincoln (2). Field goal—Lincoln. Penalties—Missouri, 65 yards; Grinnell, 25 yards. Fumbles—Grinnell 2. Yards gained in scrimmage—Missouri 238, Grinnell 56. Yards lost in scrimmage—Missouri 5, Grinnell 13. Punts—Missouri 8 for an average of 40 yards, Grinnell 9 for an average of 38 yards. First downs—Missouri 12, Grinnell 5. Punts returned—Missouri 87 yards, Grinnell 120 yards. Forward passes—Missouri one out of 7 for 12 yards, Grinnell 2 out of 7 for 12 yards.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 7.—Overcoming a stubborn defense, the University of Minnesota defeated North Dakota University, 22 to 0, in the opening game of the 1922 collegiate football season here this afternoon. The game was played in a drizzling rain.

Pikers Display an Inferior Attack but Defeat Miners In First Game of Year, 14-6

Both Washington Touchdowns Scored From Defensive Formations, One Resulting From Fumble and the Other Being a Returned Punt.

The Washington University football machine, in its first appearance of the season, triumphed over the doughty Rolla School of Mines team at Francis Field yesterday afternoon by a score of 14 to 6, in an unusual contest.

Both of the Piker touchdowns were made from defensive positions, while three times their offense carried the ball inside their opponents' 10-yard line without being able to score.

The Pikers' first touchdown came early in the second quarter. Rolla had the ball on its own 15-yard line and a forward-pass formation was called for. Before Halfback McBride could throw the oval Capt. Denny of the Pikers broke through and tackled him. The ball fell from McBride's outstretched hand and Milt Koch scooped it up and ran the short distance for a touchdown.

Thumser Runs 30 Yards to Score.

The Pikers' second touchdown, in the third quarter, although more deserved, was also from a defensive formation. "Baldy" Thumser, playing quarterback in the absence of Lyle and Walsh, caught a punt on the Miners' 30-yard line and by clever dodging and good interference, crossed the Rolla line. Schnaus kicked both goals after touchdowns.

Thumser executed another brilliant run earlier in the game when he ran back a punt 40 yards, through the entire Miner team, only to stumble and fall 10 yards from the goal.

The Rolla attack was markedly superior to Washington's, the visitors making 13 first downs to the Pikers' 7. The Rolla attack was particularly powerful in the second quarter, when, shortly after the Pikers had scored, the Miners took the ball from their own 20-yard line and smashed, tricked and dodged their way through six successive first downs for a touchdown, Hasselman bucking over from the one-foot line for the score. The kick after touchdown failed.

Mathes of Pikers Injured.

Fullback Mathes of Washington and Fullback Hasselman of Rolla both had to be taken from the game on account of injuries. The Piker plunger suffered a recurrence of an old injury in the third quarter and Hasselman suffered a strained tendon.

About 3000 persons witnessed the contest, in spite of a steady drizzle which made the gridiron muddy and the slippery ball difficult to handle. A Rolla delegation of 300 rooters was present.

The strong Aggie team will invade Francis Field next Saturday. The game will open the Pikers' Missouri Valley Conference schedule.

The line-ups:

Washington.	Position.	Rolla.
Cantwell	Center	Zollar (Capt.)
Morton	Right guard	Bock
Denny (Capt.)	R. tackle	Commack
Hutton	Right end	Sanders
Thumser	Quarterback	Ledford
Greene	Left h. back	Springer
Claypool	Right h. back	McBride
Mathes	Fullback	Hasselman

Substitutions: Washington—Gould for Morton, Weber for Mathes, White for Hutton; Rolla—Nolan for McBride, Hoover for Nolan, Moody for Sanders, Nolan for Ledford, Whittlesy for Hasselman.

Officials. Don Henry (Kenyon, referee; Lambke (Northwestern), umpire; Jimmy Cook (Illinois), head linesman.

Argentine Four Beaten Again

Meadowbrook Four Wins From Crack Polo Team 5 to 4.

MEADOWBROOK CLUB, WESTBURY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—The American Meadowbrook "Big Four" polo team, with a sub in the lineup won its second straight victory today over the Argentine Federation team, open champions of the United States, ending the series of special international matches. The score was 5 to 4.

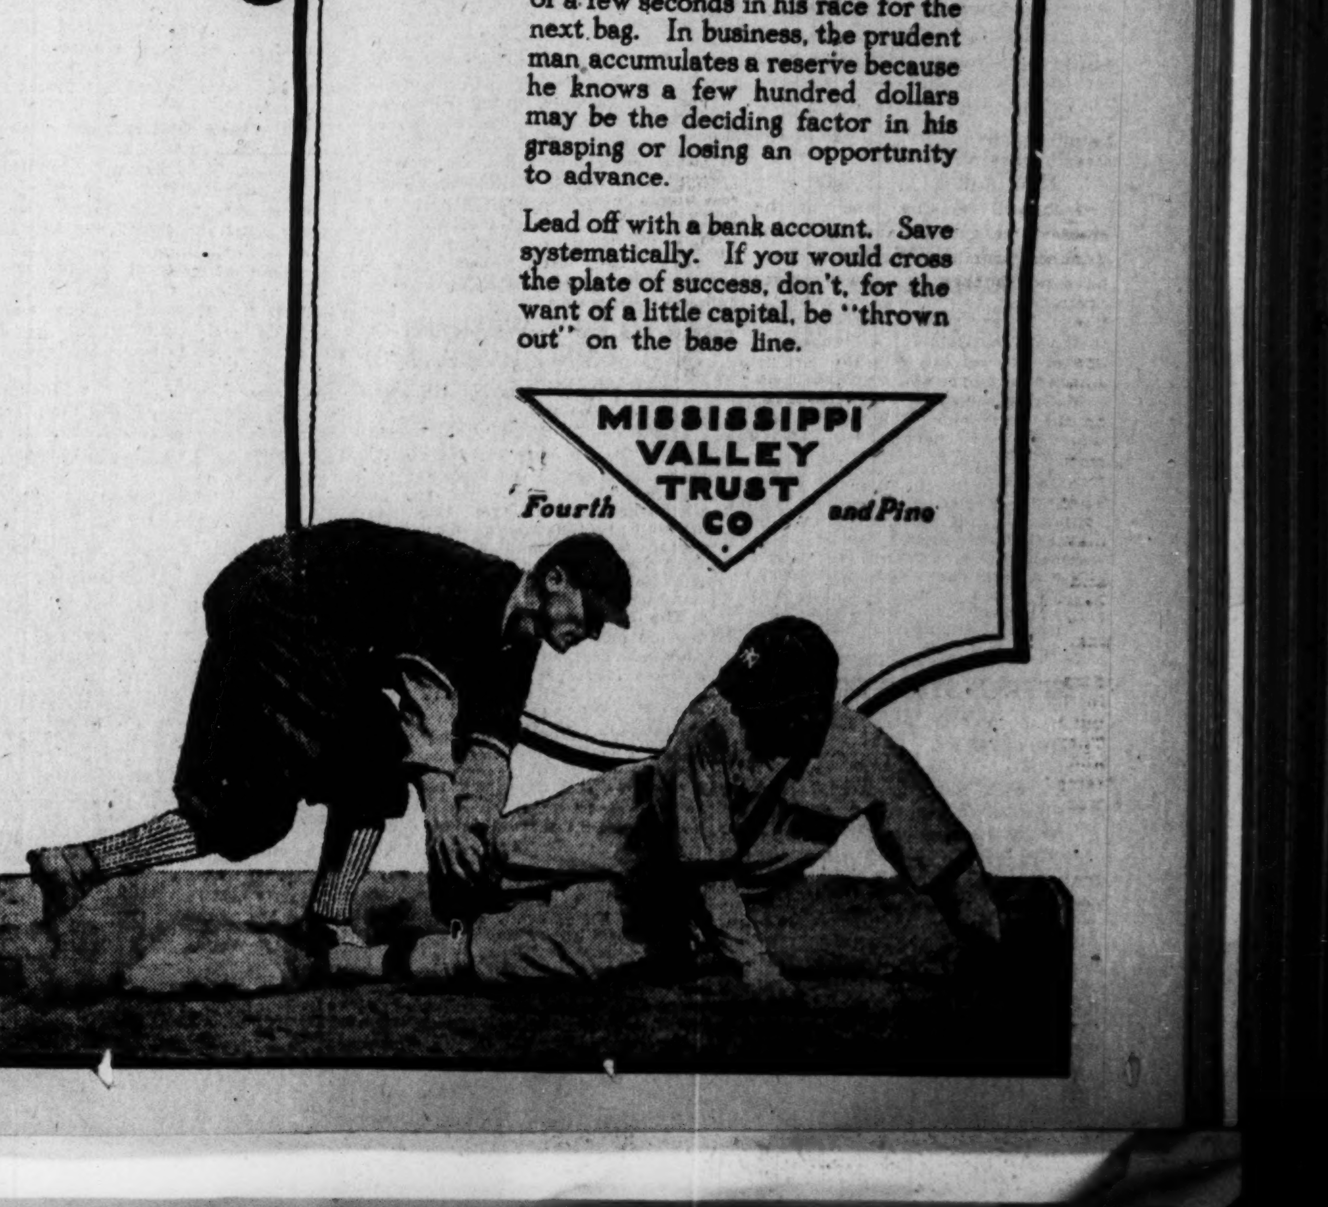
GRINNELL HAS STRONG STAFF OF COACHES

A. H. Elward, former Notre Dame star, who for the last three years has coached at the naval station at Hampton Roads, comes to Grinnell to head the strongest football coaching staff the Pioneers have possessed in several years.

"Red" Egan, who will be remembered as a Scarlet and Black letter man of several years ago, is to act as assistant varsity coach. R. W. Rogers, last year mentor of the freshman team, will again act in that capacity and will be aided this year by Paul McEachron, '11, who returns to Grinnell from the Porter Middle school of Tehchow, Shantung.

Quebec in Racing Body.

Quebec, it is reported, will build a one-mile racetrack and join the Canadian Racing Association next year. As a result many of the same horses that race at Blue Bonnets, Dorval, Windsor and other tracks under the jurisdiction of the Canadian association will appear at Quebec.



Safe!

The player who scores is the one who is safe on the bases.

In baseball, the runner leads off because he realizes the importance of a few seconds in his race for the next bag. In business, the prudent man accumulates a reserve because he knows a few hundred dollars may be the deciding factor in his grasping or losing an opportunity to advance.

Lead off with a bank account. Save systematically. If you would cross the plate of success, don't, for the want of a little capital, be "thrown out" on the base line.

18,000 Persons Watch Stagg's Warriors Smash Southerners' Line.

HALFBACK THOMAS STARS

Scores Two Touchdowns While Pyott Gets Two Field Goals.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Displaying polished team work and relying almost entirely on straight football, the University of Chicago machine rolled up a 20 to 0 score over the University of Georgia in the first game of Chicago's season today.

A crowd of 18,000 witnessed the intersectional game despite overhung skies which threatened another downpour. The game was played on a slippery rain-soaked field, which made forward passing difficult.

Halfback Johnny Thomas, whose playing enabled Chicago to triumph over Princeton last year, was the most sensational performer of the day, although Jimmy Pyott, who plays the other half, was a close second.

Thomas counted both touchdowns after carrying the ball down the field on repeated smashes at the right side of the Georgia line, while Pyott scored twice with short drop kicks.

Coach Stagg made frequent substitutions, but in spite of the fact that he used a number of second-string men, the Maroons scored twenty first downs, to Georgia's one, clearly revealing the ground-gaining strength of the Chicago eleven. Georgia was able to make first down only in the first period.

Chicago U. (20)	Position.	Georgia (0)
Strohmeier	Left end	Boney
Fletcher	Left tackle	Bennett
King	Center	Frier
Proudfoot	Right guard	Vandiver
Dawson	Right tackle	Taylor
Dickson	Right end	Butler
McMasters	Quarterback	Collins
H. Thomas	Right halfback	Thompson
Zorn	Fullback	Fletcher

Score by periods:

Chicago	0	3	10	7—20

Summary: Chicago scoring—Touchdowns—J. Thomas 2 (substituting for H. Thomas). Points from try after touchdowns—Helle (substituting for McMaster). Caruso (substituting for Strohmeier). Iowa Tramples on Knox.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 7.—Iowa's Big Ten champions ran away from the Knox College football team here today piling up a score of 61 to 0 in the four quarters of play. It was Iowa's first game of the year.

Three scouts from Yale witnessed today's game. Iowa plays Yale at New Haven next Saturday.

Parkins and Lock were the big scorers for Iowa, both men smashing the line for long gains. The Hawkeye team scored almost at will.

Second string men made up the squad for Iowa after the second period.

Purdue Defeats Milliken.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 7.—In a drizzling rain Purdue defeated James Milliken College of Decatur, Ill., 10 to 0 here today. The soggy field prevented much open field work and the ball was too slippery to attempt many passes. Milliken made first down only twice.

Northwestern Triumphs.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Northwestern University had little trouble in defeating the Beloit eleven today by a score of 17 to 0 on a muddy, rain-soaked field. Despite Beloit's heavy line, Northwestern got downs almost at will and kept the ball in Beloit territory the greater part of the game.

WABADAS WILL PLAY NEGRO STARS TODAY

The Wabadas, managed by Johnnie Tobin and with six major league players in their batting order, will play the opening game of their series against the St. Louis Negro Stars at the latter's new park, Market street and Compton avenue, at 3 p. m. today. Yesterday's game was postponed on account of rain.

Tobin has added Josh Billings of the Browns to the Wabada catching staff and has signed Harry Lunte, the star third baseman of the Rochester Internationals, for this series. Rinehardt, a Cardinal recruit, who has a rare curve ball, will pitch today's game. Results of the world's series game at New York will be announced during the Wabada Stars' contest.

REFEREE STOPS BOXER WHO TURNS ON HIM

Jack Wray, Evansville, negro boxer, got peeved in a recent bout here with Battling Jim Johnson of Nashville.

Wray thought Hardboiled Brown, negro referee, wasn't giving him a square deal. Wray stopped fighting Johnson and squared off with the referee.

Wray hooked a right to the referee's jaw, but missed and the referee came up with a snappy right to the nose which sent Wray down for the count.

After Wray had been revived he continued his fight with Johnson and won the decision in eight rounds.

Women's District Golf Title Tourney Starts Tomorrow

Ninety-Three Contestants Will Compete in Qualifying Round Over Links of the Bellerive Country Club — Finals Scheduled to Be Played Saturday.

Tomorrow morning, at the Bellerive Country Club, 93 women golfers will compete in the qualifying round of the St. Louis District Golf Association championship.

The first pair is scheduled to drive off at 9 o'clock. Mrs. L. E. Wasson, of Triple A Club, and Mrs. Kent Koerner of Bellerive, will form the first pair to tee off.

Eddie Loos Wins "Pro" Golf Event

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 7.—Eddie Loos of the Lake Shore Country Club, Chicago; by virtue of a fine 72 this morning, while other leaders were fighting a wind swept course, won the $1000 first prize in the annual St. Joseph open golf tournament this afternoon with a total of 290 for the 72 holes. Loos was only one stroke lower than Harry Hampton of Detroit, who won second money with 291.

William Creavy of the Hillcrest Club, Kansas City, started the day with a two stroke lead, but he played miserable golf the first nine, taking 43 strokes, and his 36 coming in left him a 79, and in third place instead of first. In the afternoon he took a 77 and held his place at third.

John Golden, the New York professional, suffered the same fate as Creavy, going to pieces in the wind and taking two 79s for the day, dropping from second to fifth place.

Harry Hampton, who learned his golf on seaside courses, played a fine game all day, scoring a 72 and a 73 and giving Loos a hard battle. Tom Stevens, who finished fourth, had a good chance for first money after his 72 this morning, but he blew up in the afternoon and scored an 80.

The winners and their scores: Eddie Loos, Lake Shore Country Club, Chicago, 290; Harry Hampton, Brooklands Country Club, Detroit, 291; William Creavy, Hillcrest Country Club, Kansas City, 294; Tom Stevens, Minikahda Country Club, Minneapolis, 296; John Golden, Tuxedo Country Club, New York, 298; Eddie Murphy, St. Joseph Country Club, 300; Willie Kidd, Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, 301; William E. Mehlhorn, Shreveport, La., 302; H. H. Gibson, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 304. Special prize of $100 to Creavy for lowest score for 18 holes—68.

HOLY CROSS WEAKENS IN CLOSING HALF AND HARVARD WINS, 20 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—Harvard defeated Holy Cross today, 20 to 0. The game was played in a drizzle. The crimson and the purple, which had played two years without a touchdown, played two periods today without scoring. Harvard was the more powerful in rush, but Holy Cross the better in kicking.

Army Uses Aerial Attack to Defeat Kansas Team, 13-0

Quarterback Smythe Races 55 Yards for One of Touchdowns for Cadets.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Army defeated University of Kansas today, 13 to 0. The contest was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, 500 Kansas rooters being in the stands to cheer their eleven. The game was played in a drizzling rain, which prevailed throughout and made the ball wet and slippery.

The Westerners fumbled more frequently, although both teams had trouble in handling the ball. The Cadets were more successful in recovery. Forward passing and kicking featured the play of both teams.

Army's first touchdown came as a direct result of a successful pass. It was in the opening period when the Cadets had the ball on Kansas' 30-yard line. A pass, Smythe to the White took it to the three-yard mark, from which point Wood took it over on a line plunge, Smythe, in the trial for placement goal after touchdown was successful.

Smythe intercepted a forward pass in the second period and ran 55 yards to a score. The goal was missed. The Kansan held the Army safe throughout the last two periods, but never themselves seriously threatened Army's goal.

Lineup and summary:

Army (13.)	Position.	U. of K. (0.)
White	Left end	Black
Farwick	Left guard	Davidson
Garbisch	Center	Weidline
Ereidster	Right guard	Higgins
Mulligan	Right tackle	Cave
Meyers	Right end	McLain
Smythe	Quarterback	Wilson
Timberlake	Left halfback	McAdams
Dodd	Right halfback	Krueger
Wood	Fullback	Spurgeon

U. of Kansas	0	0	0	0— 0

Summary: Touchdowns—Smythe, Wood. Goals after touchdown, from placement—Smythe.

Referee—Crowley, Post school. Umpire—McBride, M. Spively. Linesman—Kersberger (Harvard). Time of periods—12m. each.

SOLDAN HIGH DEFEATS WESTERN M. A., 6 TO 0

Soldan High School defeated the Western Military Academy of Alton yesterday, 6 to 0, at High School Field. The contest was played on a muddy gridiron and the charges of Coach Jimmie Cook proved to be the better mud larks. Western outplayed Soldan in the second quarter.

Soldan scored in the first period, carrying the ball to the Western 25-yard line on end runs and forward passes. The Cadets braced and held the Brown and Gold for three downs. Eichler, quarterback and captain of Soldan, missed a drop kick and the ball was brought into play on the 20-yard line. Soldan held Western twice and then threw the Cadets for a loss.

Fullback Richie of Western dropped back for a punt, but slipped as he was about to kick and fumbled the ball. Center Fisk of Soldan recovered the ball for a touchdown. The attempt to kick the goal after touchdown failed. Summary:

The lineup:

Soldan.	Positions.	Western Mil. Academy.
Myer	Left end	Dudley
Helser	Left tackle	Kerchoff
Fisk	Center	Verner
Butz	Right guard	Long
Thomas	Right tackle	McDermid
Meston	Right end	Abraham
Eichler	Quarterback	Meeker
Link	Right halfback	Logan
Walsh	Fullback	Ritchie (Capt.)

Score by quarters:

STRAIGHT FOOTBALL WINS FOR TEXAS U. ELEVEN

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 7.—The Phillips University football team of Enid, Ok., was defeated by the Texas University team, 41 to 0, here today. Texas took the lead a few minutes after the opening of the second period and was out of reach of her opponents throughout the remainder of the game, the half ending 17 to 3.

The forward pass proved the chief gaining medium for the Oklahomans, who completed six of their 19 attempts with two passes intercepted. Shelton and West, Phillips passing men, were chiefly responsible for the visitors' one touchdown. Long runs by Eckhardt and Stacy featured the playing of the Texas team which relied mostly on straight playing.

PRINCETON TEAM ABLE TO SCORE ONLY FIVE POINTS AGAINST VIRGINIA

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 7.—Princeton won its second game of the season today, defeating Virginia, 5 to 0. The contest was played in a steady downpour of rain which made good playing impossible. Many fumbles and constant slipping marred the game.

Princeton scored on a drop kick by Smith in the second period and a safety in the fourth period. Despite the rain several thousand loyal Tiger rooters were on hand in the Palmer stadium to witness the fray. The score by periods was:

Princeton	0	3	0	2—5

Rain Halts St. Louis Baseball and Tennis Teams at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 7.

RAIN here this afternoon caused the postponement of the municipal athletic carnival between the champion Muny baseball and tennis teams of St. Louis and Memphis.

The Hezels of St. Louis were scheduled to play the Polarines of Memphis. It was announced that one game would be played tomorrow.

The St. Louis tennis team is composed of Heuermann, Kammann, Schwarz and Mooney.

A large delegation of St. Louis enthusiasts is accompanying the athletes and Rodowe Abeken, director of Recreation in the St. Louis Public Parks, is in charge of the invading forces.

Soccer League to Open Next Sunday

Ben Millers to Play Vesper-Buicks and Scullins Will Oppose Barrett-Hoovers.

With a double-header, the first game of which will start at 2 p. m., the St. Louis Soccer League will inaugurate its season, next Sunday, at High School Field. The drawing for the first games brings together the Ben Millers and the Vesper-Buicks. The latter team is piloted by Harry McCarthy and is made up, in the main of players who cavorted under the St. Louis Screw Co. colors last season. In the second game, the Scullins, U. S. F. champions, will battle Willie Foley's Barrett-Hoovers, formerly the De Andreis eleven. Each manager has added to his veteran personnel several promising youngsters.

Everything possible has been done to make the patrons of this game more comfortable. The field will be roped in and, in the grand stand boxes, chairs will be provided at a small extra charge. Realizing that out-of-town teams are a big attraction in St. Louis, arrangements are being made for many battles to change the steady league menu and introduce a dash of variety in the season. Moreover, the cup play will this year begin earlier, the entry for national honors being greater than ever before.

It has been decided to start all games at 2 p. m. and 35-minute halves will be played in league battles. In cup contests, the rules call for two 45-minutes periods of play. In former seasons, the local clubs began more easily with 30-minute periods and the 45-minute halves in early cup games were somewhat of a hardship.

Phil Kavanaugh and Paul McSweeney will be the referees for the season and they will be assisted by specially-selected linesmen for side and goal posts. The injury to Cliff Brady is a blow to the Scullins, but Tate Brady already has arranged his eleven to nullify as best he may any loss of strength because of his brother's inability to play.

BETHLEHEMS IMPORT EIGHT SOCCER STARS

A recent dispatch from Philadelphia indicates that the Bethlehem Steel Soccer Football Club is out to regain its former prestige. The one-time national champions will be strengthened by the addition of eight stars from the British Isles, especially imported for the Bethlehem team.

The players who will be added to the steel team's lineup are as follows:

Young, formerly of Greenock Mortons and Dundee Bibs; McFarlane, formerly of Patrick Thistles; Raeside, formerly of Dombarton and King's Park; Terris, formerly of Kalkirk and Liverpool; Rattery, formerly of Raith Rovers; McNivin, formerly of Patrick Thistles; Faulds, formerly of Peters Hill, Scottish Junior Club, and Goldie, formerly of Clyde Bank.

YALE, PLAYING WITHOUT JORDAN AND O'HEARN, BEATS NORTH CAROLINA

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 7.—In a drizzle Yale, deprived of Capt. Jordan and O'Hearn defeated North Carolina, 18 to 0, this afternoon. McDonald, the visitors' quarterback, once carried the ball across Yale's goal line, but the lads from the South had been offside and the touchdown did not count.

The lineup:

Penn Victorious Over Sewanee

Rainsoaked Field Slows Up Game and Causes Frequent Fumbles.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 7.—The University of Pennsylvania today defeated the University of the South, 27 to 0, on a rainsoaked field, in the first local intersectional game. Neither team showed to great advantage, although Captain Pos Miller and Tex Hamer made repeated gains through the Sewanee line. Frequent fumbles on the part of the Southerners in the early periods of the game made possible the two first Pennsylvania touchdowns. Line up and summary:

Penn. (27).	Positions.	U. of So. (0).
Dern	Center	Stivers

Freedom of Press Issue Raised in Two

Unusual Cases in Federal Court at Memphis

SIX MONTHS IN JAIL, $1000 FINE FOR ONE EDITOR

Another Now Must Face Same Judge Because He Is Alleged to Have Commented Contemptuously on the Court's Action in the Other Case—Both Proceedings Grew Out of Sweeping Injunction Aimed at Striking Shopcraft Unionists — First Writer Held Guilty of Violating Writ Though He Made No Reference to It and Wrote Only About "Scabs."

JACOB COHEN.

JUDGE J. W. ROSS.

G. V. SANDERS

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 7.

THE trial of G. V. Sanders, editor of the Memphis Press, on a contempt charge before Judge J. W. Ross in the Federal Court here, Oct. 16, will bring before the court, for the second time in a month, an issue of the freedom of the press, growing out of the railroad shopmen's strike and the injunction proceedings of last summer.

Judge Ross, July 27 last, issued restraining orders against the striking shopmen of the Frisco, Illinois Central and Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroads. The orders were of the same character as those issued in other jurisdictions. They enjoined the strikers and others, among other things, from "compelling or inducing, or attempting to compel or induce, by threats, intimidation, force, fraud or deception, any person in the employ of the plaintiff (railroad) to cease performing his duty; from coercing in any manner persons willing to enter the service of the plaintiff, with the object of preventing them from entering said service; and from jeering at or insulting the plaintiff's employes in any way, by use of threats or suggestion of danger of any kind."

"Dirty Scabs."

On Sept. 2, while this order was still in force, the Labor Review, published here by Jacob Cohen, printed on the first page of its Labor day number—which had been mailed to regular subscribers a day or two before the publication date—the article headed "Dirty Scabs," which is reproduced in connection with this news story. The article was devoted to general abuse of strike breakers, and did not mention the shopmen's strike specifically, or allude to the Federal Court's injunction.

On Sept. 2, at 6:40 a. m., an automobile driven by Clarence V. Stevens, foreman in the Yale yards of the Frisco, was attacked from ambush at Madison avenue and the Speedway. Shots were fired into the car and C. H. Lanier, a Frisco car repairer, who was riding in the rear seat, was killed. Within the next two days four strikers were arrested and the police announced that all confessed having committed the crime, three acting as gunmen and the fourth as driver. All related that Stevens, not Lanier, was the man whom it was intended to kill, or as one of them said, to "frighten." The confessions included some participation in other acts of violence, including an attempt to wreck a Frisco passenger train.

The four men are still prisoners and will be tried in the local courts. The murder of Lanier has no oficial connection in the record with the other matters which will be related, but it is believed to have had a part in bringing about the prosecutions involving the issue of free speech. Also, it has strongly affected public feeling in respect to the free speech cases.

Cohen Arrested.

Sept. 4, Labor day, two days after the date of publication of the Labor Review, Cohen was arrested on an information issued against him by S. E. Murray, United States District Attorney. The information charged Cohen with violating the letter and the spirit of Judge Ross' injunction by the publication of the article about "scabs." Cohen was arrested as he was attending a celebration at Edgewood Park. He was released on $1000 bond, to appear before Judge Ross Sept. 18.

Sept. 7, there appeared on the first page of the Memphis Press, an afternoon newspaper, an editorial headed "The King Forbids" (which is printed with this news story), alluding to the arrest of Cohen, and asking: "If the courts can go that far in muzzling a free press, where is the stopping place?" The injunction was spoken of as "the fiat of the king," and said, as to the constitutional provisions for freedom of the press: "We shall see about that—fetch him before the throne."

The Press editorial caused considerable comment, but brought no immediate action. The Press reporter who visits the Federal building daily has since related that some Federal officials remarked to him that the editor of the Press seemed to be trying to see how near he could come to committing contempt of court, without making himself actually liable.

There the matter rested until Sept. 18, the day of Cohen's trial.

Cohen's counsel admitted, at the trial, that Cohen was responsible for the article on "Scabs." They argued, however, that the article in question had not mentioned the Court or the injunction, and that, therefore, no violation of the injunction had been committed. They also argued that other publications had commented unfavorably on

Editorials That Brought Contempt Charges Against Two Editors

THE editorial article printed in the Memphis Press, an afternoon newspaper, Sept. 7, three days after Cohen's arrest, and while Cohen's case was officially before the United States District Court, is also printed here as it appears in the court records. For the publication of this article, G. V. Sanders, managing editor of the Press, was arrested on a charge of contempt of court, and he is to appear before Judge Ross Oct. 16.

The King Forbids

MEMPHIS has been so excited these past few days over the arrest of assassins and would-be assassins that another important matter has been overlooked by many. That is the arrest Monday of Editor Jacob Cohen of the Labor Review.

Cohen's arrest is a shining example of the far-reaching nature of the injunction obtained at Chicago by U. S. Attorney-General Daugherty. It was charged Cohen had used such words as "dirty scabs" and "industrial scavengers" in expressing his contempt for railroad strikebreakers. This is supposed to be a violation of the injunction.

Maybe Editor Cohen didn't know that the king had forbidden such things to be said about the strikebreakers. True, the king would not have been offended had he used the same epithets in expressing his opinion of any other class. It was not the words so much as it was the persons at whom they were directed.

True, it would have been lawful to have used the same words just a few days ago, before the fiat of the king on that matter had gone out, and it was clearly up to all subjects to be up on the king's latest laws.

Mr. Cohen possibly was not thoroughly up to date on questions of fundamental rights in this country of the free. No doubt he is one of those old-fashioned souls who believe there is something real in those words the Constitution contains about free speech. He probably thought that antiquated document would protect him in giving his opinion to the world.

Ha! ha! We shall see about that. Fetch him before the throne.

Where's the Stopping Place?

If the courts can go that far in muzzling the free press, where is the stopping place? Could there be any stopping place beyond that? If freedom of the press means anything at all in this country, it means freedom of an editor to express his opinion on questions that are uppermost in the public mind.

If a court can take away that right by an injunction, either the court is out of gear, or the Constitution. We prefer to think it is the court that is off its base.

Since the arrest of Cohen it seems that the local U. S. District Attorney has decided to prosecute him under the injunction issued by Judge Ross in the Federal Court here.

It makes no difference whatever whether the injunction was issued in Chicago or Memphis.

Both are in America.

Let us read a few lines from the Constitution of the United States. Here is the first amendment:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for redress of grievances."

THE article printed in the Labor day issue of the Memphis Labor Review, for which the editor, Jacob Cohen, was sentenced by Federal Judge Ross to a six months' jail term and fined $1000, is here reprinted as it appears in the Federal Court records:

The very employer who hires the scab to do his dirty work mistrusts him, and, although he lauds him highly when the strike is on, the truth of the matter is that he feels a disgust for any man who is a

the War From Worst Motives in World's History

Chief of the Pro-Monarchists Expresses Great Bitterness Against This Country, Including "German - Americans" — Snarls at France and Predicts Disruption of the British Empire.

Already Dreaming of "the Next War" When He and His Followers Hope Germany Will Come Into Her Own Again—Calls Disarmament Discussions "Nonsensical Rubbish."

GEN. VON LUDENDORFF.

By FERDINAND TUOHY,

Of the Paris Bureau of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch

MUNICH, Sept. —.

I SUPPOSE one enters Germany today the adherent of one or the other of two creeds. The one might be tabulated:

I believe that France is all wrong.

I believe that Germany is sick of war

I believe that the allies have behaved like vampires.

I believe in the German republic.

I believe the Germans should not be made to pay till the armies of occupation quit Germany.

I believe the Germans will behave in future.

I believe the French are a selfish, greedy bunch, out for military domination.

I believe in the horrors of the Rhine.

I believe the allies are responsible for the mess Europe is in today.

The other set down:

I believe that France knows Germany best.

I believe the Germans are shamming dead.

I believe Foch should have had his last battle.

I believe in reparation.

I believe the Germans never intended to pay.

I believe a Kaiser's coming back.

I do not believe in the German republic.

I believe the Germans are set on war of revenge.

I believe they've got it all mapped out.

I believe no nation has suffered like France.

I believe the allies have not been firm enough and that the Germans are laughing up their sleeves.

I believe the Germans haven't changed a bit.

I believe in not forgetting—prematurely.

Two Ways of Judging Germany

Now it occurred to me as I crossed the Rhine that there were two ways of judging Germany and the Germans and of putting the above twin credos to the test. One could either study industrial, social and political conditions in the Fatherland, tempering the inquiry with reference to restaurant prices and to the care-free surface life, and arrive at a paradox complete and befogging, or one could fasten on to a dominant element or manifestation in the life of the German State and follow it up in the hope of a star shell effect upon the remaining German scene. Decision to prosecute the latter course was what brought me to the gate of Gen. Ludendorff's villa outside this city.

What was the strength of the old brigade, and what did they think of things today? Surely, if one could get that fair and square, much else might be clarified.

However, it was no easy matter getting near Excellenz Erich von Ludendorff, erstwhile Capablanca of mighty legions and best brain of the war. He is a marked man—the one to go in return for Rathenau, you will hear it said—and, so, devious introductory paths have to be followed ere one is fortunate enough to debouch at the charming Villa Ludendorff in the suburb Wilhelmshohe.

More than one prominent Bavarian to whom I applied for an introduction replied that Ludendorff received none save intimate friends; others professed to be but vaguely cognizant of the ex-Quartermaster-General's presenee in their midst. One detected a very clear "Ludendorff atmosphere," however, in and around Munich. At mention of Ludendorff's name officials, waiters, shop people, taxi drivers, invariably pricked up their ears, then, catching my foreign accent, were mum. There seemed to be almost a common and tacit society in existence for the protection of Ludendorff. Excuse after excuse was forthcoming for not giving me an introduction, the facts being that Ludendorff doesn't encourage visitors of any kind, because publicity is distinctly not the breath of life to a covert movement based on mining one's opponent's position such as the former war leader is conducting in the Fatherland today. And still there is always the chance that a visitor, presenting himself with the best credentials, may be but a camouflaged "red," bomb in pocket or revolver on the hip. Incidentally, I heard that Lundendorff was wont to keep two revolvers handy (one visible on his desk) and that he kept a fire in a stove perpetually burning in case of an emergency calling for the destruction of his private papers, but even such knowledge hardly prepared me for circumstances of my advent at the Villa Lundendorff and of my meeting with its owner.

Two Snarling Wolf Hounds on Guard

My arrival at the gate was the signal for two snarling wolf hounds to leap down the steps at me. I paused outside the villa, a big white mansion standing in its own grounds and hedged in by trees, I could see, commanded a gorgeous panoramic view of a winding valley far away below; happy haven of an unpensioned, dismissed officer. Meanwhile, my chauffeur was certain that the police dogs meant no harm—it was just their playful little way to growl and snap and behave like caged lions the other side of that gate. Ultimately, after a considerable wait, which may or may not have been put to some use within the villa, a small child, to whom I clicked heels, and who, I subsequently learned, was Lundendorff, aged 3, beckoned me from the porch. The gate opened simultaneously, and for the honor of the allied and associated Powers I had perforce to proceed. As I entered the grounds the dogs began describing snarling circles around me, their tongues loosely out, and it was inside of this disconcerting foxtrot that I had to make my mission known to the maid.

Would I pass into the salon? I moved forward into the center of the room, accompanied now by only one of the dogs, but the animal was apparently not in favor of my sitting down, so I stood still while he continued his trotting and sniffing. I may have stood two or three minutes so—I recall studying three highly colored and lifesize paintings on the walls, one of the Kaiser and his ever true comrade, Erich von Lundendorff, another of Hindenburg, more passionately inscribed, and a third of Ludendorf himself, stooping over a map, compass in hand and planning a battle—when I became aware that there was somebody else in the room. The same instant the maid announced "Excellenz von Ludendorff!"

The General had come in without making a sound and stood bolt upright, his wife beside him, in the doorway some six paces from me. Tall, massive and with fair moustache curling upward at either end in the approved imperial style, he fixed his penetrating blue eyes upon me. I noticed that he had on knickerbockers and wore the Bavarian peasant's blue cotton coat, into the lefthand pocket of which one fist was jammed hard down, but not enough to conceal the outline of a revolver muzzle sticking forward within.

Snappy Orders for the Interviewer

Meanwhile, the dog began barking and prancing about me and Ludendorff said not a word, just continued to fix me with his small, light-blue eyes. Finally—it seemed after an age—he appeared to have come to some decision. He waved his wife away and out of the room with an abrupt gesture, and bore down upon me in a near-goose step, eyes still fixed relentlessly on mine, left hand still pressed down into his coat pocket.

A yard from me he drew himself up, bowed about an inch in a jerk, extended a nerveless hand and said: "Ludendorff!" To which I was just replying when he ordered: "Sit down in that chair over there! No, over there! Take no notice of the dog!"—all this rasped out as if I had been Feldgrau on parade.

After I had seated myself face to the window, Lundendorff walked around behind me and sat down in an armchair some three paces opposite, his eyes still set on mine (as they continued throughout), his left hand still pressed down in his coat pocket (as it continued throughout). I appreciated that it were best to smile and fiddle around with my wrist watch. Suddenly the General said: "What do you want?" I explained that I was making an inquiry into the chances of a monarchist revival in Europe generally and in Bavaria and Prussia in particular—hoping thus to draw him into talking as chief "old Brigadier," which he undoubtedly is.

"And what has that got to do with America?" was Lundendorff's opening rejoinder.

I explained that Americans were still keenly interested in the future of Germany and that whether the existing republic endures or not seemed a matter of paramount importance: I had heard him—Ludendorff—spoken of as the head of the monarchists working for the return of an Emperor.

"Let America mind its own business!" ejaculated Ludendorff, "as it should have done on a previous occasion! What right have you (was haben sie zu thun) here in Europe? To us Germans you brought nothing but ill. I shall say nothing to you on monarchy, and, mind, you are not interviewing me on it, but I have much to say on other things."

The ex-Quartermaster-General spoke in guttural staccato sentences, stabbed out in the best Prussian style and accompanied by a stiff tempo beating with the free hand.

Let Americans Study Themselves

"But you are at the head of the movement to bring the Kaiser back, are you not? At least tell me why you think the Hohenzollerns beneficial to Germany."

"I refuse to make any declaration to you on the subject. That matter concerns Germany alone. I am living here in retirement in Bavaria. And I repeat I fail to see what right America has to interest herself in the future of Germany. Let the Americans study themselves for a change. The Americans! One record you established. You entered the war from the worst motive in the history of the world. You entered it for gold. We, we Germans, we fought for the supremacy of our race. You—you fought for gold! Tell them that if you like!" And Ludendorff leaned forward rasping out the words, finger shot right out at me.

"But, Excellenz, are supremacy and gold so very far apart, admitted that the object of the United States in entering the war was financial gain. Would not the supremacy which you mention as having been the war object of Germany have brought in its train very substantial monetary advantages to the German people?"

"That may be," retorted Ludendorff, "but we only thought of our race."

"But do you class Americans the same? What of German-Americans?"

"They are the worst of the lot. They are terrible people (Schrechliche leute). We got nothing from them then and expect nothing of them now. Bah, the Americans! The most narrow-minded people in the world. We can do without you. (Wir koennen ohne euch rauskommen.)"

While uttering the above words Ludendorff worked himself up into a declamatory heat, giving each phrase as if it were a military order and gesticulating in unison. It was clear that he nourished the keenest hatred freely mixed with contempt, for the United States. And that he spoke for a very large, formidable and growing section of the German people I, for one, have not the remotest doubt. Superficial courtesy to dollar-spending American tourists notwithstanding, plus a very German tendency to cringe to the temporary top dog, what every German knows is who won the war, and he does not intend to forget it. I sought to temporize with Ludendorff, mentioning the Lusitania and indiscriminate U-boat warfare.

"The Lusitania had munitions on board, otherwise how do you think she could have blown up so easily? As for our U-boat, it was the voyage of the Deutschland across the Atlantic which really decided you. You then began to see your gold slipping from you."

Predicts Reckoning for Enemies

We left the subject and after a few random words Ludendorff continued:

"Germany has been abominably treated, but there will come a day of reckoning. Look at me. Picture my position before the war. And now I can only give my family meat twice a week. 'Tis the same everywhere. And they say that we Germans have not suffered! Gott!"

He looked so ample and happily situated that it was hard to repress a smile.

"The French," he went on, "the French have imposed impossible conditions and have inciden-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

When An Issue Is Not An Issue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT will it profit the regular nominee of the Republican or Democratic party for Senator to engage in a discussion of the repeal or amendment of the Volstead act when it is not a party issue defined in the Republican or Democratic State platform for the consideration of the voter? Even if it was an issue, the Volstead act could not be repealed or amended if the entire vote cast was unanimous throughout the State for its repeal or amendment.

The Republican or Democratic nominees are not morally or legally obligated as party partisans to make good any consideration of the repeal of the Volstead act except its legal enforcement. If Reed was as wet as the Atlantic Ocean he has not the power to bring about its repeal or amendment. Reed is such a liberal defender of the rights of the personal liberty of the "common people"—he has not to his credit, in his 12 years of service as a pallbearer in the United States Senate, one single act of legislation of his personal initiative except to destroy and criticise every constructive program for the peace and prosperity of the United States.

Being a Democratic partisan, I approve of the American principle of universal personal liberty, as provided by law, and the pre-election primary slogan: "Rid us of Reed" now and forever if the Democratic party is not to be governed by a gang of political dumbbells.

The antileague Democrats and Republicans should enjoy European Turkey on Thanksgiving day.

La Follette for President.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AS A CITIZEN of St. Louis County, I want to thank the Post-Dispatch for the splendid editorials and the publicity it has given to the corrupt political conditions existing in the county, and its fearless stand in campaigning for the cause of justice, truth and clean government. What we need today is more newspapers that will uphold this policy and point the way, not only to local conditions, but to State and national affairs. We have been wondering where we could find the man that would be big, fine and courageous enough to blaze the way.

All honor to the Post-Dispatch—it has found him! A man that can rise above party issues and give us a platform that upholds equal rights to every citizen. A man that has been fighting the battle alone for over 30 years, and a man that deserves the support of all good citizens who want to safeguard the policies of our forefathers.

Three cheers for La Follette and his progressive platform; may it give him the just reward that is fitting to crown his public career. Thirtieth President of our United States of America! Fellow readers, are you for him?

Kirkwood, Mo. UNCLE BILL

Tit for Tat!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IF the citizenship of our country is so "crassly ignorant" and so mentally "dense;" if our public press is so perverted and disloyal to the best interests of the people as Adolph B. Suess would have us believe, then it is hereby submitted, in all candor, that this country is not a fit place for him. He does not belong here. He should go to a better country. If he does not go on his own initiative he should be officially invited to go. It is a good and wholesome thing for us to be made aware of the presence in our midst of such an element.

R. E. CUMMINS.

The "Marplot."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MR. WILSON dubbed Reed a "marplot." While it is never safe to prophesy as to future political action, it is as safe as prophecy can be to say that the next national Democratic convention will take a position looking to some international agreement for world peace. The two big men in Mr. Harding's Cabinet favor it. It is certain that when this time comes Reed will play the marplot. In a speech to the Jews of Washington Reed said: "Human nature never changes. There has always been war and there will always be." He forgets St. Paul and millions of other Christians. This preachment would empty every pulpit in Christendom. His election will give him strong backing in this abominable business. He is an impotent Senator.

He could not prevent the adoption of the prohibitory amendment, defeat the passage of the Volstead act, woman suffrage, the maternity bill or any other measure nor propose any of his own and pass them. In his fight on Wilson only three Democratic Senators participated—Gore, Shields and Vardaman—all three of whom have been retired to private life. They are lonely and need Reed's companionship. Let us pity and accommodate them.

A DEMOCRAT.

Are They Worrying?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is too bad that the German people are still worrying about the ex-Kaiser. Even if his hand is shriveled it did enough harm. It was through him that many of our American soldiers lost their arms, and nobody cares for them, and don't show their pictures in the paper. I hope they forget him.

EX-SERVICE MAN.

SENATOR STANLEY'S AMAZING ADVICE.

Urging Democrats to support Senator Reed for reelection, regardless of his course on peace policies, Senator Stanley insisted that the Senator ought to be re-elected, not because he was right, but because he stuck to his conviction against President Wilson and Wilson policy. Senator Stanley said he himself followed President Wilson in his world peace policy, because he thought Mr. Wilson was right, but that if he had thought the Wilson policy wrong, as Senator Reed did, he would have opposed him. "Senator Reed," he said, "did what he thought was right, though he knew that it might cost him his political future, even though he knew it might mean his defeat for re-election."

This is an amazing argument for the support of a candidate in a political contest. Senator Stanley in effect says we ought to support a candidate not because he is right in his judgment or wise in the policies he advocates, but because he has the courage of his convictions, no matter how wrong his convictions may be. In other words, whether a man is right or wrong; whether his judgment is good or bad; whether his policies are sound and good for the country or unsound and injurious to the country; whether his convictions would lead to peace and prosperity or to war and ruin, we should support and vote for him on account of his courage in standing by his convictions.

It is an amazing argument to use in a political campaign—an argument that would lead the people to queer conclusions and strange paths. It would turn political parties topsy-turvy.

There are revolutionaries who want to overturn the constitutional Government of the United States and who have the full courage of their convictions. Would Senator Stanley say that loyal American voters should support them on account of their courage?

It took courage to vote for the robber tariff bill which Congress has passed, and Congressmen who voted for it risked defeat. Would Senator Stanley advise anti-protection voters to support high-tariff Congressmen on account of their courage?

It took courage for President Harding to veto the bonus bill. Would Senator Stanley advise pro-bonus voters to support Mr. Harding on account of his courage?

It took courage for Mr. Brewster to declare for prohibition and its rigid enforcement and thus risk defeat in this campaign. Does Senator Stanley advise wet Republicans and wet Democrats to vote for Mr. Brewster because he has the courage of his convictions?

Why multiply illustrations? The courage argument is being worked to a frazzle. It has reached the reductio ad absurdum.

We justly admire courage in men, but there are other qualities not less important that a candidate should have. They are judgment, wisdom and vision. The public welfare demands that voters require right convictions as well as courage to stand by them. Sound policy is imperative.

It is as necessary to public welfare and good government that voters vote their convictions as that public men act in accord with their judgment. How will we ever get good policies in government if voters abandon their convictions and vote for candidates merely because they admire their courage and personality?

Why have party platforms or campaign speeches for party organizations if all considerations of right and wrong, of good policies and bad policies, are to be tossed aside by the voters in order to re-elect a man who had the courage to go wrong?

If Senator Stanley's rule of voting is to prevail, the Lord save the republic!

THE FLEDGLING AND THE EAGLE.

The new continuous flight record of 35 hours 18 minutes and 30 seconds, made by Lieuts. MacReady and Kelly emphasizes the progress that has been made in aerial navigation. In 1903 Wilbur Wright stayed in the air 53 seconds and traveled a distance of 852 feet. Thus in less than 20 years seconds have been stretched into hours and feet into miles. The fledgling's fluttering pinions have become the eagle's wings.

The fragile craft of Wilbur Wright would hardly be identified as belonging to the same species as the airplane of the young army officers. The fact that the power of this military plane is generated by a Liberty motor is a reminder of the circumstances under which that engine was invented. Except for the World War there would have been no Liberty motor. To that upheaval, too, may be accredited not only the advance in construction, but much of the professional skill of the modern pilots.

In another way the war has accelerated and broadened airmanship. Forbidden the use of engine-driven air machines by the terms of the peace treaty the Germans have gone far ahead of other nations in the development of the motorless airplane. A flight of three hours is the German sail-plane record to the little more than a minute of other nations.

It has been asserted that the successful sail-plane pilot has to be deeply versed in meteorology, but that statement has been contradicted by the man who holds the record. But the two schools of motored and motorless flight, it may be assumed, are accumulating data which will presently be collated and possibly merged into a comprehensive code of instruction. Such an inference seems logical. In any event man's dominion of the air has left the realm of fancy and approaches the accomplished fact. Will another generation, freed from the limitations which have circumscribed the ages, estimate the World War in terms of gratitude which we but dimly perceive?

KEMAL AND THE BOOTLEGGERS.

The burning of Smyrna has shocked Western civilization, but the announcement of the Turkish Field Marshal, Mustapha Kemal Pasha, on arriving at the smoking ruins of the ancient city, must have heartened some of our most devout Christians. Prohibition, he declared, would be rigidly enforced. Any bootlegger caught vending his vicious wares would be given "20 lashes on the bare back."

There is nothing equivocal about that order. Anybody who reads it knows exactly where Kemal stands. As to the permissible alcoholic content, whether that content should be determined by scientists or legislators, whether the decree is constitutional or not, whether it impinges on other rights or not—with such questions and quibbles Kemal is entirely unconcerned. In his Mohammedan philosophy, booze is booze, a bootlegger is a bootlegger, and under the illuminating rule of Moslem the proscription is absolute and the punishment for violation is swift, sure and unmistakable.

The pellucid words of Kemal are in sparkling contrast with the buttermilk tergiversations of Reed and the ultramarine locutions of Brewster. Just which of the two Missouri candidates for the Senate will be supported by the bootlegger bloc may be an open question. But if Mustapha Kemal were in our senatorial race Brother Shupp and his cohorts would be spared the agonies of doubt and indecision. The fez of Mustapha Kemal would be their oriflamme. On the subject of prohibition the Turk talks Turkey.

BETRAYED HUMANITY.

Senator Borah, father of the Washington arms conference, is highly incensed at the seemingly frivolous indifference of some of the treaty powers in neglecting to ratify the arms limitation treaty. Great Britain and Japan completed its ratification some weeks ago but await the carrying out of the scrapping program until France and Italy have taken action. Washington has adopted a similar attitude, feeling that the Near East situation might lead to a change in plans by some of the signatories.

The Idahoan's disappointment is keen as he recalls the enthusiasm with which the conference was hailed "and then contemplates the apathy, the indifference, not to say the betrayal, which has followed." "If the work of this conference should be brought to naught, as many things now indicate," he declares, "it will be the most hideous betrayal of humanity since the war." The Parliaments of Europe, however, be it noted, are quite as privileged to refuse ratification as was the Senate of the United States to reject the League of Nations, an action in which Senator Borah was one of the most obstreperous leaders.

It is not yet time to abandon hope of good results from the arms conference. Though it has not effected the scrapping of quantities of battle material it has stopped, or retarded for the present, the mad race in naval armaments. It has to its credit the Shantung agreement and the four-Power treaty.

The difference in peace-protecting effectiveness between a mere pact of disarmament and a living, continuing and growing organization for peace such as the League of Nations, however, is brought out in the trend of present events. The League of Nations is functioning. It is the admiration of a visiting group of United States Senators of both parties. There is every reason to believe that with the power of America in its councils it would have prevented the development of the Near East crisis. Its custody of the Dardanelles is the one hope now held out for peace. In striking contrast is the effect of the Kemalist outbreak on the disarmament pact. With the first appearance of the flames of war it is forgotten.

Campaign orators may boast of the arms conference as an administration achievement, but they cannot boast of a great deal it has achieved nor can they bring it forward as even the humblest substitute for the League of Nations, history's fairest hope for the realization of sanity, settlement and peace, which the Republican party, without offering a substitute, has done all it can to wreck.

PUTTING IT ON THE "SATYRICON."

The Satyricon of Petronius is not, strictly speaking, a goat; nevertheless, it can be, and, in fact, is being, made to serve as one. In fine, the Satyricon is the thing which, in place of the war, we may now proceed to blame for all the prevailing ills of society. Therefore, let us be thankful for the Satyricon. A good alibi is hard to find. Which brings us to the debt of gratitude that we all owe to John S. Sumner of the New York Vice Society, the man who discovered that American morals and ethics are being corrupted by the publication and circulation of this 2000-year-old classic.

New York may be nervous and dubious about the benefit it has derived from Sumner's censoring activities. It may be a fact that Sumner has more zeal than discretion; that his moral jealousy outruns his artistic insight. It may even be true that, as concerns works of literature, he has no more gumption than a woodchuck. But he is the man who supplied the alibi. We cannot forget that.

It is comforting to have such an apologist and such an apology. If the memoirs of a Roman voluptuary can be blamed in 1922 for the prevalence of short skirts, housebreaking, repudiation of debts, cheek-to-cheek dancing, Newberryism, bobbed hair, currency inflation, speeding, fake stock promotion and all the current blasphemies and deviltries of the time, then we are relieved at once of the blame and of the obligation to mend our own ways. Thus, even the Sumners have their uses, and the Satyricon becomes the goat.

SUPERVISION OF STRIKE VOTES.

The suggestion that the State supervise strike votes, which was made by L. F. Loree of the Delaware & Hudson Railway in a recent discussion of "Labor Unions," is worthy of serious consideration. Union labor sentiment may at first be prejudiced against the suggestion because of its author, who is classified as belonging to the "hardboiled" variety of magnate; it is the proposal, however, not its sponsor, that is before the house.

The question of going on a strike, when referred by leaders to the rank and file, almost always carries, and, as a rule, by a one-sided vote. In the latest test the vote of the railroad shopmen on the several issues submitted approached unanimity. Nevertheless, railroad officials insisted that many of the men were opposed to the strike, and the fact that so many men remained at work, or quickly returned to work, substantiates that contention.

Some of the arguments with which Mr. Loree supports his proposal are untactful. He intimates coercion is used on the voters and charges that the control of organized labor has become centralized in a small group of powerful leaders. It is not necessary to accept such statements. It is obvious, however, that, if those assertions are true, the situation should be corrected. If they are not true, if strike votes are the free, untrammeled expression of the workers, there can be no insuperable objection to putting such elections under Government supervision, protecting the secrecy of the ballot with legal safeguards and thereby removing all grounds for suspicion as to intimidation or the accuracy of the count.

The plan certainly seems entitled to a trial in the basic industries whose operation is indispensable to the life of the people.

Here he had
A growing busines
Bound to circulate
The flag,
And the whole
Thing is exploded
Like a little Paper bag.

Mr. Daugherty
Opineth,
Much to Brother
Lasker's loss,
That the curse
Of prohibition
Reaches all
The way across.
Wherefore, bowing
To the dictum,
Brother sadly
Dumps his booze,
Leaving all
His fleet of vessels
Nowhere probably
To cruise.

So dissolves
Our cherished vision
Of another
Great marine,
Bidding England
And the others
Come and occupy
The scene.
Once more lowering
Their colors,
Sadly like
The time before,
Lo, the one-time
Doughty Yankees,
First in sea trade,
Come ashore!

So we have it,
Little girlie,
Just as Brother
Might have guessed,
As between
The drys and business,
Business must
Be dispossessed.
Since the world
Is wide and evil,
And its ways
Are not our own,
We shall somehow
Have to whittle
Out our destiny
Alone.

Maybe in
The course of morals,
Backed by Bryan
And his crew,
All the ocean-going
Peoples
Can be rid
Of liquor, too.
In which case
Our banished seamen,
Rousing sea trade
From its grave,
Can devise
A fleet of vessels
And resume
Upon the wave.

Sir: So we continue to believe in fairy tales: "The horse stepped on a piece of tin and the story ended."

Now they say Witt stepped on a bottle and the story ended.

V. K. W.

Back again, Plinthourgos! I might almost welcome you as a brother, since we both bask in equal ignorance of the signification of Mr. J. H.'s "imponderables."

However, let us get to the business of your communication of Oct. 2. I am afraid you take more out of some of my terms than their ordinary use warrants. "Ultimate—that is, the last," you say. Good! "Nothing beyond." Again, good! "Uncaused." A third time, good! "Something from nothing." By no means; the Ultimate Cause—which, to anticipate a bit, is a being distinct from this material universe—is not a something which was not and then began to be; it simply always was by reason of its own intrinsic necessity.

In other words, there exists an Unproduced Being, upon which all other beings depend. How do we know of the existence of such a being? Thus: Something exists—therefore there exists an Unproduced Being. And why? Because whatever exists has the reason of its existence either in itself or in another; if in itself, then it is unproduced, and my point is manifest. If in another, then the same question recurs regarding that other; and we must eventually come to some being upon which all others depend, but which is itself unproduced—in other words, we must come to the Unproduced Being, to the Ultimate Cause.

Now, you may ask, cannot this unproduced being be the universe itself? No; for the Unproduced Being is infinite, immutable, omnipotent, omniscient—in none of which respects could it be identified with the universe. If the honored director of these columns grant me further hearings, I may discuss these latter points more fully. Meantime, Plinthourgos, apply to your own case that most exemplary advice you have often offered: "Sit down calmly and try to think"—not that something comes from nothing—but cogitate carefully the truths that the very laws of thought must force upon you. For the moment, au revoir!

PRO VERITATE.

A PROTEST.

O, where is she, with the silver hair,
The gentle face with its lines of care,
The little white cap and the collar of lace?
O Grandma! what have you done to your face?
Your scarlet withered lips look bad;
Your snow white visage looks so sad
Beneath your locks of henna brown—
O Grandmother, you are a clown! a clown!

BRITISH VIEW OF AMERICAN

From the National Review (London).

MANY Americans cultivate sentim[illegible] with their British friends, who recipro[illegible] kind, and between the two a highly [illegible] atmosphere is created that is fruitful of [illegible] quent misunderstandings. The American[illegible] practical people, don't mean this flapdood[illegible] cusly, nor have they any desire to [illegible] and they cannot contain their astonish[illegible] indignation when they eventually open the [illegible] tator to discover that some casual remark [illegible] Shakspeare or Milton has been transp[illegible] "blood is thicker than water" enthusi[illegible] passionate plea for some mighty "English [illegible] ing" development, which has about as [illegible] chance of materializing as, say, an allian[illegible] tween Jupiter and Saturn. British states[illegible] engaging personality, who gracefully [illegible] surface of Washington society and who are [illegible] sona gratissima everywhere, necessarily [illegible] an erroneous impression of the possibili[illegible] practical politics. They do not come in [illegible] with the effective public opinion of the [illegible] States, to which all Washington politicia[illegible] amenable, and which, in the long run, [illegible] mines what these can and shall do as oppo[illegible] what they can't and shan't do. Everyone [illegible] much as a bowing acquaintance with real Am[illegible] ica—the only America that counts and the [illegible] we have to reckon with—has long since [illegible] aware that the single question on which there [illegible] agreement, if not unanimity, from New York [illegible] San Francisco, is that John Bull should pay [illegible] to the uttermost farthing, the debt which [illegible] reckless, feckless Government contracted [illegible] the war, on terms so unfavorable that inquiry [illegible] called for as to how and why we placed [illegible] deadly weapon in the hands of a ca[illegible] competitor that would not fail to use it.

A TYPICAL CONGRESS.

From the Houston Chronicle.

CONGRESS quit business with a high tariff [illegible] no bonus standing forth as the most [illegible] uous results of its labor. Not that it was [illegible] favorable to a bonus, but that President [illegible] stepped in with a veto. Not that it wouldn't [illegible] gone further with the tariff, but that the [illegible] maries scared it. It was a typical Repub[illegible] Congress, committed to big business and [illegible] enough soft soap for us common folks to [illegible] the dose seem sweet. It was a typical [illegible] Congress, never forgetting that November [illegible] time of voting. It was a typical modern [illegible] gress, wordy, dilatory and never doing [illegible] what might be put off till tomorrow. Events in the Social World

Debutante Holding Attention of Society—Many Coming Out Parties, Balls, Receptions, Luncheons and other Parties Planned for Next Two Months.

THE debutante, her parties, her gowns, her flowers, her latest car and newest fad, are, in spite of the many weddings, of the most interest to the social world. In the autumn, with the season formally opened by the Veiled Prophet, she comes into her own, and until spring, when tired out and ready for rest, she goes to Europe or South or East, the debutante is in the limelight. Now, crowding the October and November days, are plans for coming out parties, balls, receptions, luncheons and whatnot, to fairly launch the new crop of buds upon their careers as future social leaders.

The opening dinner dance of the season at the Country Club last night was the occasion of at least two debutante parties. Miss Elizabeth Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter, was the honor guest at her parents' table. The guests included Miss Alice Busch and Miss Eleanor Simmons, 1921 and 1922 Queen of Love and Beauty; Miss Marceline Reyburn, Miss Mary Lemon Sipple, Miss Elizabeth Terry, Miss Mary Denman Clark, Miss Elizabeth Bemis, and Mahlon Wallace, Boyle C. Rhodes, Whitelaw Terry, Field Goltra, Marion and Francis Niedringhaus, Warren Chandler, John Shepley, Samuel Conant, Loisel Papin and Clarence Maloy.

At another table, presided over by Mr. and Mrs. J. Porter Tirrill, Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler was honoree. The guests were Miss Christine Vieths, Miss Claire Garneau, Miss Eleanor Richards, Miss Katherine Perkins, with an equal number of escorts.

According to dates, the following are the debut functions definitely planned. On Oct. 11 is Mrs. J. Howard Holmes' luncheon for Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler. On Oct. 14, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver F. Richards will have a table for their niece, Miss Eleanor Richards, at the Country Club dinner dance. Mrs. John Leigh Green of Kingsbury place will give a debutante luncheon honoring Miss Mary Lemon Sipple on Oct. 20, and on the following evening Mrs. Charles Fletcher Sparks will present her daughter to society at a dinner dance at the Country Club. The same evening Mr. and Mrs. Amadee Valle Reyburn will entertain 100 members of the debutante set at a dinner dance for their daughter, Miss Helen Reyburn. This party also will be given at the Country Club.

Miss Mary Lemon Sipple will make her formal debut at a reception to be given by her mother, Mrs. William Caleb Sipple, October 25, at their home in Brentmoor, and Miss Busch will give a buffet supper, October 27. On October 28 Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Wallace will be hosts at a dinner dance for Miss Elizabeth Carter. The last day of October, the 31st, will mark the second debutante party to introduce Miss Sipple. It will be a large ball at the Country Club.

Miss Virginia Cabanne Link will be the honor guest at a reception November 2 to be given by her aunt, Mrs. Frank Ruben Tate, and the following evening Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Boeckeler will present their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Boeckeler, at a ball at the Country Club. Miss Louise Woodruff, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Woodruff of 4 Kingsbury place, will be introduced at a reception to be given by her mother, November 9 at their home from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Thanksgiving eve will be the occasion of the ball to present Miss Elizabeth Carter, and on November 24, Miss Alice Scott, daughter of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott, will be honoree at a ball to be given by her mother, also at the Country Club.

MISS GEORGIA RIDDLE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Riddle of 5207 Lindell boulevard, has chosen Oct. 21 as the date of her wedding to Thomas T. Poleman. The ceremony will be performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Riddle at 6 o'clock by Chaplain Truman Post Riddle of Washington, D. C., a cousin of the bride. Chaplain and Mrs. Riddle will be guests eitehr of Mrs. Francis Fowler in Kingsbury place, or of Mrs. Truman Post Riddle, Chaplain Riddle's mother, 20 Westmoreland place. Mrs. Fowler, who is a cousin of the bride, will be matron of honor. Mr. Poleman has not announced the name of his best man. Guests at the wedding will include only members of the families. Mr. Poleman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Poleman, 5720 Clemens avenue.

TWO brides of this week have just announced the personnel of their bridal party.

Miss Dorothy Stewart, who will become the bride on Saturday evening of Meverell Locke Good, will have her sister, Miss Mary Stewart, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Leland D. Breckinridge as matron of honor. Miss Frances Treat, who will arrive in New York from Europe on Oct. 10; Miss Marie Clarkson, Miss Frances Hays will be bridesmaids, and Katherine Penn Stewart, a cousin of the bride-elect, will be flower girl. John H. Good of La Jolla, Cal., will be his brother's best man, and the groomsmen and ushers will be Carroll W. Davis of Buffalo, formerly of Kirkwood; George W. Brown of Youngstown, O.; Alcee W. Stewart of Indianapolis, brother of the bride; Richard R. Nelson of Kansas City, Mo.; Murray Edwards, Lawrence G. Miller, Ira Fischer, Leland D. Breckinridge and Capt. Gilder D. Jackson, U. S. M. C.

Miss Stewart is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alcee Stewart, 6249 Washington boulevard. The ceremony will be performed at St. Michael and All Angels' Church and will be followed by a reception at the Stewart home.

MISS MARGARET JACKES, daughter of Mrs. Franklin R. Jackes of 10 Thornby place, will have her sisters, Miss Dorothy Jackes and Mrs. E. Arthur Robertson of Chicago, as maid and matron of honor, respectively. Her niece, Helen Cornwell, will be flower girl. Miss Jackes will be married Tuesday evening to Frank C. Ball. The ceremony will be performed at the West Presbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock. There will be no reception. Mr. Ball will have Rufus Clabaugh as best man, and Hord Hardin, William King, George Bullock and Byron Mbser as groomsmen.

Mrs. John C. Roberts Jr., of 4931 Laclede avenue, gave a tea for Miss Jackes Friday, and on Wednesday Mrs. Thomas Granville Rutledge and Mrs. Harry D. Payne gave a bridge party at the home of the latter, 5186 Washington boulevard.

Miss Wilma Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Robinson of Webster Groves, will be hostess at a luncheon bridge and shower, Oct. 14, complimentary to Miss Eda Lincoln, who will marry Clarence C. Cushing Jr., on Nov. 8. The guests will include Misses Johephine Houts, Alice Hager, Ruth Harris, Clara Kooser, Beulah Rhodes, Jane Treadway, Katherine Starr, Frances Martin of South Dakota, Harriet Manter, Virginia Richardson, Carolyn Stover, Claire Rountree, Elizabeth Newsome, Helen Clayton and Mrs. A. G. Lincoln, mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Charles Wright, Mrs. J. O. Buchta, Mrs. Alfred Lee Booth, Mrs. Nelson Howe and Mrs. Edward Hart.

A SUPPER CLUB will be an innovation in St. Louis society this winter. Its organizers, a group of matrons well known in social circles, have planned that the club shall meet for dancing and supper every Wednesday evening at the Chase Hotel. Organizations of this character have flourished for several years in Eastern cities, but until now St. Louis has had no private invitation dancing clubs except those held in buildings owned by the various organizations. There will be 20 patronesses, and about 500 members of all ages in society will be invited to join. The patronesses include Mmes Harry Potter, Harrison Hoblitzelle, Daniel W. Jones, Edward Gillett Hotchkiss, G. Hayward Niedringhous, Eugene F. Williams Jr., Harold M. Kauffman, Lewis D. Dozier, Theron E. Catlin, Harold M. Bixby, Charles E. Bascom, and Misses Eleanor Simmons, Audrey Faust, Elizabeth Mauran and Marion Franciscus.

Mrs. Charlotte A. Parmelee of 5708 Enright avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lucile Locke Parmalee, to Joseph W. Gleason of New York, Monday, October 2, at New Orleans, La. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lordham College in New York.

OF interest to society here is the wedding of Miss Katherine Floyd-Jones, daughter of Robert H. Floyd-Jones, and John Sherman of New York, grandson of Gen. William T. Sherman of the Civil War. The ceremony was performed Monday at the summer home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Slingluff, and Lieut.-Com. Slingluff, at Jamestown, R. I.

Mrs. Sherman made her debut in St. Louis several years ago, and became a member of the Imperial. She recently returned to the United States after a several months' tour of Europe with her father. She was educated in the Sacred Heart Convents of Italy and France.

Mr. Sherman is the son of John Sherman Sr., of New York. He is a graduate of Harvard University and a member of several Eastern clubs. The bridal couple have arrived in St. Louis to be the guests of another sister of Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. J. Edgar Moser, 326 North Euclid avenue.

THE betrothal of Miss Margaret Ogle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell H. Ogle of 7050 Washington boulevard, and Thomas A. Cleveland, son of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Cleveland of 7039 Horner avenue, near Kirkwood, was announced at a bridge party given Thursday afternoon by the prospective bride, in honor of her guest, Miss Alice Virginia Bennett. There were four tables for cards. Miss Ogle is a graduate of Lindenwood College. Mr. Cleveland is an alumnus of Washington University and a member of Sigma Chi. The wedding will take place next spring.

FORMAL announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Mildred Cecilia Hadley, daughter of Leo G. Hadley, 3247 Longfellow boulevard, and Clarence Kelly Canelo, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Canelo of San Jose, Cal. Miss Hadley made her debut two years ago at a ball given at the Womens' Club, and has served several times as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. She was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville. Recently she toured Europe with her sister, Miss Alice Hadley, and a party of friends. Another sister is Mrs. Fred Forshey, formerly Miss Marie Hadley. Mr. Canelo is a student at the St. Louis University Medical School. He is an alumnus of the Santa Clara University of California.

CONSPICUOUS in a week of important social happenings were the weddings yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Blake Parker and Mason Scudder, and Miss Marjorie Raithel and Dr. Arthur C. Brooks.

First on the social calendar were the Parker-Scudder nuptials, which took place at 5:30 o'clock at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, the Rev. Dr. Joseph Henry George of Springfield, Ill., former pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Quantities of ferns and palms decorated the chancel, and at either side were tall vases of white chrysanthemums.

The attendants were Mrs. William Scott Snead of Montclair, N. J., sister of the bride, and Mrs. Earl Reynolds of Chicago, sister of the bridegroom, matrons of honor; Miss Patricia Parker, young sister of the bride, maid of honor, and Miss Mary Etta Randolph, Miss Elizabeth Bemis, Miss Mary Denman Clark, Miss Constance Mariner of Milwaukee and Miss Marion Warner of Lake Forest, Ill., bridesmaids. With the exception of Miss Parker they were gowned alike in French blue chiffon over a foundation of silver cloth. The bodices were concealed at the back by a silver lace cape, which was caught to each shoulder and fell to the waistline. The chiffon of the skirt was draped to the left side, and held to the silver girdle by French flowers. Miss Parker wore a pink chiffon frock simply made with wired flounces distending at the hips. Their hair was covered by a silver lace Egyptian cap flaring over the ears, and their flowers were pink roses tied with blue satin ribbon. Little Jane Scudder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson Scudder, who was the flower girl, wore flesh colored chiffon and lace and carried a basket of roses.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was gowned in white satin. Pearl embroidery on the bodice and the side panels of the skirt formed the only adornment save for the long, tight sleeves which were fashioned of rose point lace. The skirt was draped and quite long after the prevailing fashion, and caught at the girdle by a garniture of orange blossoms. The court train was of satin with designs of orange blossoms ornamenting it. Bands of the blossoms held in place the tulle bridal veil, arranged with a high ruff at the back. She carried gardenias, orchids and valley lilies.

The Parker home, 39 Washington terrace, where a reception was held following the ceremony, was decorated in pink roses and smilax. The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold-topped toilet water bottles, while Mr. Scudder gave his groomsmen silver belt buckles, and his bride a diamond and platinum wrist watch. After a honeymon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Scudder will be at home in the Warwick Court, where they have taken an apartment.

Earl Reynolds was his brother-in-law's best man, and the groomsmen were King and Herbert L. Parker Jr., brothers of the bride; Clifton Scudder, Charles Mullikin, Samuel Conant and John R. Shelpley.

Mrs. Scudder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lawrence Parker. She was educated at Mary Institute and Dobbs Ferry in New York. She made her debut last year, when she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball, and is a member of the Junior League. Mr Scudder, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles White Scudder of Vandeventer place, was educated at Princeton University and is a member of the Imperial and the St. Louis Country Club.

IN the sunroom of the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Raithel, 60 Kingsbury place, Miss Raithel became the bride at 8 o'clock of Dr. Brooks. The Rev. Dr. Schewitt, who arrived Friday from Tacoma, Wash., to be the pastor of the Grace Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony before an altor built of ferns and smilax and lighted by tall cathedral tapers. The bridal party

Missourians Taking Part in Washington Social Affairs

Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis Guest of League of American Pen Women; Missouri State Society to Meet Soon.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The reassuring news from the White House sick room has resulted in a relaxing of the tension around the Executive Mansion and President Harding has resumed his daily appointments. Last week he even had a house guest, Ambassador Myron Herrick, our Ambassabor to France, who is enroute to his post in Paris.

General John J. Pershing has returned to Washington after ten days' absence, during which time he was the guest in Massachusetts of former Governor W. Cameron Forbes at his summer place on the Massachusetts coast.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore of St. Louis was one of the guests at the special luncheon of the League of American Pen Women in honor of Mrs. Wood Allen Chapman, chairman of the division of motion pictures for the general Federation of Women's Club. Mrs. Moore is a member of the Advisory Council Mrs. Chapman has formed to assist her.

Washington soon is to entertain a cousin of the English King in the visit here of Lord and Lady Mount-Batten. Lord Mountbatten, before the war, was Prince Louis of Battenberg and he was one of the party that accompanied the Prince of Wales on his recent world tour. The Mountbattens will come to Washington next week and remain here a week.

Senator Selden P. Spencer of Missouri returned last week from his European trip as part of the senatorial delegation which attended the conference of the inter-parliamentary Union in Vienna. In the group were Senators Spencer, Ladd and McKinley. Senator McKinley was accompanied by his niece, Miss Julia Mattis.

Mrs. Spencer will come to Washington late this month and will then re-open her Bible classes at the Business Women's Council which are usually held in the Church of the Covenent.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Coontz and Miss Bertha Coontz have returned from Norfolk, Va., where they went to attend the bomb aerial tests of the navy. While in Norfolk they were the guests at a special reception given in their honor by the officers of the naval operating base in Hampton Roads, Va.

Mrs. Susie Root Rhodes, playground supervisor of the District of Columbia, who is visiting the Middle West, will spend part of this week in St. Louis, where she will make a thorough survey of the playground system in vogue there.

Mrs. John S. Henderson entertained at a tea dance on Thursday in honor of her subdeb granddaughter, Miss Beatrice Henderson. The guests included the younger members of the diplomatic corps.

Mrs. Lee Benoist, formerly of St. Louis, but who has had a house in Washington for the past few seasons, is spending a few days in Baltimore and will return to Washington later next week. Mrs. Benoist is at her house, 1311 New Hampshire avenue. Her daughter, Miss Nancy Benoist, who was to have made her debut this winter, will return to college instead.

Miss Nelle Millspaugh, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Frank C. Millspaugh, who is attending the George Washington University, entertained a number of her classmates at luncheon last Sunday, afterwards going on a motor ride with them.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, who have been absent from Washington some time, will return early in the month.

Plans for the first meeting of the Missouri State Society, of which Representative Frank C. Millspaugh is president, are being made. This meeting will take place the last Saturday in November and will include Missouri songs and addresses by prominent Missourians in Washington. The social entertainments which are a feature of this home State organization will not be held until after Christmas, when the members of the congressional delegation and their families will be in Washington.

"The Little Mother of National Clubhouses" is the way the local and national clubwomen are describing Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis, who has been instrumental in establishing the national clubhouse of the National Association of University Clubs and the national clubhouse of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. This latter club will be opened soon in the new headquarters recently purchased, which includes office rooms, clubrooms for members, a cafe and tearoom and a large auditorium.

descended the stairs and passed through an aisle of satin ribbon.

The bride's gown was of white canton crepe, embroidered in pearls and slashed at the sides to display the under gown of silver cloth. It was made on long straight lines with a girdle of crystals and pearls. A rare old scarf of Duchess lace formed the foundation of the train, and it was veiled in crepe and embroidered in pearls. Duchess lace, brought from Europe by Mrs. Raithel edged the tulle veil, and she carried orchids and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Frank Edgar Kauffman Jr., the matron of honor, was gowned in a robe of crystal over gold cloth. The girdle was also of crystal and there were no sleeves.

The maids, Miss Marion Laessig, Virginia Bolin, and Mrs. A. W. Delendorf, wore white cut velvet, made after the long lines, and draped to one side with a crystal ornament. They carried sunburst roses. John Kupferle Raithel, brother of the bride, was best man, and the groomsmen were Alfred Laessig, A. W. Dehlendorf, and Stuart Butler. Following a three week's honeymoon trip, Dr. and Mrs. Brooks will be at home with Mr. and Mrs. Raithel.

About the bridal table, heavy with its decorations of ophelia roses and valley lilies, besides the bridal party, Mrs. John Kupferle Raithel, Miss Doris O'Neil, Margaret Pedigo, Glenn Hill Jr., Walter Muckerman and Warren Drew. Mrs. Brooks presented her attendants with cut steel slipper buckles and Dr. Brooks gave the men in the party gold trimmed leather bill books.

Mrs. Brooks also was graduated from Mary Institute and made her debut last year. Dr. Brooks is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Brooks. He is a graduate of Washington University.

Mrs. F. A. Trick of 8484 McKean avenue, has returned to St. Louis after a year's absence in Europe. Mrs. Trick spent sometime in Paris, visiting her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Hamilton, and in traveling through Czecho-Slovakia, Germany, France and Austria. Mr. Hamilton is the grandson of J. Pierpont Morgan.

Mrs. P. J. Toomey of 11 Aberdeen place, has as her guest, her sister, Mrs. George B. Hufford of Austin, Tex. The visitor will remain during the month of October.

Miss Marvel Taylor, who will be married on October 25 to James J. Butler, was honoree at a bridge luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. James D. Moffat, 4009 Lindell boulevard. The guests were Misses Laverne Young, Melville Clements, Bernice and Helen Todd, Evelyn Burton, Marie Butler, Thelma Crolyn Cook, Virginia Fowler, Gertrude Riley, Mary Lynn, Georgine Culling, Alice Taylor, mother of the prospective bride, and Mrs. Louderman, mother of the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Brooks Remington and their niece, Miss Marion French, have returned from a three weeks' motor trip through the Northern states and Canada.

At a dinner party given Saturday, Sept. 30, at their home, 3912 Lafayette avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hardt announced the engagements of their twin daughters, Misses May Hardt, to Harry Gaines, and Miss Rose Hardt to James L. Cleary. Following the dinner the guests danced to music furnished by a stringed orchestra. Included in the party were Misses Anna Arendes, Isabelle Cleary, Leola Schumacker, Virginia Cleary, Messrs. Leo Walsch, Chartrand, Malcolm Sharpe, Nova Halliburton and Messrs. Harry Gaines, James L. Cleary and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hardt, B. L. Ottenad.

Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Flynn of 4206 Maryland avenue, have returned from a four months' sojourn in New York and Atlantic City, N. J.

The Ursuline Academy, Twelfth street and Russell avenue, will give a bazar and card party on the afternoons and evenings of October 20 and 21. Supper will be served each evening under the direction of Mrs. August Goessling, 22 Benton place.

The Kenesiah will give a dance tonight at Trimps' Dancing Academy.

Miss Mary Ruth Loftus, 4551 Adelaide avenue, who will be married October 17 to Joseph C. Weiler, was the honor guest at a bridge luncheon and shower given by Miss Ruth Weiler of Goodfellow avenue. The guests included Misses Marie and Catherine Haenni, Emily Lou and Thelma Barnicle, Anna Mae Barry, Margaret O'Mara, Catherine Barthels, Clare McGovern, Janet Owings, Leone Garvey, Bernice Rauch, Frances Probst, Mary and Anna Loftis and Virginia Weiler.

The demands of crippled, deformed and sick children will have the first call on St. Louis society maids and matrons all of this and next week, when 500 of the latter will seek funds for the St. Louis Children's Hospital, 500 South King's highway. The hospital is seeking $300,000 and hundreds of women have enlisted as team captains and workers. They will seek donations until Oct. 18.

The opening meeting of the campaign will be held at Hotel Statler tomorrow at 6:30 o'clock, when the final instructions regarding the financial effort will be given. The speakers will include Frank C. Rand, president of the International Shoe Co., who is general chairman of the campaign, and Robert McKittrick Jones, who is chairman of the Executive Committee.

The funds being sought will be used to erect an addition to the present hospital buildings on South King's highway and to meet the current operating expenses. The hospital in the last 43 years has cared for more than 17,000 children, a majority of the patients being cared for without cost to their parents.

The members of the Organizing Committee, include the following: Mmes. Philip B. Fouke, Charles H. Morrill, Harry H. Langenberg, Samuel C. McCluney, J. Lionberger Davis, Robert A. Holland Jr. and Louis M. McCall. Mrs. John T. Davis Jr. is chairman of the advanced Gifts Committee.

HYDE STATEMENT SHOWS ADVANCE IN AID FOR SCHOOLS

Governor Says Pay of Teachers Was Increased From $73 a Month in 1920 to $91 in 1921.

ATTENDANCE LARGER FOR LAST BIENNIAL

Executive Makes Plea for County Unit School Bill, to Be Voted on by Referendum.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 7.—Gov. Hyde in a statement today showing the increase in State aid to public schools, said that teachers' salaries have been increased from an average of $73 a month in 1920 to $91 in 1921. The State distributed $3,165,337 more to the schools; the school enrollment increased 42,226 and there was an increase of 19,000,000 in school attendance during the last biennial period.

The Governor's statement declared that appropriations for State institutions of higher education increased from $3,142,456 in 1919-1920, to $5,828,392 in 1921-1922.

The Governor recited the educational measures which were passed by the Legislature during his administration and made a plea for the county unit school bill, which will be voted on through the referendum in the November election.

Governor'se Statement.

The Governor's statement showing the marked increase in the educational field in the State follows:

"I have had several inquiries lately for the specific facts with reference to school improvements in Missouri during the last two years. Following are the facts:

"In 1920 teachers' salaries in Missouri averaged $73 a month. In 1921 teachers' salaries averaged $91 per month.

"During the years 1919-1920, the State distributed $5,911,673 of State money to the common and high schools of the State. During the years 1921-1922 the State distributed $9,077,010 of State money to the same schools—a gain to the schools of $3,165,337.

"Local school levies in 1920 amounted to $24,453,121; in 1921, $31,826,594—an increase of $7,373,473.

"The enumeration of school children was only 1275 greater in 1921 than in 1920, yet enrollment increased 42,226.

"The length of the school term in 1920 averaged 121 days in the country and 171 days in the towns business meeting at 2 o'clock. The program will consist of triennial news from the chairman, and a message for the day. Persons unable to attend the luncheon have been urged to go to the business meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's Association took place on Monday. Memberships were awarded for 1923 as attendance prizes to Miss Ollie Keiser and to Mrs. A. J. Engler. Mrs. P. M. Hogan, chairman of the Legislative Committee, reported the formation of a "Study Club," suggested by Dr. John M. Cooper. Miss Bertha Bruening, the president, was elected as delegate to the annual convention of the National Council of Catholic Women, to be held in Washington, Nov. 21—24, with Mrs. James W. Grace as alternate.

The followinig retire from the board this year: Mmes. Tessie Q. Dotzler and John J. Carey; Misses Kate Burns, Mary McNamara, Frances Clesse, Mae Kapple and Margaret Dandurand. Remaining on the board: Mmes. J. W. Grace, T. J. Flood; Misses Margaret Carolan, Christine Le Brun, Bertha Bruening, Estelle Nangle, Katheryn Murphy, Mary Gamble.

The Visiting Committee entertained the old folks at the City Infirmary, King's highway and Easton, Sept. 26, with a program by the Misses Gladys Moore, Dorothy Mast, Helen Eberhard, Irma Rudolph, Anna Burghoff and Mmes. Arthur Mahoney, Fred Wangles and M. Sanford. Mrs. Frank A. Labee entertained the members of this committee at her home on Sept. 20. The October hostess will be Mrs. S. L. Barnard, 3627 Laclede avenue. The C. W. A. Choral Club concert at the Odeon on the evening of Oct. 22, promises to be one of the best entertainments on the St. Louis musical calendar this season. The hundred women of the Choral Club, under the direction of Mrs. Nellie Hester Mullen, have been working for more than a year, and this, their first public appearance, is arousing much interest in musical circles. Tickets are now on sale at Baldwin's, 1111 Olive street.

The monthly meeting of the Thursday Club was held Oct. 5 at the home of Mrs. George F. Coleman, 3915 Russell avenue. There were 34 members present for the 1 o'clock luncheon preceding the business meeting. Election of officers was held with the following result: president, Mrs. T. J. Ewing; vice president, Mrs. J. C. Hull; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. C. H. Burdick. The retiring president has become a member of the executive board which will outline the work of the club for the following year. Mrs. Ewing was elected legislative representative. The next meeting will be held Nov. 2 with Mrs. Howard Bodelet, 4018 Castleman avenue.

The Junior Girls' Auxiliary of the Jewish Orphans' Home will hold a special meeting at the Bnai Amoona Synagogue, Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The monthly meeting of the South Side Women's Study Council will be held at the Barr Branch Library, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

A study group in social hygiene will be formed by the College Club of St. Louis at a meeting in its clubhouse on Delmar boulevard, Tuesday. Dr. Harriet S. Cory and Mrs. T. W. Van Scholack will be in charge.

The plan of study will be along the lines of former work by the organization but on a larger scale. The course will be that prepared by the United States Public Health Service. Doctor Cory will be the leader with Miss Leona Beckman as executive secretary.

The group will meet on the second and fourth Mondays of each month after the meeting Tuesday.

The Cantilever Idea

The enjoyable comfort and the added vigor which women secure from Cantilever Shoes come from certain improvements in construction of proved value. Ordinary Shoes are all made with strips of steel concealed in the arches. (See if your shoe will flex at the shank.) The Cantilever Shoe is designed with an all-leather arch that is flexible like your own arch.

This eases every step, gives poise, makes standing and walking natural, graceful and far less fatiguing. The lower Cantilever heel and the rounded toe were additional Cantilever comfort-details—these are now in Fashion.

COMFORT IS GOLDEN

Women—no matter in what walk of life—who wear Cantilever Shoes, step out alertly in footwear that suits and fits their feet; that prevents and corrects foot troubles to which physicians ascribe so many other ailments. When you lace Cantilevers, their flexible arches draw up to give each one of your arches the precise degree of support it needs.

The Cantilever Idea is Comfort of the highest degree at every point. Slip your feet into a pair and learn what foot comfort can be—what it means to you.

and cities; in 1921 school terms averaged 138 days in the country and 178 in the towns.

Number of Schools.

"The number of first-class high schools in Missouri increased from 329 in 1920 to 446 in 1922, a gain of 117 first-class high schools. During the same time the number of high schools of all classes increased from 612 to 689, a gain of 77.

'The total days' attendance in school, counting the attendance of one child one day as one day's attendance, increased from 170,893,558 in 1919-20 to 189,796,699 in 1921-22, an increase for the biennium of about 19,000,000 days. This is practically equivalent to an increase of giving 53,000 more children two full years' schooling.

"The record of appropriations for institutions of higher education tells its own story:

	Appropriation 1919-20.	Appropriation 1921-22.
Kirksville Normal	$ 281,448	$ 628,125
Warrensburg	281,000	525,500
Cape Girardeau	254,608	459,342
Springfield	265,400	576,475
Maryville	236,500	454,850
Rolla School of Mines	291,500	533,000
State University	1,532,000	2,651,000
Totals	$3,142,456	$5,828,392

"In 1920 there were 852 schools which under the Constitution could not raise by local taxation more than $195 a year to support themselves; today there are only 252 such schools. In 1920 there were only 975 schools in the State which could raise over $520 a year by local taxation; today there are 6206 such schools.

Enactments by Assembly.

"In addition to the above facts, measures were enacted by the General Assembly in 1921 providing:

1—State aid for teacher's training high schools was increased 100 per cent, thus enabling boards to employ the best qualified teachers as instructors.

2—Maximum wages and State aid for rural schools was increased 50 per cent.

3—A four-year high school course was exacted of all teachers.

4—Negro inspector of colored schools to be appointed by the State Superintendent.

5—High school training was provided for colored children.

6—Instruction must be given relating to care and hygiene of teeth.

7—Lincoln Institute was made a university.

8—Free county libraries can be established by law.

9—All teachers must secure a health certificate from a reputable physician.

10—Ninth and tenth grades may be taught in local districts.

11—A physical education law was passed.

12—The rehabilitation of injured persons was provided for.

13—The county unit, the most important single law enacted, provides for the larger school unit, a uniform tax rate for the entire county, a county school board of six members elected by the voters of the county, a county superintendent selected by the county board who is the secretary and chief executive officer of the board, and a local school board, which is given the power to nominate all teachers and provide for the upkeep of the school buildings and other improvements. This law has temporarily been held up by the referendum and will be acted upon by the voters at the November election in 1922.

PITTSBURG'S FOG PROBLEM MAY BE SOLVED BY SCIENTISTS

River to Be Lubricated With Oil Film to Prevent Vapor Arising —Sprays to Be Used.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 7.—Pittsburg's fog problem may be solved this winter by local scientists.

Lubrication of the Monongahela River is the keynote of an idea which is being developed at the Mellon Insttute. Dr. H. B. Meller, dena of the School of Mines of the University of Pittsburg, and officials of the War Department and Weather Bureau are co-operating.

The Monongahela, according to scientists, is the chief villain in Pittsburg's fog troubles. The river, which is warmer than the air sweeping through the valley, gives up a portion of its water, which rises as vapor and quickly cools.

A film of oil prevents this union, but the problem for the investigators at Mellon Institute was to concoct a mixture that could be used at a reasonable expense.

A satisfactory spray has been discovered, Dean Meller has announced. In preliminary tests this spray covered small areas of water, and was only 1-25th as thick as the ordinary oil film which is used to destroy mosquitoes.

The first experiment on the Monongahela will be made within a few days. The bombardment will be from a tug. Specially constructed nozzles will be used to spray an area of about one mile. Subsequent activities will depend upon the outcome of this test.

SHE COULDN'T SEE THE BRIDGE AHEAD

DR. F. J. GUILBAULT
OPTOMETRIST
and OPTICIAN

A wide road—a narrow bridge, and a moving motor was the combination that spelt disaster for a near-sighted woman automobilist.

She couldn't see the narrow bridge in time to alter the car's course and the motor plunged down the bank into a ravine, seriously injuring several of the occupants of the machine.

A careful eye test in my office would have enabled me to have prescribed the exact glasses required to normalize her vision, thus preventing the possibility of this accident.

This is a true case, and there are thousands of similar ones every day. The public should insist upon vision tests for every motor driver. It means protection for themselves as well as for others. Headaches are one of the commonest indications of defective vision. If you suffer from headaches, don't delay, come to my office at once where I will examine your eyes, prescribe the exact glasses to normalize your vision, grind the lenses, and fit the frames—all for the most moderate fee imaginable.

Thirty thousand persons have employed my services in the past eighteen years—an eloquent testimonial to my integrity, my ability, and the extreme reasonableness of my charges.

Worthy the Queen of Love and Beauty herself

They say, continental travelers who have viewed the new Town Buick, that it is a car to attract enduring enthusiasm on the stateliest boulevards of the world; indeed, a car worthy the Queen of Love and Beauty herself.

Custom-built by one of the foremost coach makers of America—the body has the charm and distinction, characteristic of the fine old traditions handed down by the master carriage builders of the last century.

Fully to appreciate the consummate craftsmanship embodied in this special Town Buick, you must see it with your own eyes. Mounted on the 1923 Buick 6-cylinder chassis, the car is now on display at the Grand and Lindell Salesroom.

Bodies painted in dark blue, dark green or maroon, with upholstery to match. Metal fittings on doors, windows and accessories either nickeled or silver finished. Dome and inside corner lights controlled by inside tumbler switch. Large bellows type pockets, with concealing flaps, conveniently placed in the sides of the body. Two folding chairs disappear under back of chauffeur's seat. A mahogany case on each side of car provides space for mirror, memo book, card case and billfold, electric cigar-lighter and ash tray. Beneath foot-rest is a heater, turned on or off by a control in chauffeur's compartment. Price, $3075, delivered St. Louis.

William H. Kahn, discoverer of new beauty method which experts say performs miracles on sallow, ugly skins.

How a St. Louis specialist is amazing experts with simple cream poultice of plants and flowers, containing no "beauty clay" or artificial bleach, which clears up a muddy skin in 20 minutes, leaving it soft and lovely as a baby's—glowing, radiant!

That a sallow, lifeless skin, even one mottled and disfigured with blackheads and freckles, can be cleared up and made as soft and white and lovely as a baby's in 20 minutes is the astonishing statement of William P. Kahn, internationally noted specialist in beauty culture.

But more astonishing still are the almost miraculous transformations this man has recently brought about in proof of his theory.

Purges the Pores

The method of which Mr. Kahn is the discoverer is unlike any other ever perfected. Dermatological authorities say it has no parallel in the annals of beauty culture. It is a simple cream-poultice, compounded of plants and flowers, called Kantol. It affects the pores like a laxative does the bowels—cleans out the poisonous accumulations.

Containing no bleach, no harsh chemicals, no clay or "beauty mud," it purges every pore in your face within 20 minutes. You apply it like cold cream and results are unbelievable until you see them with your own eyes.

At the recent Beauty Congress dark-skinned women and girls, women with mottled, ugly skins were brought in for the Kantol treatment.

In one application their skins were lightened from four to seven shades. Blackheads were removed—every one. Freckles and fine lines disappeared as if by magic. Beauty experts from all the world stood awed before what was done, for instant beauty, an unattractive woman transformed, had become a reality.

You could see Kantol work, could see the germ-laden oil being discharged, the blackheads coming out; radiant charm taking the place of drab unattractiveness before your own eyes.

Now at St. Louis Stores

The secret preparation—Kantol—used by William P. Kahn in working these amazing skin transformations is now obtainable, for use at home, at various drug and department stores. In Saint Louis at Nugents, Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Famous-Barr, Grand-Leader, Vandervoort's and other stores. Or a supply can be obtained by mail postpaid, for a limited time by mailing the coupon below. Send no money, but pay the postman $1.50 when he delivers it to you.

UNITED ATTACK ON POINDEXTER IN WASHINGTON

Senator Borah of Idaho Going to State to Reply to Charge That His Colleague Is No Longer Progressive.

WOULD STILL OUTCRY OF "REACTIONARY"

Re-election of Senator, However, Considered Certain With Chief Interest as to Majority.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1922.)

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 7.—Senator Miles Poindexter will be re-elected. That's a foregone conclusion. What is more interesting is the kind of attack being made against him and the platform on which Poindexter is seeking re-election.

To begin with, the critics say Poindexter is no longer a Progressive, and this, of course, is a Progressive State. Poindexter answers that he is just as much a Progressive as he ever was, but if by the word "progressive" is meant radical, he doesn't care to qualify. In fact, Poindexter brings to his side the eminent Progressive, William E. Borah, Senator from Idaho, who speaks here soon for the Republican nominee, If Borah puts the stamp of approval on Poindexter, that is considered sufficient to still the outcry of "reactionary."

Situation Has Changed.

But Poindexter has changed. The situation has changed—conditions are far different today than they were in the Roosevelt days. The ultra-radical has had his fling here and the conservative elements have the upper hand. Poindexter hasn't hesitated to speak his mind plainly on the question of capital and labor, and he has spoken boldly in towns were labor was strong. He is making much the same kind of campaign here that Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, is making in Ohio. All of which goes to show that neither party has much of a monopoly on the conservative tendencies of the hour.

But it is significant that behind Poindexter are practically all wings and factions of the Republican party. That is his strength and at the same time his weakness. Too many Republicans are so cocksure that Poindexter has an easy race that they will not take the trouble to vote. The Republican leaders have more to fear on this score than any and while they don't like to say it, they recognize that Representative C. C. Dill, Democrat, has a united party behind him and is something of a vote-getter himself.

Unique Feature of Race.

Dill's position is unique. If his party assistants were to confess, they would concede they wanted somebody else to run. They thought it would take another type of candidate to beat Poindexter. They claim to be satisfied, however, and are counting on the natural protest vote and cumulative dissatisfaction to help them on election day. Dill, by the way, voted against American entrance into the war and later voted against conscription. It is amusing to see this issue side stepped.

The Republicans are mindful of the overwhelming victory won by LaFollette in Wisconsin on an out and out anti-war record and they want no such issue raised. The Democrats are just as happy to let it die too, so the chances are neither side will make a fuss about what happened in 1917.

The psychology of this is worthy of more than passing mention. Do Americans really regret that America entered the war and saved the world from what seemed at the time a domination of Kaiserism? The truth of the matter is that the burdens of war are much more widely known and felt today than they were in 1917 and the fact is, war making is more unpopular now than it ever was. As to whether in the circumstances that existed, a member of Congress was right in voting against war is quite another matter. The probabilities are that persecution of a man who tried to exercise an independent judgment, mistaken as it may have been, leads to the counter attack.

Attitude of Republicans.

The Republicans have no intention of making Dill a martyr and the Democrats are busily engaged in showing that out of 168 opportunities to support President Wilson on his war measures, Dill voted 166 times with the Democratic executive. So it would not seem as if either side cares to make in Washington at least, a campaign on war issues and it is suspected here that if La Follette hadn't been singled out for such extensive criticism, he might not have been so fortunate in the vote this year in his own state. Persecution—or what seemed to be presecution for independent judgment—was really voted against in the LaFollette case and the people here are not anxious to make the same mistake.

Analyzing the situation throughout the State one finds that the radicals, farmer-labor voters and other elements which Roosevelt termed the "lunatic fringe," are not organized. Had they combined they might have overturned Poindexter in the primaries. Poindexter re-

RAILROAD TRESTLE IN BADEN DAMAGED BY AN EXPLOSION

Charges Set Off Simultaneously at Both Ends of Bridge, Used by Katy and Burlington.

TRAFFIC RESUMED IN A FEW HOURS

Attempt to Wreck Structure Is Third in or Near St. Louis Since Shopmen's Strike Began.

An attempt yesterday to blow up the Burlington and Katy railroad trestle in Baden was the third time in which explosives were used in an effort to destroy railroad bridges in or near St. Louis since the beginning of the railroad shopmen's strike, July 1.

The Baden trestle, spanning a roadway 300 feet north of Doddridge street, midway between Broadway and the Mississippi River, was put out of commission for three and one-half hours by an explosion which occurred at 5:30 a. m. The trestle, 30 feet long, covers the roadway at a height of 15 feet and rests upon two concrete abutments.

Charges, the nature of which have not been definitely established, were set off simultaneously at both ends of the trestle. The explosion lifted the trestle about four inches, bent and twisted the rails at both ends of the bridge, and tore a section about two feet square from each abutments.

No trains were scheduled to cross the trestle before 8 a. m., two and one-half hours after the explosion. An outbound Burlington passenger train, which departed from Union Station at 7:30 a. m., arrived at the trestle half an hour later, and was delayed an hour.

A crew of repairmen was set to work within half an hour after the explosion, and as soon as the trestle was repaired, at 9 a. m., traffic was resumed. Meanwhile Katy trains headed for St. Louis were detoured from Machens, St. Charles County, to Alton, arriving at Union Station an hour behind their regular schedule.

The Baden trestle is about 500 yards from a Burlington roundhouse and the Katy freight yards in North St. Louis.

An attempt was made the night of Aug. 24 to blow up a Burlington Railroad trestle one mile east of Spanish Lake, in St. Louis County, 17 miles north of St. Louis. About two feet of one of the rails and three cross ties on the bridge were damaged.

On the night of Aug. 14 explosives were set off in two places on the bridge of the Wabash Railroad at King's highway, Northwest, and a few ties were split. The Wabash night train to Kansas City, leaving Union Station at 10:30 p. m., was due at the trestle about 45 minutes after the explosion.

Chicago Social Worker to Speak.

Wilfred Reynolds, director of the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, will address the members of St. Louis Community Council at their bimonthly meeting Tuesday night at Central High School Auditorium, Grand boulevard and Windsor place. Reynolds also is president of the National Children's Home Society, made up of children's homes throughout the country. Plans for the establishment of a speakers' bureau on social and civic topics will be considered at the meeting and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

UNITED ATTACK ON POINDEXTER IN WASHINGTON

ceived about 43 per cent of the Republican vote. This is more to be sure than he got six years ago, but it proves that nearly 60 per cent of the vote in the Republican party is scattered and might some day be combined to the distress of the regulars.

The Nonpartisan League followers have preferred to work through a third ticket instead of through the regular parties, which accounts for the difference between Washington and its neighboring states in the West.

Poindexter's Main Plea.

Senator Poindexter is making much of the conference on limitation of tournament. It's true one hears less talk of war with Japan than ever before. The Washington conference, together with the demonstration of land and sea power in the recent war have removed the war bogey and the Pacific Coast is doing a better business with Japan than anybody dreamed would be possible so soon after the European war. Business on the coast is better and in the State of Washington it is improving so rapidly that the Republican party will not suffer the expected ills of a period of adversity.

The discussion here is whether Poindexter will win by 40,000 or whether his majority will be reduced to 30,000. The Republican campaign managers will be disappointed if they get 30,000—that's what they say, but it will be a pleasing moment for them none the less if the count shows 25,000.

WABASH SHOPMEN IN NEW ORGANIZATION

System Has Nearly 3000 Men to Replace 3400 Who Left; Strikers Taken Back as Individuals.

A new association of shop craft employes on the entire Wabash system has been formed to replace the union whose members went out on strike, it was announced yesterday by President J. E. Taussig of the Wabash. All men now at work in the shops are said to be members.

The Wabash now has nearly 3000 men at work in the positions of the 3400 who walked out July 1. Strikers are being taken back, on individual application, if their records are satisfactory to the railroad.

The other four large railroads with general offices here—the Frisco, the Missouri Pacific, the Cotton Belt and the "Katy"—announced some time ago that new organizations were being formed on their systems in place of the strikers' unions. All of these roads have said that they consider the strike to be over.

Hooded Men Give Church $50.

SEDALIA, Mo., Oct. 7.—Friday night during the dedicatory ceremonies of a new lighting plant in the Christian Church at Hughesville, 12 miles northwest of this city, 12 hooded figures marched into the church and placed $50 on the pulpit. The Klansmen then dropped to their knees, while one of them offered a prayer, then marched out.

American Missionaries Honored.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

RANGOON, Sept. 11.—Two American missionaries in Burma have been honored by the Indian Government for important and useful services in the advancement of public interests. They are Dr. D. C. Gilmore of the faculty of Judson College, Rangoon, and Dr. O. Hanson, a missionary to the Kachins. To each was given the Kaisar-i-Hind gold medal.

LEAGUE SEEN AS YOUTH COME TO AGED WORLD'S AID

Correspondent at Geneva Says Secretariat, of Young Men, Is Heart of Real Activities.

"BODY ONLY HOPE OF DISTRACTED NATIONS"

Its Principle of Getting Men From Several Lands Together Around Table Is Working, Observer Says.

By G. LOWES DICKINSON,
Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the Manchester Guardian.

GENEVA, Oct. 7.—A day of rest invites some attempt to gather together one's impression of what the League of Nations really amounts to. This is not best to be discovered from the first formal meeting of the Assembly, devoted to what is supposed to be a discussion of the Council's report on the work of the past year, but is really rather a platform for the delegates to express their general attitude.

What was interesting in this discussion was what seemed to be an attempt on the part of the more keen and eager members to claim for the assembly a larger share in that task of reconstruction for which the world is still waiting in vain. Lord Robert Cecil, M. Motta of Switzerland, Dr. Nansen, and the surprisingly eloquent and attractive delegate from Haiti all took this note. "The League," said Lord Robert, "must be all or nothing." Wherein fell, like a gentle rain from heaven or the other place, M. Fanotaux's interpretation. The phrase, he said, really means "Nothing excessive."

Something Important Doing.

It is when one gets to the Secretariat, attends committees, and talks to the permanent staff, that one begins to feel that something very important is going on. For in the committees the questions are handled that the assembly can only debate, and the work of the committees is prepared and carried on by the very able young men who fill the Hotel des Nations. I desire to repeat the word "young." Since the war I have waited, as it seemed in vain, for youth to take in hand the affairs of a distracted world ruined by old age. In the secretariat of the League I seemed to have found it.

True, all that is most immediately urgent and important is removed from all control of the League and reserved for those governments, acting on their old maxims, who have landed us in the imminent peril in which we now stand. It is they who, by their treatment of the reparation question, have brought Europe to the verge of economic collapse, they who have egged on the combatants in Turkey, they who maintain the atmosphere and feeling of war in a world craving for peace.

But though that is so, and though it may be that this work of the league is but the decoration of the saloon of a sinking ship, yet it deserves much fuller recognition than the public has given it. For it is the one and only hope of a distracted world. It embodies a new principle of action. And that principle is making itself good; much as, on the rare (all too rare) occasions when the ethics of the New Testament are applied, they astonish men by the simplicity and the triumph of their results.

The principle is the very simple one of getting the representatives of different nations to sit round a table, in the light of publicity. The men are not exceptionally good, nor their motives exceptionally high. But the egoism of one State is corrected by what, in that particular question, is the impartial judgment of another. A common purpose, bent on doing the thing justly and properly, grows up.

There are views that cannot be avowed, conduct that cannot be maintained. The average best comes to the surface, instead of the particular worst. And men work, not, indeed, like angels nor in perfection, but with that measure of decency which, after all, most men want to maintain, everywhere except where self-interest becomes too strong for them.

Germans in Poland.

Let us take, as examples, two questions which have fallen in the last year within the province of the league. One concerns the treatment of the German minorities in Poland. This is a question with a long history. Before the war the Germans were bent on colonizing their Poland with Germans, and the Poles, on frustrating that endeavor with all the powers at their command. Now that German Poland is Polish, it would be expecting of human nature more than is reasonable if there were not attempts at retaliation.

The question, like most questions when one goes into them, is one of great complexity, legal and other. But the point to which I wish to draw attention is that, although Germany is not a member of the league, and is not therefore directly represented on the council which deals with the question, her claims and interests have not been, as they easily might be, brushed aside. The report

Cash Value of Experience $208,983.52

IN the administration of a large estate we recently obtained a reduction of the Federal Inheritance Tax of $208,983.52.

The saving of this amount was due primarily to the efficient service and technical knowledge of our Inheritance Tax experts. At the same time, the estate paid the Government all that was legally due. This saving did not increase the cost of administration of this estate one penny.

You cannot leave your wisdom and experience, but, by appointing the St. Louis Union Trust Company Executor of your estate, you secure the benefit of our experience for your heirs.

The officers of this Company have the advice and counsel of the following successful business men:

War Mothers to Organize.

Organization of a St. Louis chapter of the American war mothers will be started at a meeting called for 10:30 tomorrow morning in the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney auditorium. Mrs. J. H. Wilson, of Warrensburg, head of the Missouri organization, and Mrs. H. H. McClure, of Kansas City, first national vice president, will be the speakers. A chapter list was started with an enrollment of thirty in a preliminary organization meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. Frank DeGarmo, 6186 Washington avenue. Membership is limited to women who had sons or daughters in the world war.

8 MINISTERS TO PREACH FIRST TIME HERE TODAY

Two Other M. E. Pastors Assigned Here Have Not Arrived Yet.

Eight ministers assigned to new posts in the St. Louis district of the St. Louis conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the recent conference at Flat River, Mo, will preach their opening sermons this morning. Supply ministers will preach at the Creve Coeur and Vinita Park M. E. Churches for pastors who have not arrived.

The churches, the new ministers and the points from which they were assigned, are:

Cabanne, M. E., 5760 Bartmer avenue, the Rev. Dr. G. E. Cameron, Lexington, Ky.

Ferguson M. E., Ferguson, the Rev. Arthur Mather, Kirkwood.

Grand Avenue, 3174 South Grand boulevard, the Rev. E. H. Orear, Cape Girardeau.

Scruggs Memorial, 3678 Cook avenue, the Rev. R. C. George, Ferguson.

Shaw Avenue, 4265 Shaw avenue the Rev. J. O. Ensor, Wagoner Place M. E. Church.

University, 6901 Washington boulevard, the Rev. W. E. Sullens, Yale University.

Wagoner Place, 1521 Wagoner place, the Rev. S. M. Robinson, former presiding elder of the Charleston district.

Creve Coeur, the Rev. C. M. Hicks will supply for the Rev. E. C. Atkins, who has not arrived from Savannah, Ga.

Vinita Park, the Rev. C. O. Ransford will supply for the Rev. R. E. Ledbetter, who has not arrived from Houston, Tex.

Kirkwood, the Rev. H. H. Johnson, former secretary of the Mission Board, St. Louis.

Bible School Attendance.

The average daily attendance at the Daily Vacation Bible Schools during the past summer in thirty-three churches, embraced in the Church Federation of St. Louis, was 4464. The period of time during which the schools were conducted varied from three to six weeks, with two and one-half hours a session. The number of teachers employed was 246, of whom 132 served without compensation. The total cost of the schools was $4,287.91. Of this amount $3,149.91 was paid to teachers and the balance, $1,138.41, for materials. The average cost per pupil was 96 cents for the entire period.

LEAGUE SEEN AS YOUTH COME TO AGED WORLD'S AID

issued by M. de Gama, president of the council, gives what appears to be an admirably impartial survey of the issues, states the German and Polish points of view, and suggests the reference of the disputed questions to a judicial commission, representative of Spain, France and Britain. This report the council adopted.

The other matter illustrating the methods and importance of the league is that of mandated territories. This is a most interesting and important question. For it is the beginning, though only the beginning, of the introduction into the colonial regime of common principles of administration controlled by the best public opinion of Europe. How much this is needed and how much it may accomplish will be realized by anyone who remembers the Congo atrocities, the Matabele wars, and the many other blots upon the intercourse of the white man with the black.

The mandatory system is applied, at present, only to the colonies taken from Germany. It is no use complaining of this fact, which, however, is bound to result in many anomalies, such, for example, as the conscription of natives in one sort of colony and its prohibition in another. The point of interest is that the new regime seems likely to prove of such value and efficiency that it may become increasingly desirable to extend it by degrees to all colonial domains.

Work Is Conscientious.

The Mandates Commission, which sits annually before the meeting of the Assembly, has begun its work with conscientious thoroughness. It has drawn up questionnaires defining the points on which it wishes for information from the mandatory Powers in their annual reports—such as slavery, labor conditions, the liquor traffic, military and police, land tenure, education, public health and that provision for economic equality which is binding upon the mandatories so far as the A and B mandatories are concerned.

In this way, not only will constant information be available but any abuses or suspected abuses will be inquired into and commended on by the representatives of other Powers than the one concerned, acting without temptation to conceal the facts. In the preparation of its report the commission is assisted by the presence of representatives of the Governments concerned in the administration, and can thus ascertain and test the facts by the method of question and answer. The report for this year, which lies before me, contains 100 pages and is packed with interesting and important matter.

There is one question in particular, small in itself but of interest to the British Empire, to which it may be worth while to refer more particularly. It is the administration of the Island of Nauru, for which the British Empire has the mandate. The Mandates Commission expressed some anxiety that the interests of the natives might be subordinated to the exploitation of the potassium, which is the principal product of the island, and doubted whether the mandatory power, by reserving the ownership and exclusive exploitation of the resources of the territory to itself, has brought its policy into true harmony with the requirements of the mandate. The representative of Australia responsible for the administration of the mandate has issued a reply intended to reassure the commission and the public. There is not good space here to discuss the question. But what is interesting is the fact that the mandatory system has led to this public comment and investigation.

Another important matter concerning the British Empire—the expedition against the natives of Southwest Africa—occurred after the drafting of the commission's report. It has been referred to in the Assembly, which has decided to await the report of the South African Government. With regard to this, it may be noted that a small deputation here to Sir Edgar Walton, suggested the inclusion in the South African Committee of Inquiry of some person appointed by the League of Nations, which is responsible ultimately for the good administration of the territory. Gen. Smuts, himself the reputted author of the mandates clauses of the Covenant, is not likely to be indifferent to this important issue.

"Here's a Prescription That Did the Work for Me."

When a friend offers you a prescription that "worked fine" for him—don't take it. That is, be nice about it in refusing. You don't want to hurt his feelings.

But here's the point: If that prescription worked fine—FOR HIM—it means that the doctor found what the trouble was and knew just what would help nature to get started again.

In your case, the proportions might have to be changed a lot—even something entirely different—to help you any.

Don't ask a friend. Ask a doctor.

Our part is to see that you get exactly what he orders for you.

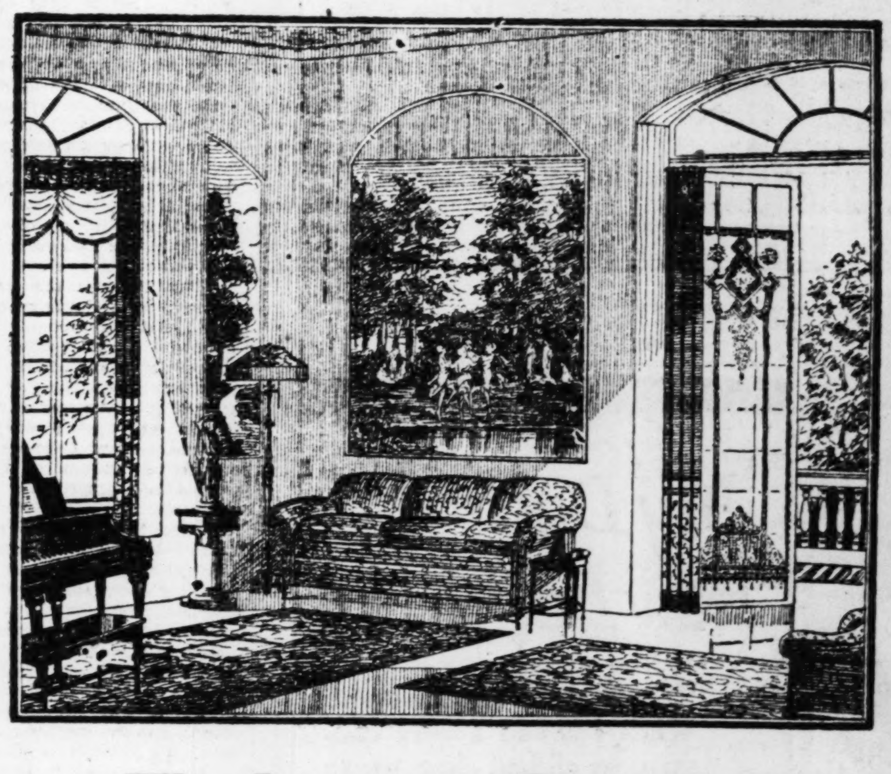
J. Kennard & Sons—4th and Washington

The day for paying excessive prices for beautiful Home Furnishings has passed. For surprisingly reasonable prices you may purchase at Kennard's Furniture, Rugs, Carpets, Linoleums and Draperies of reliable manufacture and highly artistic in appearance



American Rugs

The designing of American Rugs has progressed from year to year until we believe that those for this season embrace every artistic requirement.

Of Wilton Rugs, the Anglo-Persian, the French Wiltons and the Bundhar Wiltons dominate the Wilton field as having the largest range of designs, the greatest variety of colorings and are the most lustrous and the finest of all American-made rugs.

Our selections of Axminster Rugs are comprehensive in designs and colorings and of a quality to be depended upon as furnishing satisfactory wear.

In Velvet Rugs we carry a full line of new and popular designs in various colorings. These Rugs are recommended as excellent floor coverings for a moderate outlay.

You will find in searching for Rugs such as you may have in mind, that time and money will both be saved by inspecting our large assortments.

All Rugs are priced at the lowest prices. A call will demonstrate this to be a fact.

The Lingering Beauty of the New Draperies

Even if all else be beautiful, if the window and doorway hangings be not in accord, the effect upon yourself, your family and your friends is adversely critical.

It has therefore been our duty and pleasure to select from the best domestic and foreign sources new fabrics, new designs and new colors in order to do our part in sustaining the movement for the beautification of interiors that is adding so much to the charm of many homes.

We show new Laces, new Nets, new Voiles, new Casement Cloth, new Silks, new Linens, new Cretonnes, new Velours, new Velvets and many new novelties. Made up or by the yard.

It is a colorful and interesting exhibit—and we always seem to have those exclusive effects so dear to most women.

You will find here every advantage in making selections and every satisfaction in the price you pay.

Oriental Rugs

Every year more people are buying Oriental Rugs, and in a number of St. Louis homes many fine and rare specimens are to be seen.

This is largely because our selections have been special importations and not from the run of the market.

The beauty and extent of the Kennard collection will prove a revelation to those who seek the world's most wonderful floor coverings.

Every weave shown is authentic, every rug is intrinsically valuable, every design is distinctive, every coloring bewildering in lovely hues.

All sizes. This largest assortment in the largest carpet sizes should have the attention of all who have large living rooms where the floor covering should be an integral part of the decorative scheme. From these splendid widths and lengths the sizes run on down to the smallest rug.

You are invited to inspect this remarkable collection and to see how newly and beautifully you can add to the pleasure you are taking in your home.

Exclusive Furniture at Popular Prices

It is a matter of considerable interest to the thousands who visit our Furniture Floors to find, first, so large an assortment of attractive styles; second, to learn from the price tag how low each suite and individual piece is priced. It is a presentation accomplished without sacrifice of quality. We believe we show the best values to be seen anywhere, and we know that upon comparison, grade for grade, our prices are the lowest. See our Living Room, Sunroom, Breakfast Room, Dining Room and Bedroom Furniture for the most desirable that can be bought with truest economy.

Kennard's 4TH & WASHINGTON

TWO CASES IN MEMPHIS RAISE ISSUE OF FREEDOM OF PRESS

the Court's course, and as an instance of such unfavorable comment here in Memphis, they introduced the editorial printed Sept. 7 by the Press. An article from the Literary Digest, commenting unfavorably on the proceedings also was offered.

Judge Ross, after hearing Cohen's defense, declared Cohen guilty of a violation of the injunction, and fixed his penalty at a six months' jail term, a $1000 fine and costs.

Late in the afternoon of the same day a warrant for the arrest of G. V. Sanders, managing editor of the Press, on a charge of contempt of court was issued. Sanders was arrested at his home at night and gave $1000 bond for his appearance a few days later, at which time the case was set for Oct. 16.

Cohen has filed an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and the appeal will be heard before the Judges of the Sixth Circuit, sitting at Cincinnati. He is still editing the Labor Review, and has printed a number of editorials and news articles bearing on his case and that of Sanders.

Sanders is still actively in charge of the Press, and while he has local counsel, it is expected that lawyers of the Scripps-McRae interest, which controls the paper, will be prominent in his defense.

Difference in Cases.

An important difference in the Cohen and Sanders cases, and one which does not appear favorable to Sanders, in considering the probable outcome of his case, was pointed out to the Post-Dispatch correspondent by District Attorney Murray.

"Cohen was found guilty of violating the injunction," the District Attorney said, "but the injunction does not figure in the case against Sanders. The offense of contempt, with which he is charged, does not depend upon the injunction, and the same charge could be made if Sanders had commented editorially upon any case before the court.

"It should be borne in mind that Cohen's case was before the court at the time when Sanders published his editorial. While a case is pending, no newspaper or individual may do or say anything tending to embarrass the Judge, or to suggest or dictate to him.

"If Sanders had waited until after the Court found Cohen guilty, and had then printed an article censuring the Court for its action, he would not have been liable to the contempt charge. Vardaman's Weekly, published in Mississippi, denounced the Court bitterly for its action in the Cohen case, but this did not constitute contempt, as the case had then passed out of the Court's hands."

Sanders a Fighter.

Sanders, at present the principal figure in the case, is 31 years old, and is aggressive, likable and seemingly unafraid. He came to Memphis in July from Houston, Tex., where he was in charge of a daily controlled by the Scripps-McRae interests. There, at the time of the Galveston longshoremen's strike of two years ago, Sanders played a stormy-petrel role. In an editorial in his paper in Houston, Sanders attacked the military-law administration of Galveston.

An order was issued by the military authorities for Sanders' arrest, in case he went within the Galveston military zone. He did not go there, and a few days lated two lieutenants seized him near Houston and attempted to take him to Galveston. Sanders' friends interfered and the officers withdrew. Sanders brought suit against militia officers, alleging illegal arrest, and this suit is still pending in the Texas courts.

"In that case," Sanders remarked to the Post-Dispatch correspondent, "I got into trouble because the Constitution had been temporarily suspended, through the declaring of martial law.

"My present trouble appears to be for the same reason—the suspension of the Constitution, through the injunction processes of the Federal courts.

Disagres With Cohen.

"So far as Cohen's article was concerned, I did not agree with his ideas, nor did I like the way he expressed them. But I do deny the right of the Federal courts to put him in jail for it.

"In what I wrote, it is hardly necessary for me to say, I had not the slightest intention of influencing the Court in the case on trial, or in any other case.

"My editorial was a discussion of a constitutional question, not a discussion of Jake Cohen's case. And this, as I see it, is the big, fundamental question involved in my trial: it is the question whether an editor must refrain from discussing any great public issue the moment it gets into the courts.

"This Government, theoretically, permits and encourages the greatest freedom in discussion of public questions. Carrying out our ideals of free speech, we allow our legislators unusual freedom in their discussions. For it was the intention of the Constitution that all laws should issue from the Legislatures or from Congress.

"But these blanket injunctions such as Judge Wilkerson issued at Chicago and Judge Ross at Memphis virtually brought into existence new laws. As I saw it, a legislative twig had sprouted on the judicial branch of the Government.

Courts and Kings.

"Criticising this usurpation of power by the courts, I simply mentioned the case of Jake Cohen by way of illustration. I compared the Federal courts as they were attempting to function through these injunctions, to a King, having unlimited power. This was not an effort to belittle the Court, as the District Attorney here interpreted it, but an effort to make my point strong by dramatizing it. I pictured a man brought before the throne for violating some new edict of the King—for that was the light in which I saw the issue.

"Now, the point is this: If we are going to permit the courts to legislate, to create a new set of laws at will, are we going to permit them to brand as contempt of court any discussion of the laws thus created and put into jail an editor or other citizen who even discusses these new laws?

"Let that question work on the American consciousness for awhile and then see what answer we'll get."

Cohen Alien-Born.

Cohen, who is about 50, is a native of Southern Russia, and came to the United States when he was 12 years old. He went to work at the age of 13 in a railroad machine shop, and he worked as a machinist for 28 years, being 12 years in the employ of the Southern Railway. He became national organizer for the machinists, then editor of the Labor World, in Chattanooga. He came here five years ago as editor of the Labor Review.

Cohen writes most of his matter in more literate fashion than the article on "scabs." He said to a Post-Dispatch correspondent that most of the article for which he was fined and sentenced was not written by him, but was from another publication. This, and the editor's haste in making up his Labor day edition, explain the abrupt way in which the offending article starts, with a "But" as the first word, and with a plural noun in two conspicuous places wheer the accompanying text calls for a singular one. As Cohen and his lawyers admit, the fact that Cohen was not the original writer of the article does not lessen his responsibility for publishing it.

"I am not an advocate of violence,' he said. "I am rather a nonresistant. I believe in, and advocate, education and the ballot as the remedy for our ills. I did not intend a violation of the court's injunction, and I made no reference to the court."

A Crude Article.

"The article for which Cohen became responsible is crude, badly written matter," said Ike W. Crabtree, one of Cohen's lawyers, in a talk with the correspondent. "It is a crass denunciation of 'scabs.' Now, if instead of this, some skillful writer had written a polished article, setting forth the value of union membership, and the undesirability of working as a strike breaker, would such an article have come under the ban of the court?

"We maintain, and shall urge in the trial of this case on appeal, that Cohen's article had no bearing on the injunction, and was merely an article in the interest of unionism and against strike-breaking, such as a labor paper might publish at any time. Such an article, we contend, it is not within the court's power to stop, or to punish. We shall carry this case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary."

Judge's Opinion.

District Judge Ross is a Republican, and an appointee of President Harding. His home is at Jackson, Tenn., a city of 20,000 inhabitants, 85 miles east of Memphis, and he was formerly Judge of the Chancery Court there. In his decision fining and sentencing Cohen, Sept. 18, just before the arrest of Sanders, Judge Ross said:

"In this instance there is no feeling whatsoever. There is no question of individuality involved, so far as the court is concerned. It is a question of an individual having violated the decree of the court.

"In so far as the railroad company has instituted a suit to protect its rights as a corporation, in so far as it is a public utility, the public is concerned; in so far as the corporate rights which are here involved, the corporation is concerned, but when the injunction was issued then it ceased to be so far as that injunction was concerned.

"If any individual violated that injunction it then became a public matter; it became then not a matter for the railroad to prosecute; it became a matter for the Government of the United States to prosecute if there was a violation, in order to uphold the mandate of the Court and the Court is simply a representative in that respect of the Government.

Proper Injunction.

"The Court has issued its injunction in a manner confessedly proper; and that injunction having issued, then whoever violated it stood in the same position as one who had violated any other law of the land.

"So in this instance the railroad is no more interested in the violation of this injunction than any other. The Government is interested; the public is interested; society is interested—interested in protecting itself. The Government is interested to the extent that any violation of its laws, any violation of the mandate of any court is a blow against society. Any man who goes counter and willfully does so after the law is made known to him—the decrees of the court—is striking a blow against the Government or against the state, as the case may be.

"And so in this instance, it is no longer a private matter; it becomes a public matter.

"Sentimental Nonsense."

"A great deal is said in the answer; a great deal is said about the public; a great deal of sentimental nonsense is said; not in this particular instance, but in other instances, about the rights of free speech, and the freedom of the press. This question has long been settled and put at rest by the Supreme Court.

"It is true the Constitution guarantees to the citizens the rights of free speech and the freedom of the press; but that means right of free speech within certain bounds; and the right of the freedom of the press within certain bounds.

"The Constitution guarantees to every citizen the pursuit of happiness. But if someone should become imbued with the idea that in the pursuit of happiness he should take another's property, he would be amenable to the law. So, in the pursuit of happiness it is just like the guarantee of the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press—it must be done within certain limited channels. So when the freedom of the press is guaranteed it is not supposed this defendant or any other individual should become possessed of the idea that because of his constitutional rights he should publish all manner of treasonable utterances, all manner of rebellious literature, with an effort to foment a rebellion in the country; it could not be said for a minute that he would not be amenable to the law because he was exercising his constitutional guarantee.

"Here, it goes further than that. It becomes not a question of whether or not he has gone beyond the bounds guaranteed by the Constitution of the freedom of the press or free speech. It becomes a question of whether or not he has violated the injunctive processes of this court.

What Injunction Does.

"Now the court has issued the injunction in a case and which is confessedly a proper injunction. It prohibits not only this defendant but every other man from doing any act which would be or could be rightfully construed as heaping insults upon certain classes of people, and endeavoring to intimidate certain classes of people or inciting others to do so, or co-operating and agitating, so to speak, others in doing things forbidden by this injunction.

"Among other things prohibited specifically by this injunction is the insulting of parties who may be engaged in working for these railroad companies; men who are seeking to exercise the highest privilege a man can exercise under our Government—the privilege of working for a living. Working for a living unmolested by any other man; a man who is not seeking to trample upon the rights of another citizen and simply asking that no other citizen shall trample upon his rights. That is what these men were doing; and that is what the court said that they should not be insulted for doing; that they should not be deterred from doing; that they should not be intimidated from doing.

"Insulting, Degrading."

"Take this article. You could hardly imagine a more insulting, a more degrading article than that published; than that as complained of in this suit on the part of the Government.

"An article which would cause the finger of scorn to be pointed at every man who was accused of working for the railroad. Take one working for the railroad, conscious of the fact that every time he went into the public that he was working for a railroad under conditions which perhaps rendered him by a large part of society unpopular in the public eye. Imagine a man walking along the street after the publication of an article of this kind, conscious that finger of scorn was being pointed at him as a particular individual.

"You can hardly imagine a more flagrant violation of this portion of the injunction than that. Whether or not this defendant, in his zeal for the union, permitted himself to be carried away to the extent that his bitter feelings overbore his better judgment, is not the question here to be determined. The question is, did he violate this injunction?

Cohen's Disavowal.

"It is said he has disavowed any intent to disregard the mandates of this court; that there was no intention on his part to violate them. Well, his sworn answer must be measured by the facts in the case. If every one could evade punishment and escape the consequences of a wrongful act by filing in court a sworn answer saying he did not intend to do the things charged, there never could be an enforcement of the criminal laws of the country. Because any man, in the first place, who would violate the criminal law, would in the next place say he did not intend to violate it if by so doing he could escape punishment. So that could be no defense whatever.

"The facts of the case are unquestioned. The intent of the party is beyond a doubt. It being that it was to heap abuse upon the individuals working for the railroad, whether upon the press or word of mouth or whether by use of the printing press, it matters not.

"Suppose one had stood on the street and had openly proclaimed an article such as this to the public? No one would question for a minute such a one would be subject to prosecution under this injunction.

"Now the fact the matter was broadcasted by means of the press is really an aggravation of the offense.

"So understand, in whatever view one may take of this case, the defendant has violated this injunction. Now, as this court has had occasion time and again within the past few weeks to say, the injunctions and orders and decrees and commands of the courts of the country must be obeyed and the court is going to see that they are obeyed.

The Court's Purpose.

"If the punishment imposed for the violation of these injunctions heretofore has been insufficient, then the court is going to impose such punishment as will enforce these laws. The criminal laws are not intended as a means of collection of revenue of the country; they are intended to prevent crime. The court has stated this; if the punishment imposed heretofore will not prevent the commission of crime, there is one course left open to the court—that is to impose such punishment as will prevent it. If a fine will not do it, a jail sentence will be imposed; if a jail sentence is not sufficient, then a penitentiary sentence will be given where the law authorizes.

"Here to Protect People."

"The courts are not sitting here simply to temporize with wrong-doers; they are sitting here to protect the people.

"A man who is publishing a newspaper certainly has that degree of intelligence to stop and think whether or not he is violating any order of the court, and a man who is giving forth his idea and information through the press to the public, among men, should be careful to see nothing goes out from his pen or from his press that would in any way injure society. His object should be the upbuilding of society and humanity; the destruction of the rights of men and labor.

"The great educational institution is the press, and it should be practiced along the paths of right rather than along the paths of destruction.

Six Months in Jail.

"In this instance the defendant seeks to avail himself for a violation of privilege, in saying he has not violated an injunction of this character. He is responsible for that violation, and must suffer the penalty. He will be given a sentence of six months in the Shelby County jail, a fine of $1000 and taxed with the cost.

"You take a case of this kind, and many an innocent man has been made to suffer by just such articles. The court has been loath to sentence men to jail because he knew back of such case there was such articles and speech as this defendant has been guilty of, otherwise they would not have violated the law."

Public feeling here has not been expressed in the Cohen and Sanders cases, except that labor unions have passed resolutions in support of both men. Undoubtedly, the feeling caused by the murder of Lanier has tended to make many persons ready to support stern measures in dealing with strike incidents.

Labor unions are active and well organized here. A large Spanish [illegible] now captured by American [illegible] in Cuba in 1898, and presented to the city, stands in City Park, a downtown plaza, on a mounting which was given by the Central Trades and Labor Council.

Greenfield's BETTER CLOTHES

Insist on Quality Clothes

Good materials won't make a good suit. Neither will high-class tailoring. But the combination of the two, smartly styled, does. You must have both!

This Fall we are showing clothes which reflect—perhaps to a greater degree than ever before—the standard of quality which has given GREENFIELD'S Clothes their unique position in this city.

Suits from $35 to $70

Many of these Suits include extra trousers.

We can also furnish woolens to match all our other Suits—for extra trousers or knickers, when desired.

LUDENDORFF SAYS AMERICA ENTERED WAR FROM WORST MOTIVES

tally wounded our national pride. That is why we are bitter towards them. It is for them to make the first step if the bitterness is to disappear.

While Ludendorff continued to lecture, I harkened back to the methods pursued by Bismarck after the Franco-Prussian War, when he found himself in a very similar position to that in which Poincare is today. In order to make France pay, and speedily, Bismarck occupied a stretch of France proportionately 15 times that occupied by the French in Germany today. He put four divisions in the forts around Paris and threatened progressively to increase the occupation as France failed to pay up. Further—and offering a direct parallel to the dilemma of the hopeless Wirth Government in Berlin today—Bismarck wrote to Jules Ferry in 1873, when there were signs of a nationalist reaction against the ever-yielding French Government, that he would instantly reopen the war and move half a million troops back into France for that purpose, should the French Government of the day lose any more of its authority, since such further weakening would tend to jeopardize the future payment of the indemnity installments to Germany.

"Well, what ought France to do?" I asked at last. "Go home and disarm?"

"Disarmament Talk Nonsensical Rubbish."

"Disarm!" laughed Ludendorff aloud. "Why, yes—if they were quite mad. All this disarmament talk is pure nonsensical, dangerous rubbish. You can tell your Americans that as well. All the disarmament conference did was to cheapen naval war and alter its fighting units. And," he added, after a pause, "break up the British Empire. England now has a fleet equal to that of the United States. Lloyd George has rendered that service to his country. The British Empire is doomed and will be the next to go. And it will not recover, like Germany is going to do!"

"But how do you mean 'doomed'?" I queried.

An illuminating evet here transpired. Ludendorff turned the subject over to Ireland. I said I was Irish. His manner eased for the first time and showed pleasure. "Then tell me about the great Collins (Michael Collins had not then been killed). He is, of course, play-with them in London? He is only going to establish a republic when it suits him. Ah, if we only had had more of our submarines off the Irish coast in the last war! It would then have been all up with England. Listen: In sacrificing her fleet and giving Ireland her freedom, England has made the two greatest blunders in her history. She has failed to appreciate that never again will Canadians or Australians rush to her side in Europe with anything like national numbers. Contingents may cross, but that will be all."

Ludendorff stopped short as if afraid that he had said too much.

"I spoke of Ireland, doubting if he was correct in his surmise that Ireland would range herself against England in the next war. Gradually this next war was coming through the mist. Here at least of Ludendorff and such as he stood for. It could be writ, "Nothing has changed." The new Europe he saw in frontiers for future fighting. He spoke only of the wrongs done Germany, and I gathered this, perhaps not unimportant, undercurrent: that whereas his next Germany after the present one would be resigned to the loss of Alsace forever, it would put in its 'revanche' file the complete reestablishment of the remainder of the German Empire as it existed up to 1918.

"Loathsome Government at Berlin"

Ludendorff next spoke of bolshevism with which he is suspected of having flirted. I asked if it were not a fact that he had recently come together at the monarchist headquarters, Rosenheim in Lower Bavaria, with the Grand Duke Nicholas, former generalissimo of the Russian armies. Ludendorff shook his head.

"Our policy is one of home internal construction, not of foreign scheming, and we are above party. We are concentrating exclusively on internal politics."

"Of what kind, Excellenz?"

"To get rid of that loathsome government up in Berlin. A lot of bolsheviks and Jews! What else is this defense of the republic law but sheer bolshevism? And the Jews—they are at the bottom of all the trouble in the world today (Ludendorff emphasized this Judengefahr by marching up and down the room and raising his voice). And America is their breeding center. If it hadn't been for Jews wanting to make money, you'd probably have stayed out of the war. And now you're supporting this republic simply because it is Jewish."

"Ludendorff paused and looked down at me. "The German people," he proclaimed, "will have a monarchy because they have monarchy in the marrow of their bones. When and how—that is not for discussion."

I asked if civil war between North and South and between the industrial centers and the rest of the country would first be necessary. And, if so, whether he thought it likely that the Allies would intervene to prevent the re-establishment of the old order.

On this and all kindred matters appertaining to the movement of which he is the head, Ludendorff preserved a stony silence. He would not say if the Reichswehr of 100,000 men would remain faithful to the republic in an emergency (and he assuredly is well posted on this probably determining question.) Nor would he admit that the backbone of this party is formed by an organized corps of 40,000 ex-officers, whose one-time supremacy has been exchanged for obscurity and poverty.

Who Pro-Monarchists Are.

Behind this imperial spear head are ranged all the land owners, professors, schoolmasters (i. e., largely the coming generation), peasants, students, doctors and the upper and middle classes generally forming at least 50 per cent of the population of the Reich if not more. Such is the party of which the man opposite me was the chief.

And there is small doubt that the Ludendorff school—"the old brigade"—is gaining ground steadily, especially in the big cities, hitherto strongholds of the republic. Here at Wilhelmshohe, Ludendorff sees all the experts of the movement, [illegible]hardt, Mohl, Xylander, Escherich, Pettinger and Treibst. How these are planning and plotting I shall tell in a subsequent article. This one has mainly to do with the post-war opinions of Erich von Ludendorff, opinions which, as I have said, I am convinced are shared by the entire, far-flung and deep-rooted party over which he holds sway.

The Ludendorffers apparently despise and detest the United States, have made up their minds about France and are inclined to be friendly toward England. They foresee ten—possibly more—anxious, difficult and perhaps terrible years ahead before, via civil war, monarchy, and then in the next war, they manage to re-establish the German Empire as it was in 1918.

The next war they envisage as a lightning affair of aeroplanes and chemistry and in no way necessitating the calling up of national armies. Ludendorff mentioned that in his only phrase on war:

"One army corps should suffice."

BODY REBURIED IN GRAVE FROM WHICH IT WAS STOLEN

Remains of Miss Celestine Schneider Returned to Mount Hope Cemetery on Order of Coroner.

The body of Miss Celestine Schneider has been reburied in the grave at Mount Hope Cemetery from which it was stolen the night of Sept. 25, a few hours before it was found, charred, in the burned garage of Harry R. Brenn, at Oakville, St. Louis County. Coroner Bracy of St. Louis County directed that the body be returned to its grave.

Warrants charging Brenn and his German war bride with arson and grave robbery have been issued. Brenn, who was wounded in action with the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, is being sought by the police. Mrs. Brenn is at liberty under a $2500 bond.

Mrs. Brenn, as has been told, was arrested after the St. Louis homicide squad two days after the garage fire discovered that the body burned was not that of Brenn, as was at first supposed, but was that of Miss Schneider. Brenn's life was insured for $6000.

267 Births, 180 Deaths in Week.

There were 267 births and 180 deaths in St. Louis last week. Thirty-three persons died from organic heart trouble, 22 from Bright's disease, 20 from pneumonia, 12 from cancer, 10 from diseases of the circulatory system, eight from appendicitis and a like number from tuberculosis, five from apoplexy and three from diphtheria. Four persons killed themselves. There were two homicides and 11 accidental deaths. One person died as the rsult of criminal carelessness.

Tragic Story of Pretty Teacher's Matrimonial Bureau Flirtation That Ended in Her Murder

SUITOR, ENMESHED BY HER ADVERTISEMENT, KILLED HER WHEN SHE SCORNED HIS UNAPPRECIATED LOVE

Jury Unconvinced by His Story That Gay and Cheerful Girl Shot Herself After He Had Jilted Her

Evidence, Including Her Letters, Indicated the Correspondence Romantically Begun, Was Looked Upon by Her as a Game Though It Was Taken in Deadly Earnest by Him.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

WHEN Edith Lavoy, attractive Freeport (L. I.) school teacher, village social favorite and much-sought partner at local dances, little more than a year ago, in a spirit of fun, registered with a matrimonial bureau, she wrote the first chapter in the tragic romance that ended in her death.

In the trial of William Creasy, young Kentuckian, in the Nassau County Court at Mineola, during the past few days the story of that romance has been made public and Creasy has been found guilty of first degree murder and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

It was the story of a girl who sought excitement, who, perhaps, encouraged attentions the value of which she held lightly. But if this was the case and the verdict of the jury is in full accordance with the facts, she failed to appreciate the terrible seriousness of the man who had answered her jesting call for a correspondent.

If Creasy, in the living room of Miss Lavoy's boarding house at Freeport last June 23, fired the shot that ended her life as the jury found, the only motive apparent is the wrath of a man who finds that the woman he loved had been merely playing a game with him, the game of "flirting," a game which he could not play.

Creasy's defense was that Miss Lavoy killed herself with his pistol. He maintained that it was he who did the "jilting," but he was unable to convince the jury that there was any truth in his tale.

Judge Smith commended the jury for its "untiring devotion to duty and the loyal and efficient service performed for the county. And I do not say that because of your verdict. I would say it no matter how you found."

In the courtroom, besides Creasy, when the verdict was announced, was his aged father, who had come from his farm in Kentucky to testify as a character witness. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lavoy, parents of the dead girl, and Minnie and Eva Lavoy, her sisters.

In his charge Judge Smith said:

"It is for you to decide from her letters whether she wanted to live or die, whether she looked toward a brighter, happier future or whether she was nervous and despondent. Particularly as to whether her feeling for her mother was such as to preclude the thought of suicide. You must bear in mind that it has been established beyond doubt that she lived and died a virgin."

"Was a Good Enough Boy."

Creasy, the fourth of 12 children, was born in Virginia 31 years ago. His father has a 600-acre farm, inherited from his great-grandfather, who bought it from the man the King of England granted it to when Virginia was colonized. It is within sight of Monticello, Jefferson's home, near Charlottesville.

Old Mr. Creasy knows a blooded horse when he sees one and he's a good judge of tobacco, because he raises it. As he sat on the steps of the courthouse where his son's fate was being decided, he took a piece of plug out of his pocket.

"This is a piece of tobacco I brought up here—why, it's like these modern hand-painted ladies—more artificial than real," he said.

He put his wide-brimmed gray felt hat down beside him and lit a cigarette. "William was a good enough boy," he continued. "He did ditching, plowing and all that. When he was a kid he was always inventing something. He built dams and engines. He always said he wanted to go off and see the world.

"At 16 he left home and went to Williamsburg to work in a sawmill—I got him the job myself." Mr. Creasy's seamed old face beamed in reminiscence. "Before he went away we used to fox-hunt together some. But he didn't write to me much—only to his mother, with messages to 'give pop my love.'

His Parents Knew of Edith.

"Finally William started working on the railroad as a mechanic in West Virginia. That's where he got married—we didn't know much about that. He enlisted in the navy in 1918, was in France eight months, and was released in March, 1919, in New York. Then he went to work for the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad at Fort Thomas, Ky.

The Creasy family knew of William's love for Edith Lavoy. She sent them postcards. They were prepared to welcome her as his future bride when she was coming down to visit them in the fall of 1921. But her mother was ill and the trip she was to take with school teacher friends never went through.

Creasy's family thought his wife a spoiled child who refused to go back to her husband after the war because her parents were more indulgent. William's divorce, they said, was on grounds of desertion because she would not return to Fort Thomas, preferring to remain in her father's home at Huntington, W. Va.

This contradicts a story which District Attorney Weeks dwelt upon in cross-examination—of marital infidelities on Creasy's part—a sordid story, traced through snapshots alleged to have been found among his effects. These, with a little red book containing names and addresses, played no insignificant part in the trial. But his pretty sister, Mrs. Bernard R. Warinner, says, indignantly:

"Those addresses belonged to his relations—his cousins and his aunts. And that story they printed about his not knowing whether we were dead or alive was all wrong.

Edith Lavoy's family are silent. The mother, a life of hard work and recent illness showing in her face was in court huddled beneath her heavy black hat and veil. Part of the time she wept into her handkerchief. Her daughter, Eva, helped her climb the stairs to the witness room.

WM. CREASY, ADJUDGED GUILTY OF MURDERING MISS LAVOY.

The Lavoys are devout Catholics. Up in the tiny Adirondack village of Tupper Lake, N. Y., stands a small frame house where Edith Lavoy was born. The wooded hills look down on the flat mirror of the lake which lies near at hand. The two affections, nonromantic, of Edith's life were for her hard-working, devoted mother, and for the beautiful scenery of her native countryside.

She Was Always Cheerful.

She went to the Tupper Lake High School and later was graduated from the Potsdam Normal School. She taught one year in Pleasantville, N. Y., before coming to the Grove Street School in Freeport, L. I. Her letters refer joyously to visits in Gloversville with schoolmate friends, fishing parties on the lake and dances in the neighboring town of Little Wolf. In the summer she worked in Propp's "Outfitters to the Family" store and many of her love letters were written between customers. She loved to work in the store, she wrote, and she loved to cook, too. Her disposition was always cheerful. At Freeport her children sent her baskets of fruit when she was ill and gave her surprise parties. Other teachers were jealous of the fascination she had for her beaux.

From the volume of love letters read into the testimony—many of them written before the two ever had seen each other—might be extracted many a precept to the end that rashness demands a penalty. William Creasy and Edith Lavoy set the mills of the gods to grinding that day two years ago when they took up the moot pastime of American youth—flirtation.

It's one thing when flirt meets flirt and both know the rules of the game. But it's "something else again" when flirt meets flirt and one forgets that it's a game. That is to invite tragedy. In the case of Edith and Will, flirtation developed into deeper emotions, but these did not endure for both of them.

Edith Lavoy, pretty, dark-haired, vivacious, accustomed to admiration and reckless in her pursuit of happiness, is the silent figure in the drama. She is not here to tell what happened that June night, when she and he were in the sitting room of the elm-shaded boarding house at 156 Main street, Freeport. She may not tell; he will not, and there is none else who can, for they were alone when the shot was fired.

Edith was the typical "popular girl" of American magazine fiction—only a little more mature than one of Booth Tarkington's small-town heroines; only a little less sophisticated than one of Scott Fitzgerald's oft-kissed society belles. Will was a hot-blooded Southerner, arrogant, vain of his conquests, a hunter with many a fair scalp at his belt.

Her First Letter to Him.

The beginning seemed so innocent. Perhaps a lonely hour, perhaps a touch of willful whimsicality, caused her to send her address to the Gray's Lake Matrimonial Club of Gray's Lake, Ill. He already had sent his, "qualifying as a gentleman with matrimonial intentions, desiring lady correspondent with same object in view." There was a formal introduction by mail through the agent of the club. References were decorously exchanged. And then the fun began.

How prim and formal both were at first! Edith wrote the first letter. No doubt she planned it carefully on rough paper, then copied in ink the correct opening. It read:

"Dear Sir: As you have been recommended to me by the Standard Correspondence Club of Gray's Lake, Ill., as a gentleman matrimonially inclined and desiring a lady correspondent with that object in view, and under the recommendation of U. W. Schlosser, who sent me your description, I beg permission to open correspondence. If this meets with your approval I will be pleased to hear from you in return. Yours respectfully, EDITH LAVOY."

Each Told of Admirers.

Soon the letters became affectionate in tone. Sheets of white ruled paper filled with the round, regular script of the little school teacher were daily folded in envelopes and adressed to Kentucky. The sixth grade in the Grove Street School was shown Kentucky on the map and taught to sing "The Old Oaken Bucket" in music class.

Each wrote the other of being pursued by admirers. Said Edith to Billy:

"'Tis hard to choose the one you like best among so many."

Said Billy to Edith:

"There's lots of lovely ladies wouldn't mind having a skip with me."

Snapshots and promises to be true! "What I like to do with my spare time" and the inevitable description of themselves and their tastes—these things filled the letters.

Their courtship language was the lingo of thousands of such letters flooding the postoffices daily.

"It's a great life if you don't weaken," wrote Edith after telling of a strenuous holiday.

"Here's hoping we meet in the funny sheet," was her device once for getting to the signature.

"Yours as B-4," she signed herself in the early days; and often there appeared on the flap of the envelope the nationally known symbols, "S. W. A. K."

For some reason she could never bring herself to write the word "love." It was always four short dashes. "Sweetheart" she dared to use when they were finally engaged, but even then she preferred dashes. It was as though she felt a sense of perjury in using these terms.

All the while Edith kept on going to New York with George Davidson, a commercial artist of Brooklyn; to the Freeport movies with "Les" and "Carl;" to American Legion dances; to an Elks' ball in a neighboring town. Faithful Dan Sherman, who had been her "steady" in Utica, where she visited the summer before, was still devoted.

Didn't Meet for Months.

Indeed, half a dozen swains worshiped at the shrine of her radiant American girlhood. She told them all she had a dashing suitor down Kentucky way who was writing her three times a week and couldn't be put off from coming all the distance to see her.

To him she wrote of "the many lovely people" she was meeting in Freeport; of how George Davidson was simply raving because she wouldn't marry him—or even let him paint her portrait. Dan Sherman was coming down to see her, she wrote Billy, but, "oh, how I wish it was you instead."

At first, Billy liked to hear all this. Billy wasn't particularly clever, but he wanted a girl who could keep him guessing. It helped along his dreams of the little teacher with a merry disposition and a fondness for dancing and shows.

For six or seven months they corresponded without meeting. Things grew more serious. In October, 1920, the fateful meeting took place. He came to Freeport on a railroad pass, with two weeks' leave from his job. She was on the platform when his train pulled in. A moment or so of embarrassment—and then they were old friends. Disappointment? Nay, enthusiasm! Three blessed days. Walks to the shady "kissing bridge" over the river, trysts kept on the steps of the school, or even in the deserted classrooms at noon or after school.

Talked of Wedding Day.

When William Creasy took the train back to Fort Thomas and his machine shop job, he realized he had left his heart, his slightly damaged heart, behind.

The light cliff of flirtation gradually changed into the challenge of unleashed emotion. They were sure they were desperately in love.

She wrote:

> Billie, I'll admit I have queer ideas about love. We can like many people but we can love only one. It takes time to test out pure, sweet love. * * * Your loving, Billie, appeals to me most. Believe me, you have them all stopped.

There were visits in November and again in the winter. More and more often she speaks of having the love blues.

"Oh, if this is love, I don't like it very well," she writes, after telling him of an evening in another man's company which she could not enjoy for thinking of Creasy.

Dan Sherman drove 40 miles to see her, but she made him leave in the middle of the evening.

The coming of winter, 1922, finds them talking of a wedding day. Creasy has not yet told her he is married. But his whole life is wrapped up in her. He goes to night school to improve himself. She comments on the improvement of the English in his letters. She is wearing his diamond engagement ring.

She Learns He Is Married.

Then George Davidson comes to the fore again. He is "a perfect gentleman," Edith wrote to Billie. And he is near at hand. Billie, way off in Kentucky, is playing a losing hand. He loves her desperately. He comes to see her again in Freeport.

But this time Edith learns he is married and not yet finally divorced. Soon they are quarreling. Perhaps over her discovery, perhaps for some other reason, but they quarrel—quarrel irrevocably.

As to which it was who cooled first—who broke off the engagement—the attorneys argued bitterly. At any rate, he soon afterward writes:

"Oh, gee—Edy—oh my poor broken heart. Edy, I always was an easy loser but this is more than anyone can imagine. By next Sunday I hope I'll be six feet under the sod of Kentucky. I sat in my room all day Sunday and cried."

She begs him to brace up; tells him that worry about him is wearing upon her health.

And now there falls across the pages of their letters again and again the sinister shadow of the pistol—the automatic pistol that Creasy

Two groups of pathetic and innocent figures in the case. At bottom are Creasy's father, a Virginia farmer of considerable means, his two sons and his daughter, all of whom attended the trial in New York, confident that the accused young man would be acquitted. The entire Creasy family had looked forward with pleasure to young Creasy's marriage to Miss Lavoy.

Top are snapshots of Miss Lavoy's father, her sister, Minnie, and her mother, on their way to court to attend Creasy's trial.

MISS LAVOY'S LETTERS TO CREASY FULL OF LOVE EXPRESSIONS

carried. There are many references to it by both of them. From this pistol is to be fired, by one or the other of them, the fatal shot.

Her Death.

Edith implores him to send it to her lest he be carried to rashness. He does so, but later she returns it.

The clouds are settling. The matrimonial bureau flirts are caught in a trap of their own careless fashioning.

Letters are written now in which she calls Creasy, "Billie, that old oil can," and begs her family to have nothing to do with him if he stops off at Tupper Lake on his way to Canada. Her friends implore her to give him up. He threatens her life, it is said. But also—significant to the lawyers—she threatens to take her own.

And then he comes again, determined, according to the charges, that "there shall be a decision before sundown." At one minute before the closing time of Mrs. Annie Smith's boarding house a shot is fired. Her girl chum flies out of the next room where she has been sleeping, and finds Creasy apparently frantic; Edith dead on the couch, with blood streaming from her temple and, nearby, a pistol—the automatic pistol that Creasy carried!

Edith Lavoy, gay, charming, reckless, is dead because she met her match at love sparring. Her simple philosophy of love was not worldly enough to cope with the situation in which she found herself. She dabbled in dangerous waters and was swept struggling out to sea.

Miss Lavoy's Letters to Creasy Full of Expressions of Love

Though it became evident that Creasy's ardent love making became distasteful to Miss Lavoy when it grew too serious, her letters up to that time was quite as ardent as his. A few of the many introduced in evidence at the trial are presented herewith to show their general character. The dashes are code for expressions of affection and were used mutually by them in their correspondence.

"Lonesome for You."

Sweetheart's Day, May 1, 1921.

Dearest and Only—How I have wished for you and thought of you today. Our first Sunday apart for "three weeks." Yes, Billie, "lonesome" for you, is all I can say. And you know from experience how miserable one feels. I know Mother knows what ails me, and she is so lovely to me. But, of course, no one can take your place. You know how it is, Billie, dear. But we must just be contented, for it can't be helped. But it's so hard.

Last night Leslie had the nerve to call me ——, and Billie, I just told him I was not his, but yours. Didn't I do right? Course he didn't like it, but neither did I, to have him call me that. I told him my heart was with you "Nuff" said, eh, Billie?

By the way, what did you think of those pictures? Those flashlights were horrible. Please do not show them. I know you won't.

Mother says to tell you she misses you and sends her love to you. Billie, a week ago tonight, about this time, we stood weeping in each other's arms, but tonight —— "it" seems even worse.

Hoping you are not as lonely as I, and with all my love and kisses in cold storage for you till we meet, I am, your true blue EDY.

Love to the folks at home. XX.

"I'm Gone Before I Go."

Grove Street School,
May 2, 1921.

VERY Dearest Boy—Your letter of Friday night received today and as usual —— "u no." So glad you are having such a nice time with the little lamb. It was real sweet of you to go 50-50 with it. I would have done the same thing. I'll bet it seems heavenly to be back at "Home Sweet Home" once more. There's no place like home, after all, eh, what? Yes, Billie, I sure will send your Mother a card for I love her so "u no." But you know, too, who I do not. Ah! Ah! I should say.

Oh, Billie, Mother and I have said so many nice things about you. We played "I'm Gone Before I Go," and you can just imagine who was uppermost in my thoughts and heart.

Billie, I have so much to tell you when I see you again. And it's all about that Carl, too. Billie, he knows how we —— each other, and only last night he had the nerve to tell me how he had always loved me, and how jealous he was when he saw me with anybody else, and especially when I was in your arms a week ago Sunday night. Darling boy, I just told him he had no right to feel that way, as I have always refused to give him a date. Billie, I told him all my love and heart belonged to you, my true ——, and I could and would not love any one else. Billie, dear, I wish you could have seen how true I was to you, because I —— you. No one can ever steal our hearts, as they are under lock and key, eh, what? I told mother and she didn't blame me one bit for being angry. Believe me, Billie, you've got some stand-in with her, and she speaks so nicely of you. Billie, I know you will agree with mother, and that I did just right. Darling boy, your —— love sand misses you, oh, so much. Have you ever heard the song "I'm Lonesome for You, That's All?" Well, that's me exactly.

Well, darling boy, will say good night. All my love and kisses I am saving for our next meeting. Billie I'll have heaps of it for you.

Hoping you are well, I am,
Your true, lonely, but loving ——
EDY (XX).

Mother sends her love to you, Billie. Bye, bye; love to the folks at home.

Speaks Well of Billie.

Sweetheart's Night,
May 6, 1921.

Dearest Boy: It is pouring rain tonight and we were going to Hempstead, but not in such a storm. Mother says her little girlie's place on such a night is in bed, so I suppose I'll mind her and get a good night's rest. Billie, I love to have her with me. She speaks so well of you, my darling boy. But why shouldn't she, when I —— you? She sends you her love too.

Just think how far we are apart in person, but how sweet to think we are near to heart, in mind and soul.

Billie, I have a wonderful definition of love. Will tell you when I see you as I wouldn't write it. Funny thing I never thought of it when we were together.

Billie, will write you soon again. You can't realize how very, very much your true —— misses you. But we must just make up our minds to be happy, and let the hand of destiny do as it sees fit. Our motto, "what is to be will be" and "frankness" must lead and guide us in the right path to everlasting peace and happiness.

Until then, all my love to you. Good-night and here's hoping we meet in dreamland.

Yours (u no) ME (XX).

"Meet in the Funny Sheet."

May 6, 1921.

Billie:

Just a line to let you know —— still misses you, and must say good-night to you on paper.

I received your letter today and I'll say you are some darling boy to be so thoughtful, and I love you all the more for it.

I get my day off tomorrow. How I wish you were here to spend it with me. Honest, Billie dear, words cannot express how I miss you. Everyone, as usual, is so lovely to me, but none can take your place. Holly (from Gloversville) and Dan (from Utica) both want to come down here, but, listen, and I'll tell you a secret. Mother says if I really and truly love you I wouldn't be interested to have them come down. Course, she knows, eh Billie? So to prove to her my —— for my true blue ——, I have decided not to let them come down here.

Billie, the folks and boys of Freeport are kidding the life out of poor Les. They keep telling him I'm married, etc. I don't know who started it, but after you left that's all I got. Gee, it was so hard to convince them otherwise.

Well, Billie dear, mother joins me in sending her love. You tell your dad I'd love to have his picture and I know I'd like him heaps. Has your mother received my card? Give both of them my love.

Good-night, and here's hoping we meet in the funny sheet. Your true loving EDY (XX).

"Dearest and Only."

May 11, 1921.

Very dearest and only——:

Your sweet letter received today and I was unusually glad to hear from you as I have been laid up in bed all day with a cold. I started to go to school but when mother heard how hoarse I was she just made me get right back in bed. But I am ever so much better tonight and have no temperature. Mother sure is an ideal nurse and just kept me company all day.

Billie, darling, it was so sweet of you to send her such a nice letter. She thinks lots of you too, darling boy, and speaks of you so often. We are now playing "I'm Gone Before I Go." While I love that piece, nevertheless it's more truth than poetry, and, oh, I just can't explain it makes my —— ache "u no y."

Well, darling boy, I'm about all talked out so will hang up. When you get the blues just remember I have them, too, and cheer up, Billie, dear.

Still saving all my love and kisses for you "till we meet ago" bye, bye. Your lonely but happy,
ME (XX).

P. S.—(Billie here's a secret. I'm real lonely for you, and you only tonight).

May 25, 1921.

Darling Boy:

Just received your letter on Sunday night, and, Billie dear, I'm so sorry you have missed my letters. Honest, Billie, I can't see why you didn't get my letter of last Wednesday night, for I wrote you as usual. Those two nights are —— nights and of course I always give them to you. I cannot understand it, Billie, for you always used to get my mail, and it seems you do not any more. But you may rest assured, my darling, and only —— was not forgotten on that night. Billie, I do not understand it. I know how it is to be disappointed and I was yesterday, for I did not hear from you.

I'll do better at writing and will try to do it every day if possible (if it is only a note) to show you you are not forgotten. Fair "nuff," eh, Billie? Those —— blues are awful and I'll say there doesn't seem to be any cure. Ah! Ha!

Now as for your three questions, Billie. Yes, I do remember your question in the Statue of Liberty, but do you remember saying we would decide all upon our next meeting. I know how we both feel, and really know our —— is true and surely it will be a fair test by then. You know Billie there are so many things we must talk over that we cannot write.

We know one another's feelings, so why shouldn't we be happy at all times? So now, Billie, just be frank and ask me anything you want, and I shall be as frank with you. Frankness can only lead to happiness. Will finish this tonight. Bye, bye, until then.

"Me."

Well, Billie, it is now 10:30 and Les has just left. Gee, I just told him in good plain English, I was your —— and he left a little peeved. But it's the least of my troubles. I told him, out and out, I could love no one else and it was useless of him to try to make me. Billie, isn't it right of me to be truthful? I would not be truthful to you if I didn't, and I want to be. Good night and always remember, I lo— you. ME. (XX)

Only on Earth for Trouble.

FREEPORT, Me., May 30,.
6:30 p. m.

Darling Boy:

Feeling better today, so will wirte you a nice long letter. Believe me, darling boy, I am not myself at all, and haven't been for some time. And, judging from your letter, I guess you are not yourself, either. Billie, dear, guess that's all we're on earth for is trouble. I have missed a great deal of school, but am going to try to tough it out till June 30th. It is my nerves as much as anything and it seems as though they're all gone. I have never had such trouble before. Oh, sometimes how I wish I could die and end it all! But I must be brave, and wait till I have served my time in this wicked old world.

That was good advice you gave, darling boy, about falling in love. No, Billie, do not worry about my falling in love. Guess I wasn't built that way. Sometimes I wish I could, but I have given up hopes. I thought I was once, you know, Billie, but I woke up and found it "only a dream." And such a dreadful thing. Oh, God, is there such a thing as love? I'm afraid not for me.

Billy, dear, how are you, anyway, these lovely, lonely spring days? So glad you love Miss Veith so much, Billie, and I know she must be a wonderful girl. Give her my best regards, as usual. Well, Billie, yesterday being Decoration day, Milly, Hazel and I went to Long Beach in bathing. As a result, we are just burned to a blister today. Look more like negresses than white folks today. Gee, we sure got some dose. We were in the water all afternoon. We are, surely, a terrible looking specimen now. Ah! Ah! You ought to see us.

My folks won't know me when I get home.

Billie, dear, as for that gun, I do not want it and you know it, darling boy. However, seeing that you want it so badly now, I sure will send it to you tonight, as I have it all packed up. Sorry if you really have needed it and I have been so mean. But honest, Billie, I did it with the kindest and friendliest feelings toward you. You knew it all along.

Goodby, darling boy, and I'll write real soon and surely will send you your gun tonight. Bye bye, "Honey." ME (XX)

"What More Could I Be?

Sunday, May 30, 1921.

Billie dear:

I've been some busy, but you were not forgotten. I've thought of you so many times.

It was very sweet of you to offer to get the pass. Thanks very much, darling boy. I hope some day I can accept, "u no."

Now, Billie dear, you said you had a number of questions to ask me. Do so and I shall be frank and truthful in answering same.

Yes, I remember your question, darling boy, and let me say, Billie, my —— for you is really and truly real. If it isn't, I'll say like you, I hope to never know what it is "if" I could ever miss anyone more than I do you, I'd rather —— ("u no").

Good night, my dearest and only —— and may God guide us both "till we meet again."

With "mostest" deepest love to my Kentucky ——, I am,
Your true blue ——,
(What more could I be?)
ME (XX).

Mother sends you her love and says to tell you she hopes to see you this summer.

WOULD CARVE FACE OF LINCOLN ON "MOUNTAIN" IN ILLINOIS

Artists Make Suggestion and If Mountain Can't Be Found, One May Be Made of Concrete.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 7.—Illinois is to have "a great stone face" like the mountain of Hawthorne's story, if plans are realized. It is to be the face of Lincoln carved in the side of a granite mountain.

The only thing now lacking for the project is the mountain. And if a state-wide search for the proper location, which is under way, is not successful, a mountain of concrete probably will be built.

Inspired by the ambitious work started near Atlanta, Ga., where statuary of the Confederate cavalry is being chiseled in the side of a mountain, Grant White, New York designer, and Barnard, the sculptor, have suggested that the face of Lincoln, symbolizing the valor and the spirit of the Union, be hewed in some rock hill along one of Illinois' paved highways. The suggestion has been taken up by Senator John Daly of Peoria, Col. C. J. Miller, director of the State Department of Works and Buildings. Jacob Thompson, legal adviser in the office of Francis G. Blair, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and H. W. Fay, custodian of Lincoln tomb.

CANADA'S BEST CROP SINCE 1915

Estimate of 17¼ Bushels of Wheat an Acre Made.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 7.—The average wheat yield per acre for all Canada this year, according to the preliminary crop estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, is 17¼ bushels. This average is higher than for any year since the bumper crop of 1915, when it was 26 bushels, the next highest being in 1916, when it was 17.10 bushels, and higher than the decennial average of 15¾ bushels, according to the bureau.

The bureau's estimate shows the average yields an acre throughout Canada for all grains with last year's averages in brackets as follows: Fall wheat, 22¼ bushels (21¼); spring wheat, 17 (12¾); all wheat, 17¼ (13); oats, 34¾ (25¼); barley, 23 (21¼); rye, 20½ (11¾); flaxseed, 10¼ (7¾). For oats the average of 34¾ bushels an acre has not been exceeded since 1916, when it was 37.30 bushels, and in 1915, when it was 40¼, the bureau states. It is 2½ bushels over the per acre average of the last 10 years of 32¼ bushels.

What Should My Heating System Do?

NO. 1—COMFORT
First of all, it should provide comfort—the physical comfort of just the right temperature throughout my home; and the mental comfort of knowing that this warmth is secured at a minimum of fuel expense and trouble, and that I have the best heating system that could be bought for the amount expended.

NO. 2—ECONOMY
It should send all the heat energy in the fuel where it is needed without waste. To do this, it must be correctly designed, carefully built, and it should possess every feature that experience has proved will help accomplish this end.

NO. 3—EVEN HEAT
It should distribute the heat evenly, so that there will be no cold corners and no drafts on the floor. On the coldest Winter day I should be able to go about my home without detecting any noticeable difference in temperature, no matter where I choose to be.

NO. 4—MOISTURE
It should moisten the air to the degree of humidity best suited to my health, so that I may keep well in Winter, and so that my furniture will not be damaged by an atmosphere that is too dry.

NO. 5—CIRCULATION
It should warm my home by circulation; no other method is as comfortable, healthful, and generally satisfactory.

NO. 6—FLEXIBILITY
It should provide the heat I need, no more nor less, whether the outside temperature be that of a snappy Spring day, or that of the dead of Winter.

HERE IS VICTORY'S ANSWER

NO. 1—COMFORT
Victory, while of new design and advanced construction, does not contain a feature that has not been tested in thousands of installations under every condition. As a great deal of the efficiency of a pipeless furnace depends upon its proper location and correct installation, The Williamson Heater Company maintains a large engineering department, where drawings and specifications are made for every Victory installation submitted to it. You are thus assured a heating system that is built right, installed right, and guaranteed to give you the full measure of comfort to which you are entitled.

NO. 2—ECONOMY
The fuel economy for which the pipeless furnace is so justly famous is emphasized in Victory by many refinements in construction. The floor register has an unusually large clearance, so that it is more efficient than some registers actually larger in size; the castings are heavy and of uniform thickness; the opening between the dome section and radiator is much larger than that of the ordinary furnace, and in designing Victory the size of the casings has been carefully considered in relation to the radiating capacity of the castings. Victory is equipped with triple galvanized casings, with inch air-space between the two inner casings.

NO. 3—EVEN HEAT
Victory will give the home in which it is installed even, easily controlled warmth. Upstairs or downstairs, the same Summer-like comfort will prevail, no matter what the thermometer on the outside says. This claim is substantiated by thousands upon thousands who use pipeless furnaces made by this company. Even temperature is the sum of a good product plus correct installation plus proper location. You can't go wrong with Victory located and installed the Williamson way.

NO. 4—MOISTURE
A large water pan, placed in front where it belongs, provides the right degree of humidity for the circulating air. The presence of this moisture in the air is one cause for the feeling of well-being present in the Victory-heated home.

No. 5—Circulation
The Victory method of home-heating by circulation of air is recognized by heating engineers as the most efficient and healthful of all. Cool air descends into the furnace, where it is warmed, sterilized, purified and returned to your rooms, fresh and wholesome. The air is always fresh in a Victory-heated home.

No. 6—Flexibility
A few sticks of wood in the Fall or Spring. Coal in the Winter. Victory provides the exact temperature you need. You can warm your home thoroughly from a standing start more quickly with Victory than with any other type of furnace.

Announcing St. Louis' and St. Louis County's Celebration of National Better Homes Week

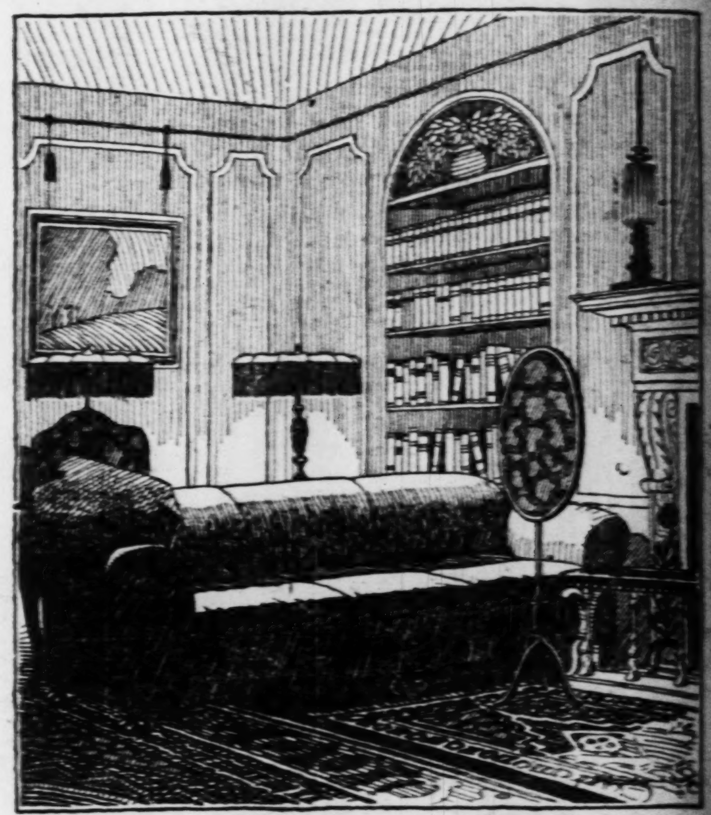
During which will be featured at Vandervoort's, many unusual exhibits and programs, with a series of daily talks by Ross Crane and other notable St. Louisans



THE "Better Homes in America" movement is a national campaign endorsed by Federal and state officials, and organized and directed by public-spirited men and women in all parts of the country. This "Better Homes" demonstration is directed by a group of prominent women of St. Louis and St. Louis County working in co-operation with civic and educational interests.

A concrete demonstration of the "Better Home" is provided by four newly erected bungalow rooms on the Fifth Floor—completely equipped, furnished and decorated in accordance with improved modern practice for a home costing from $7000 to $10,000, and placed on exhibition for the first time tomorrow. Eleven exhibit rooms, also on the Fifth Floor, are furnished at a cost commensurate with a $35,000 to $40,000 residence.

A series of lectures and demonstrations on building and furnishing the home, embracing even such phases as sanitation and music, will be given in our Music Hall. Mr. Ross Crane, nationally known "Home Expert," now permanently associated with Vandervoort's and director of our "Better Homes" Bureau, will make a brief daily talk concerning his studies and experience in creating the "Better and More Beautiful Home."

Address (Fire Prevention Day) by G. A. Madison, Chief Inspector of the St. Louis Fire Prevention Bureau.

Address, "Tonsils and Adenoids" by Dr. Louis K. Guggenheim of St. Louis.

K S D TO BROADCAST STORY OF SERIES GAME

G. A. Madison, Fire Inspector, and Dr. Louis Guggenheim to Speak Monday Evening.

Starting at 1 o'clock this afternoon, the Post-Dispatch Radio Broadcasting Station, K S D, will send out, play by play, the story of the Sunday game in the world's baseball championship series, as the Giants and Yenkees clash at the Polo Grounds, New York City.

Radio enthusiasts who also are baseball fans will thus enjoy the next best thing to seeing the game with their own eyes. Not only will the scores be broadcast, but the "balls" and "strikes" as called by the umpire, will be heard.

There will be no broadcasting tonight, but an unusually good program has been arranged for Monday evening. G. A. Madison, chief inspector of the St. Louis Fire Prevention Bureau, will make an address on the subject of "Fire Prevention Day," and Dr. Louis K. Guggenheim, St. Louis, will make an address on "Tonsils and Adenoids."

The musical program will be furnished by soloists from the Standard Oil Band, Wood River, Ill.

Last night Station K S D sent out one of the most enjoyed musical programs of recent weeks, according to comments received by telephone. There was jolly dance music by the Melodee-Pheens and songs by the Knickerbocker Four.

Good music, such as last night's entertainers furnished, always delights the wireless audience and there are requests for encores which cannot always be furnished. The younger radio enthusiasts are especially delighted with musical numbers.

The Melodee-Pheens use a piano, cornet, banjo, violin, saxophone and drums, under the leadership of Richard R. Taylor, director. Some of their numbers were solo pieces.

The Knickerbocker Four rendered a wide range of songs in very agreeable fashion, and their music was received clearly.

TRANSFER COMPANY MUST PAY FOR DAMAGE TO CLOTHES BY RAIN

$1672 Awarded to Chicago Woman Whose Trunks Were Flooded at Union Station.

A jury in Circuit Judge Rutledge's court yesterday returned a verdict for $1672.62 in favor of Mrs. J. W. Ford of Chicago, formerly of St. Louis, against the St. Louis Tranfer Co. because of damage by rain to wearing apparel belonging to her when it was in possession of the defendant. The apparel was in trunks on a platform at the Twentieth street baggage depot at Union Station on Sept. 24, 1918, when a heavy rain caused water to flood over the platform.

Among the articles were a hat, which the plaintiff said was worth $125, and several dresses. Water caused the colors to run, and most of the articles in the trunks were ruined, Mrs. Ford said.

The transfer company, in defense, pleaded the act of God theory, evidence being that between 11 a. m. and noon 4.56 inches of rain fell in a cloudburst which flooded Mill Creek valley and the subway at Union Station. There was such a downpour that water flowed from Market street over the rotunda of the Terminal Hotel at Union Station and into the midway, the defense stated.

Counsel for Mrs. Ford argued that the company had ample warning, rain having fallen from 7 a. m., and that the defendant should have put the baggage in a safe place. Judge Rutledge, in instructing the jury, defined the legal theory of an act of God, as used in the case, as being something caused "by a force of nature unexpected and not reasonably anticipated."

Free Receiving Sets

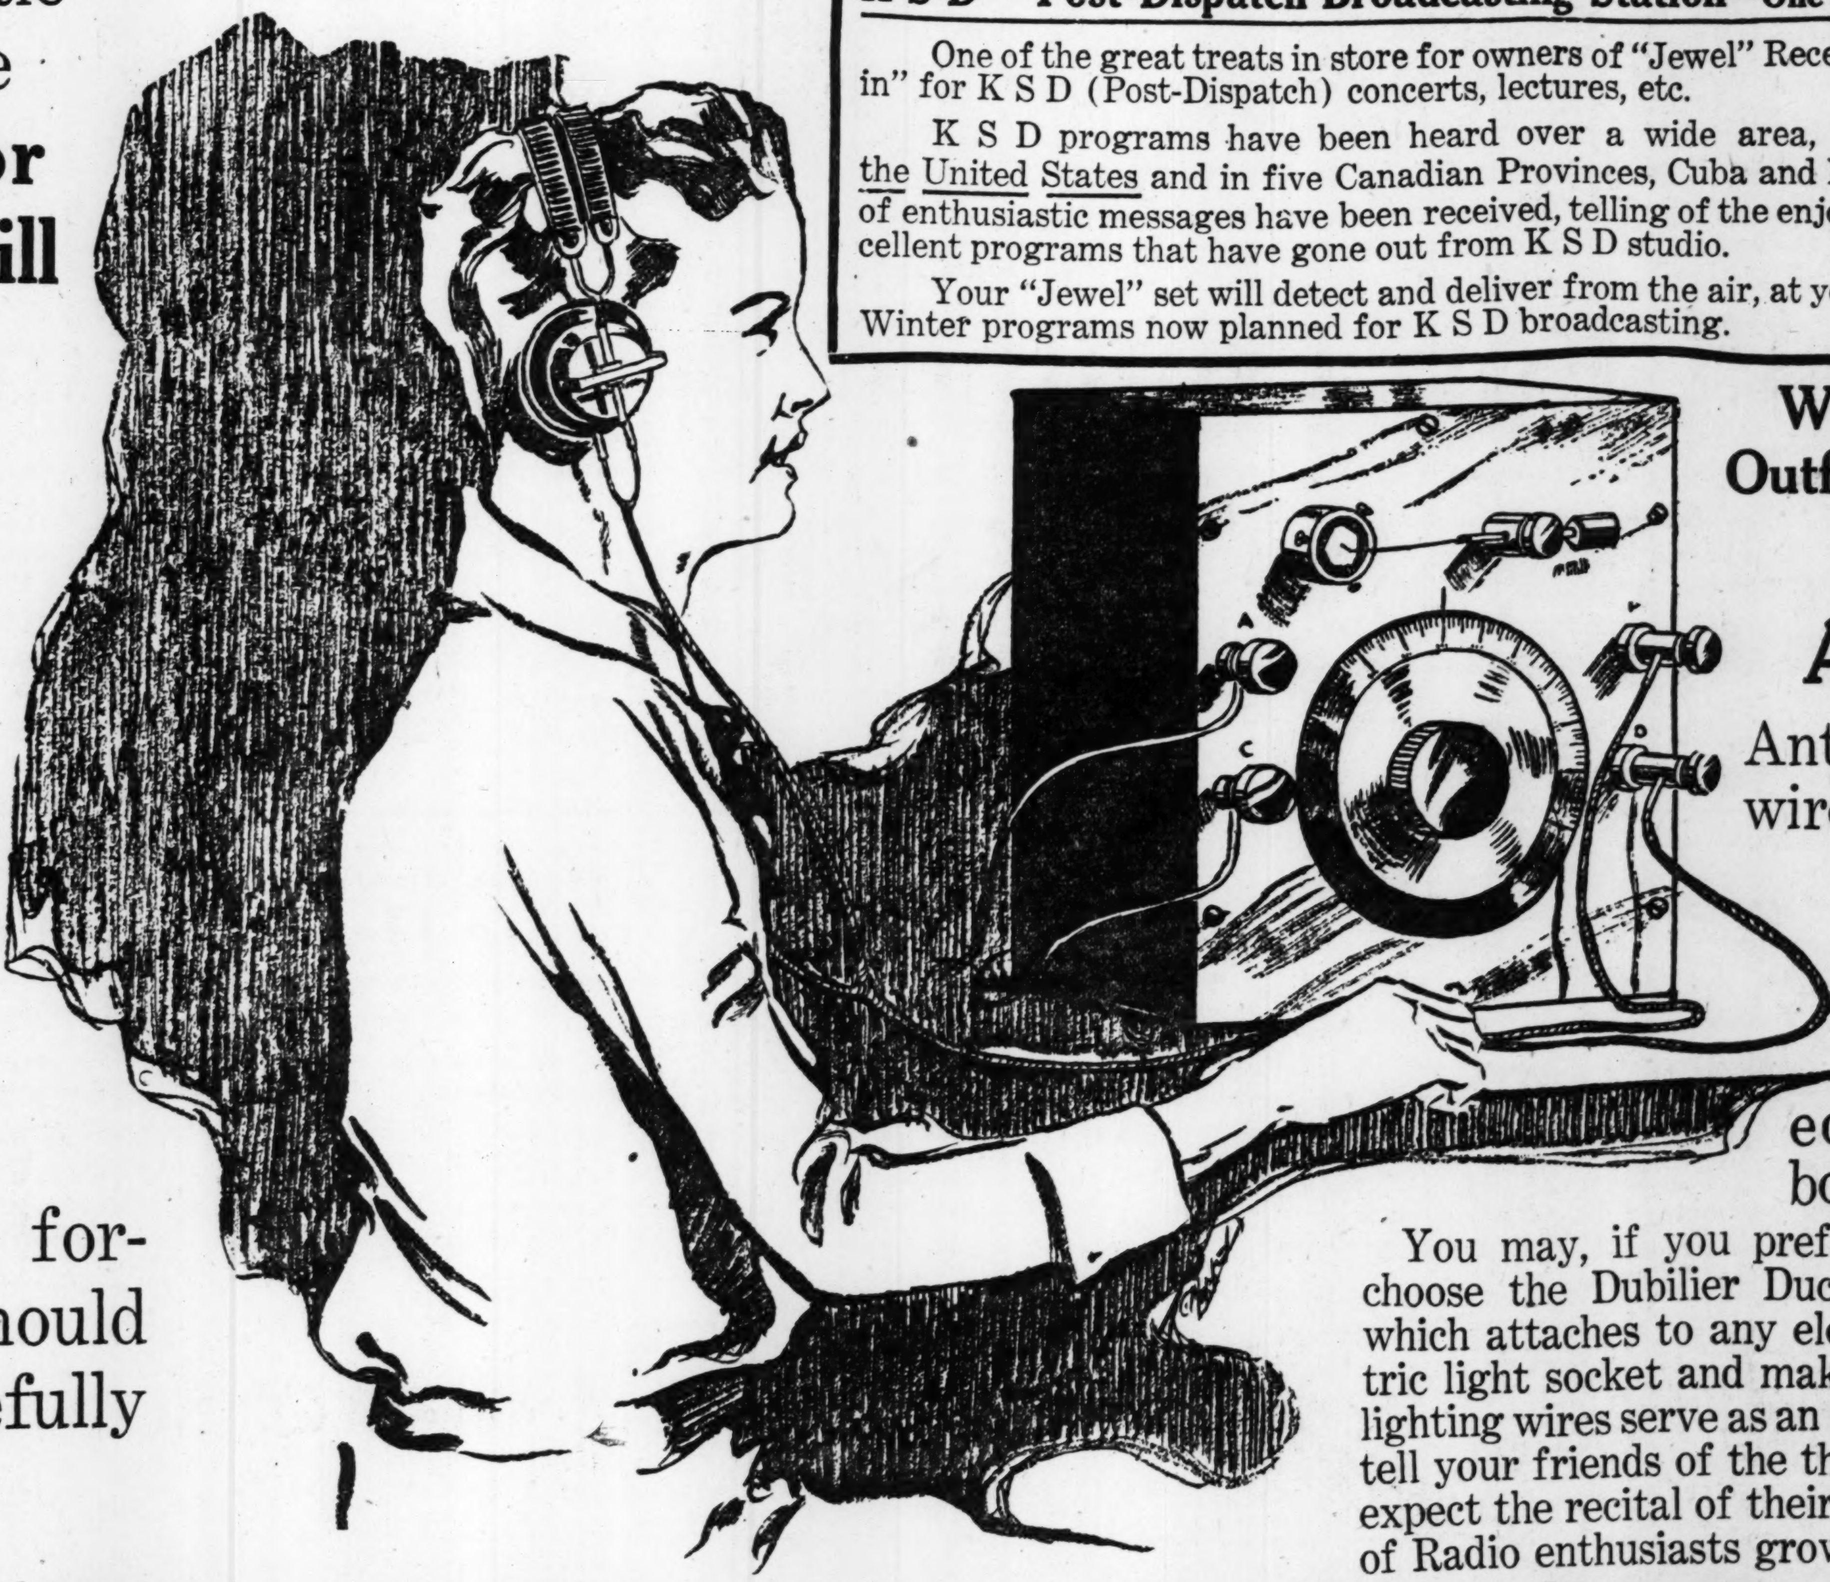
while only hundreds are available. To be among the fortunate ones you should read this offer carefully and—

K S D—Post-Dispatch Broadcasting Station—One of Most Powerful in Nation

One of the great treats in store for owners of "Jewel" Receiving Sets is the "listening in" for K S D (Post-Dispatch) concerts, lectures, etc.

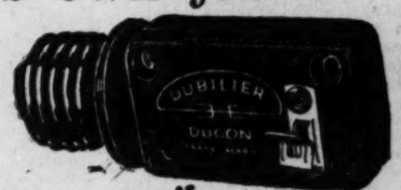
K S D programs have been heard over a wide area, including every State in the United States and in five Canadian Provinces, Cuba and Mexican ports. Thousands of enthusiastic messages have been received, telling of the enjoyment afforded by the excellent programs that have gone out from K S D studio.

Your "Jewel" set will detect and deliver from the air, at your will, the great Fall and Winter programs now planned for K S D broadcasting.



With Every "Jewel" Outfit We Will Include
Free Accessories

Antennae and ground wire, insulators and lightning arresters. Installing this complete equipment is a boy's own job.



You may, if you prefer, choose the Dubilier Ducon which attaches to any electric light socket and makes lighting wires serve as an aerial. Prepare now to tell your friends of the thrills of "Listening In" or expect the recital of their thrills–for the number of Radio enthusiasts grows amazingly!

RUSH YOUR ENROLLMENT BLANK TO THE POST-DISPATCH

Get Ten New Subscriptions to the POST-DISPATCH and earn a "Jewel" Set—complete with necessary accessories for installation.

This is an opportune time to solicit subscriptions for the POST-DISPATCH among your friends and neighbors. Many have recently returned from Summer vacations and have not ordered delivery of favorite newspapers. You can promise them the greatest newspaper value in this field. You take subscriptions at the regular subscription rate—50 cents a month for Daily, except Sunday, issues.

Carrier Will Collect Monthly—You Pay Nothing—Collect Nothing

Here Are the Requirements—Read Carefully:

10 subscriptions are required—each for 6 months. No extra credit for yearly subscriptions.

New subscriptions are required—from persons not now reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH, whether purchased from newsboy or newsdealer, or delivered by carrier.

Daily subscriptions are required. No credit allowed for Sunday POST-DISPATCH subscriptions. A Sunday POST-DISPATCH reader who has not been reading the Daily POST-DISPATCH may subscribe through you under this plan.

Verified subscriptions are required. We investigate the validity of the order and the subscriber's responsibility. All orders are received subject to acceptance or rejection by the POST-DISPATCH.

Home-Delivered subscriptions are required. Business district readers are better served by newsboys and cannot be included under the terms of this offer. This makes necessary a definitely restricted area, and orders will not be accepted for delivery within the district bounded

GENERAL RECOVERY IN PRICES FEATURE OF MARKETS DURING PAST WEEK

MONEY MARKET IS FIRMER BUT RATE RISE NOT LARGE

Advance of ¼ of 1 Per Cent in Principal Forms of Accommodation Accounted for Amply by Slight but Distinct Increase in Loans, Acceptances and Commercial Paper.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"An apt illustration of the manner in which the movement of prices of itself influences sentiment is afforded by the markets of the past week. A natural reaction after a long and substantial advance was intensified by reports from the Near East. Traders thereupon generally ignored the signs of improvement in industry and a certain amount of panicky liquidation appeared. When this stage was reached and the reaction had about ran its course, it required only a slight change in the character of the foreign news to start the shorts to covering and to send prices up sharply to new high levels. Under these circumstances confidence returned and talk shifted to stocks, dividends and surpluses.

Outlook Is Unchanged.

"Actually the outlook remains about what it had been before: promising as far as the domestic situation is concerned and uncertain in its foreign aspects. Taking a narrow view of foreign affairs, war between Great Britain and Turkey remains improbable, and the further the present negotiations go the less likelihood there is of a clash. The questions of reparations and the inter-allied debts still remain, however, and the fresh demoralization of the German mark emphasizes the unsatisfactory condition of central Europe. Quite apart from a Turkish war, the prospects are that European purchasing power will continue to be seriously restricted.

"Domestic business, meanwhile, goes on apace. Car loadings continue to increase, the last week report setting a new high record for the year. Industrial fuel supplies are adequate, and bituminous prices are showing a tendency to decline to more reasonable levels as pig iron production has made a complete recovery after the August shutdown. Both cotton and wheat are ruling at higher prices. No only is the industrial performance good; it would be better were it not for the limitations imposed by the country's transportation facilities. Most of the principal industries testify to the truth of this. Thus the manufacture of finished steel products is being restricted by inability to secure cars suitable for the shipment of these products. The movement of building material is being similarly restricted, and car supply is still a limiting factor in coal production. Farm products, too, are feeling the pinch, grain supplies having trouble both in moving from the farm and in reaching the seaboard. Taken altogether, however, it is apparent that a volume of business will be transacted this autumn which will be materially better than seemed likely early in the year.

Money Market Firmer.

"A firmer tone persists in the money market. The increase is not large, amounting to about ¼ of 1 per cent in the principal forms of accommodation. It is amply accounted for by slight but distinct increases in loans, acceptances and commercial paper. It is confirmed by a decline of 2 per cent from the peak in the reserve ratio of the Federal reserve system. All this is but the natural concommitant of the usual seasonal increase in business. Considering the huge reserve of our banking system and the probable moderate improvement which is on the cards, any sharp increase in the price of money during the rest of the year is not at all likely.

"If proof were needed that the biggest obstacle to a reurn of prosperity is embraced in Europe's economic unsettlement it could have been obtained in abundance at this week's conference of the American Bankers' Association. Those who have read the speeches must realize that German reparations and the itner-allied debts must be placed on a rational basis before we can have that marginal support for our markets which makes the difference between something fair and something good. The several bankers did not say that we should forthwith cancel the debts owed us by Europe. They did make clear, however, that Germany cannot pay her present reparations bill and that certain of the allies cannot meet their obligations under the restrictions imposed by Congress on our debt funding commission. Under the circumstances our interest lies in securing a definite and workable arrangement of the whole matter. As a practical nation we should be prepared to enter into discussions looking to such a solution with the other countries concerned."

"Stocks moved in irregular fashion in this morning's trading session which was confined largely to special groups. At the start many stocks were in supply, but a better demand came to the market in the first hour and prices firmed up, only to turn irregular again before the close. Buying of Mexican Petroleum and Standard Oil of New Jersey was a feature of the trading, the latter moving up to a new high record. Another strong spot was United States Rubber, sentiment being helped by declaration of the preferred dividend. Rails were quiet with a large number of them showing fractional declines. No particular selling pressure was in evidence, however. Trading was only moderately active. Bonds held steady.

Exchange Market Firm.

"Trading in foreign exchange was more active than usual for Saturday morning and the tone was firm. There appeared to be an entire absence of anxiety over the situation in the Near East. Sterling moved up a cent at the opening to $4.42¾, but later eased off ¼. French francs were in better demand at 7.60 cents, a point above the previous close, while Italian lire were unchanged. German marks, however, continued weak and established yet another new low record at .04¼ of a cent. Swiss and Dutch currencies were in special demand.

"The feature of the weekly statement of the Clearing House is a decrease of $81,589,000 in surplus, resulting in a deficit in reserve of $23,052,000. Loans decreased $707,000 while net demand deposits fell off $58,972,000. The reserve in the Federal Bank of member banks shows a decrease of $89,770,000. There was also a slight falling off in circulation.

"Commodity markets were also steady. Reports of better trade conditions in the West and less pressure from the country has brought a gradual hardening in wheat prices. Today the December future opened unchanged at $1.06⅝, eased off slightly on profit-taking and then moved up about a cent in the first hour. Further trade buying brought a moderate gain in cotton. December cotton opened 7 points down at 21.55 the low point of the day, then advanced over 20 points. Profit-taking was absorbed in good fashion and the market closed firm.

STANDARD OIL LIST FEATURE OF SESSION ON NEW YORK CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Standard Oils remained the outstanding feature in today's short session on the Curb Exchange. Overnight selling orders were responsible for sharp declines in these issues during the course of the first half hour or so, but after this selling had been absorbed, the early losses were more than offset and several new high records made. Vacuum Oil was heavily traded in and was among those to reach a new high. Standard Oil of Indiana, after reaching its best price for the year, felt the effect of profit-taking. Magnolia Petroleum and Ohio Oil were higher, while Prairie Oil and Gas and Standard Oil of Kentucky lost ground.

Uncertainty as to the situation in the Near East had a dampening effect upon other sections of the list. Trading fell off considerably in the miscellaneous department. With the exception of one or two of the motor stocks, there was very little feature to the rest of the list.

Mutual Oil and Mountain Producers were comparatively active, but prices were little changed from their previous closing levels. Ryan Consolidated came in for considerable attention and recorded a substantial gain.

Durant Motors was the leader in the motor group, reaching another new top. Stutz Motor was active but lost its early gain in the last hour.

Clearings, Money, Silver

The St. Louis Clearing House Association report showed debits to individual accounts of $26,500,000 and debits to bank and bankers' accounts of $18,100,000, making a total of $44,600,000.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Bar silver, 35¼d per ounce. Money, 1¾ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 2¼@2⅜ per cent. Three months bills, 2 7-16@2½ per cent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Foreign bar silver, 69¼c. Mexican dollars, 52⅝c.

French and German Crop Decline.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—A substantial yearly decline in the grain crops of both France and Germany is shown in estimates prepared by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome and cabled to the agricultural department here.

France's 1922 wheat production is placed at 235,380,000 pounds, a decrease of 88,090,000 from last year and that of Germany at 69,670,000 bushels, representing a decline of 38,130,000. In Germany the rye crop is estimated at 210,580,000 compared to 267,648,000 last year and the oats crop at 284,600,000 compared to 344,812,000 a year ago. Some of the minor grains showed an increase in France, however, the French rye being estimated at 37,600,000 bushels compared to 44,392,000 last year, the oats crop at 288,250,000, compared to 244,455,000 and the barley crop at 39,540,000, compared at 38,318,000.

BRITISH EXCHANGE RATE REGAINS STRENGTH WHILE GERMAN MARK FALLS

EASIER MONEY AND NEAR EAST NEWS BENEFIT MARKET

War Loan Dividends on December 1 Amounting to £50,000,000 Expected to Help Continue London Credit Situation — Effect of Service on Debt.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in today's financial review says:

"The markets have benefited by the combined and simultaneous effects of easier money and a clearing of the Near Eastern situation. Credits now are superabundant and it is possible that comparatively easy conditions will last till the end of the year, because £50,000,000 in war loan dividends are due on December 1. The markets also have been helped temporarily by the absence of any important investment flotations. Various big industrial issues are impending, however, and if the League of Nations scheme for financing Austria materializes some large international loans presumably will result. The general outlook is moderately good, but Near Eastern developments, which are still somewhat uncertain, will leave much electricity behind, while the strain on Anglo-French relations has been considerable.

"Financial circles still are discussing with approval Reginald McKen- focus the attention of bankers and vention, chiefly because it is considered that the speech should tend to focuss the attention of bankers and business men at all centers upon the problem of interallied debts. This is necessary because politicians and statesmen in every country dream dreams, while bankers face realities.

Sterling Rise Unjustified.

"Meanwhile fresh point is given to McKenna's speech by foreign exchange movements. The German mark already is showing renewed demoralization owing to the unsettlement of the reparation problem. However, while the German financial situation may threaten a crisis, present industrial activity there is great and unemployment at some of our industrial centers is directly traceable to German competition aided by depreciated German currency.

"It is considered that any undue rise in sterling on the impending negotiations for funding the British debt to you will not be justified. Economic influences must necessarily favor your exchange for a long time to come and when we commence service on our debt to you the payments can only be accomplished by intense economy and a loss on exchange both of which will react on you. The exchange problem probably will be materially affected by the use you make of our interest payments. Inflationary tactics on your side might easily occasion depreciation in the dollar.

Effect on Industry.

"At the outset, however, resumption of service on our debt to you inevitably will involve a big strain here both on our exchange and on our budget, and the prospects of scant relief from our present burdens of taxation augurs badly for our industrial developments. The Government now undoubtedly is economizing and revenue has been well maintained, but the effect of the recent trade depression will be more apparent on next year's acounts, which also will bear the full strain of meeting the interest on our debt to you.

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—End of the week trading on Worth street found cotton cloths maintaining the recent price advances and business active. Mill agents were firm in their demands and not inclined to book orders for the further deliveries except at some slight premiums over nominal quotations. Sheetings were especially active and sateens, drills and twills were in excellent demand. The 68x72 print cloths were actively traded in. Some good-sized orders were booked for fine fabrics. The advances in raw silks were maintained in today's trading, although the inquiry from manufacturers fell off somewhat from the volume of previous days.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The raw sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 3⅞ for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 5.64c for centrifugal, with no sales reported. Trading in raw sugar futures was light; final prices were 2 to 4 points net higher. Closing: October, 3.37c; March, 3.14c; May, 3.24c. Most of the refiners were closed and little fresh business was reported in refined sugar. Prices were unchanged at 6.25c to 6.60c for fine granulated. Refined futures nominal.

Sugar futures closed steady; approximate sales, 4200 tons; Oct., 3.37c; Dec., 3.35c; March, 3.14c; May, 3.24c.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The market for coffee futures was irregular today with business so quiet that prices responded to small orders either way. The opening was 5 points higher to 2 points lower and after selling u pto 910 for March on scattered covering the price eased off to 9.04 under a little liquidation or trade selling. The close was net one point higher to 11 points lower, the late months being relatively easy. Sales were estimated at about 17,000. Closing quotations: October, 8.95; December, 9.11; January 9.06; March 9.04; May 7.08; July 8.82; September 8.64.

Spot coffee quiet; Rios 7s 10 to 10½; Santos 4s 15 to 15¼.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Ordinary reading of this morning's European news would certainly have suggested that the Turkish situation was to become again a factor in the markets. But Wall Street took the foreign exchanges as the proper index to important operation on that schedule. Exchange rates, so far from reflecting apprenension, were distinctly higher.

No doubt the possibility of unpleasant developments over Sunday accentuated the usual disposition to clear up speculative contracts at the week-end, but there was no important selling in any quarter. On the contrary the special buying movements which have been a feature on the Stock Exchange all week were resumed.

Standard Oil of New Jersey was bid up violently, anticipating a stock distribution in its case. Mexican Petroleum had one of its characteristic run-ups, thought to be against the short interests. Rubber stocks were in demand.

The shipping stocks broke sharply on the administration order prohibiting liquor not only on American vesels but on foreign ships entering American ports. The decline did not go far, however, because Wall Street reasoned that this was a move calculated to create a more favorable sentiment in Congress toward ship subsidies.

In the last hour realizing sales began to exert more of an influence and the greater part of the list went lower.

It was an interesting fact that the Turkish ultimatum regarding the restoration of Thrace had no effect upon the cotton market of the day, or upon European Government bonds, which held steady.

Motor shares came to the front in the final dealings with particularly heavy buying in General Motors on a revival of dividend talk. As Southern Railway directors meet next week and it is anticipated will restore the preferred stock to a dividend basis, the brisk advance in both preferred and common was readily understandable. The market closed steady with the general run of stocks showing only slight net changes.

Shipping Stocks.

The market's first reaction to the order prohibiting liquor on American vessels and foreign vessels in American ports, was a sharp selling movement in the shipping stocks. The inference was that business would flow away from vessels plying between Europe and the United States and go to the Canadian lines. Mercantile Marine pfd was driven down nearly 3 points, American Ship and Commerce 2 points and American International over a point before the decline was checked. These stocks appeared to be well taken, however, on the break and rallied subsequently. From the viewpoint of these buyers, the Administration's action would, in the end, prove bullish because it would smooth the way for a ship subsidy bill. In the meantime, it was pointed out, Mercantile Marine might lose patronage on its vessels of American registry, but could get around the order for its foreign owned vessels by stopping at Halifax.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Bond trading was quiet and without particular feature today, as is usual on the Saturday half-day.

High-grade issues were in supply. Such bonds as Southern Pacific refnding 4s, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s and Atchison General 4s were inclined to be weak. Today's movements, however, were only a continuation of one that has been in progress for some time. Large holders apparently have been liquidating a part of their holdings. There is some reason to believe that more money is going into real estate mortgages. The weekly statement of the Federal Reserve member banks, published today, is also significant. It shows a decline of $35,000,000 in investments over the week preceding. Of course the market must absorb a part of this surplus of securities held by banks, and in the process there is likely to be some weakness from time to time.

Liberty bonds maintained the stronger tone displayed in the late dealings of yesterday. Changes in the regular list were irregular and mostly fractional. Some attention was paid to short-term and callable bonds. Brooklyn Edison B 7s equaled their high of the year at 109. Considering the fact that this bond is redeemable at 107½, today's quotation indicates the favor with which investors regard this security, which gives a high current return even though the investment may prove only temporary.

Foreign bonds were generally lower, probably a reflection of the turn in the news from the Near East last night. Both the French issues sold down, as did the Belgian 8s. Sweden 6s, on the other hand, had a fractional advance.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Brueau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange review today, says:

"There was an absolute reversal of foreign exchange conditions at the beginning of the week from those prevailing in the preceding two weeks. Starting early on Monday the market developed a strength as a direct result of the agreement by which a peaceful solution of the Turkish problem was promised. Demand sterling, which governs the foreign exchange movement to a great extent, was in scant supply during the greater part of the time, and at intervals moved up with a great deal of vigor, indicating that some interests had put out short lines of sterling exchange in considerable volume during the period of unsettlement. Demand sterling ranged during the week from $4.37¾ to $4.42¾, moving up to the highest price in the middle of the week, at a time when grain and cotton bills appeared in considerable volume, and these offerings were effective on Thursday in starting a reaction, which became more pronounced yesterday morning, when Europe was again unsettled by the Turkish situation.

"One of the events demanding attention was the renewed decline in German exchange, bringing marks checks and cables down to the new low record of .04½. French exchange showed strength following the advance in sterling, checks on Paris moving up 7 points to 7.63½ and also reacted in the last few days of the week. Italian exchange was steadily bought, some interests attributing the demand to accumulation for semigovernment interest and this buying made lire checks advance from 4.22½ to 4.31 with a reaction from the high level at the end of the week. There were wide fluctuations in Norwegian exchange, crown checks on Christiania advancing ot 17.80, but later reacting to close to the early level. Canadian exchange demanded special interest because of the advance in Canadian dollars to 1-16 premium, a new high for that country."

"Trading in foreign exchange was more active than usual for Saturday morning and the tone was firm. There appeared to be an entire absence of anxiety over the situation in the Near East. Sterling moved up a cent at the opening to $4.42¼, but later eased off ¼. French francs were in better demand close, while Italian lire were unchanged. German marks, however, continued weak and established yet another new low record at at 7.60 cents, a point above the previous .04¼ of a cent. Swiss and Dutch currencies were in special demand."

PRICE TENDENCY LOWER IN LIVESTOCK MARKET

Best Corn-Fed Steers and Yearlings Exception to General Range.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Wk.	Pre. wk.	Year ago
Cattle and calves	48,356	58,351	26,491
Hogs	58,186	78,314	44,161
Sheep	12,869	13,892	9,755
Horses and mules	1,836	2,366	2,965
Totals	121,247	152,923	83,372

Live stock receipts at the St. Louis National Stock Yards last week, though somewhat under the heavy runs of the preceding week, were again quite liberal and all classes, except the best corn-fed steers and yearlings, showed a lower trend. A small supply of the more desirable steers and yearlings influenced a steady market for these. The top was $11.75 per cwt. paid for several consignments of yearlings steers and matured steers registered $11.25. The bulk of the best corn-fed steers and yearlings movd from $9.50 to $10.75. Virtually all grades of the plainer cattle, of which most of the offering consisted, suffered decline. Medium and common native steers suitable for killers, also all classes of stockers and feeders, depreciated 25c, more in spots. Western grass steers, of which there were about 200 cars on sale, declined 15c to 25c on the best, and 25c to 50c lower on the plainer kinds.

A spread of $6 to $8 caught most of the common to medium native steers, while Westerns, most of which were from Oklahoma and a moderate number from Kansas, sold largely from $4 to $7.10, with a few cutter types dropipng down to $3.50. Plain grass yearlings at $3.50 to $7.50 largely, broke 25c to 50c, butcher cows at $3.50 to $5.50 for bulk dropped 25c and canners and cutters moved down 15c to 25c, the former moving from $2.25 to $2.50 and cutters from $2.60 to $3.25. A few of the best heavy cows, a kind selling around $6, showed no essential change. Bull prices dropped off 25c, beef animals with weight bringing $4 to $4.50 and bolognas making $3.25 to $3.75. Stocker and feeder shipments were again quite large, the outbound movement totaling close to 10,000 head. Steer prices varied largely from $4 to $6.75, with some of the commoner stockers selling in the $3 column and best feeders, on the other hand, ranging up to $7 and better. Veal calves closed 25c or more off, $10.50 constituting the late top, as against $10.75 at the finish of the previous week. Choice calves at the best time brought up to $10.75. The bluk of lights during the week sold from $10 to $10.50. Heavy calves were quotable at $3 to $6 and Southern canner yearlings at $2.50 to $2.75.

Hogs Sell Lower.

For the week just closed hog receipts were somewhat above the seasonal average, although not up to the proportions of the previous week's record run. The six-day period just ended showed an aggregate of 58,100 hogs, against 78,300 the preceding week and 44,100 the same period a year ago. A continued abundance of pigs and light weight swine and a relative scarcity of heavy, well-finished hogs is the outstanding feature of the week's trade. As a result buyers have sought the hogs 220 pounds and up day after day, while they neglected those under 180 pounds in weight. Liberal carry-overs from day to day have been the rule, this applying particularly to the light stock. Generally the market is closing 25c to 40c lower for the week on the bulk of the butcher swine 180 pounds and up. Pigs and lights are off mostly 50@75c, with extreme cases showing even more loss. Packing sows and stags were an exception to the other classes, and are strong for the week. It is said that the shortage of heavyweight hogs and improved demand for lard are centering more attention of packer sows which up to recently were relatively cheap as compared with finished droves of swine. Demand for stock hogs continues rather light, with immune kinds 120 pounds and down quoted at $10 to $11 per cwt. At the week's finish various classes of hogs are selling as follows: Choice butcher hows, 250 pounds and up, $9.65 to $9.80; butchers, 195 to 250 pounds, $9.65 to $9.90; light butchers and shipping hogs, 160 to 180 pounds, $9.40 to $9.60; lights, 130 to 150 pounds, $9 to $9.50; pigs, 120 to 130 pounds, $8.50 to $9; pigs under 110 pounds, $7.50 to $8.50; packing sows, $7.50 to $8.25; stags, $6 to $7; immune stock pigs, $10 to $11.

DAILY TOP AND BULK.

Monday, Oct. 2	10.25	9.90@10.15

Sheep Are Lower.

Receipts were not so good last week of sheep and lambs as the previous week, yet prices were on the downward trend. Sheep suffered a loss of 25c and this is the first decline recorded in several weeks. Lambs suffered a drop of around $1 during the week. The market was draggy most of the week. The quality of the lambs on sale was not very good. Week before last, at the close, best lambs were selling at $13.75@14.25, btu at the close of last week similar grades weer moving at $12.50@13.25, which shows the average loss in the market. Half-fat kinds were extremely dull sale all week and towards the close went at $11@12, culls $6.50@7.50, and trashy little lambs $3@5. The week opened with mutton sheep at $6, but later they sold at $5.75, breeding ewes $6.50@7.50, stockers $3@4.50, choppers and bucks $2@3, nad caners $1@1.50.

Horses and Mules.

With receipts moderate, demand fair, the horse market ruled steady for the week on the better grades and slow and weak on common, thin offerings. Horses in most favor among buyers were fat Southerners and good big work types. These were active. The commission offering for the period at approximately 300 head was all native and the bulk sold through auction. In the mule alleys good sugar and cotton types received the best call and sold steady. Thin, common mules, f which a good part of the run consisted, met rather infidderent demand. Mules out of first hands totaled 900 head, a fair suply.

WHEAT'S HIGHER CLOSE IS CREDITED TO EXPORT SALES

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Uncertainty as to peace or war with the Turks has had much to do with making wheat prices average higher this week.

The most of the week wheat fluctuated according as developments in the Near East became more or less threatening, but yesterday an exception was noted, the amount of new buying on that occasion failing to prove sufficient to absorb profit-taking sales and increased bear ventures due to successive provisions upturns in values. These upturns had been stimulated in degree by bullish estimate of the 1922 yield of corn in the United States and by a reported better domestic flour trade, as well as by increasing demand for wheat available for ready shipments to Europe.

Rail and lake transportation situations rendered the wheat market more perplexing to forecast than is usually the case. Lightage charges for wheat rose to the highest point ever known, and exporters at the Atlantic Seaboard were represented as curtailinfi offers of wheat abroad, the unliklihood of getting supplies on time being a decided hindrance. Relief from a drouth that has delayed the sewing of winter wheat tended to ease the market a little as the week drew to a close.

Buying of corn was on a broad scale during much of the week, with current crop estimates acting as the chief incentive. Oats moved up with corn.

Packers buying, supposed to reflect shipping business, gave a lift to provisions.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The wheat market was strong most of the session aside from a dip shortly after the opening. There was some short covering of wheat at the start because of the higher cables. After this buying was over a little commission house selling induced locals to make short sales. The dip which followed uncovered good-sized buying orders by export houses, and later shorts covered freely. It was believed that the 1,500,000-bushel Greek order had been booked because of the buying by export houses. Broomhall said that all American shippers offers to Liverpool overnight had been accepted, and it is more likely that the buying of futures was against those acceptances. Milling demand for wheat was good. Minneapolis and Winnipeg premiums were unchanged. Receipts continue of good volume and, it is estimated that Canadian provinces in the West marketed 95,000,000 bushels during the month of September. Market closed ⅝c to 1⅛c higher: December, $1.07⅝@1.07¾; May, $1.09⅛@1.09¼; July, $1.02¼.

Corn was affected by the action of wheat. There was short covering in evidence, but long corn came out on the bulges. Shipping demand for corn was confined to exporters. Country offered little corn to arrive. The difference between American and plate corn abroad is gradually narrowing. Market closed ⅛@1¼c higher; December, 62⅛@62c; May, 63⅞c; July, 64⅜c.

Oats were dull and prices were affected by the action of other markets. Cash houses continued to transfer hedges. Market closed ⅝c to ½c higher; December, 38⅞@39c; May, 39⅞c; July, 38⅝c.

Provisions were firm on buying of October lard by packers and some commission house demand for deferred futures. Hedgers sold January lard. Lard closed 5 to 15 cents up and ribs unchanged.

Grain futures closed higher at the week-end session on the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange.

The higher opening on better cables was followed by reaction, but when Chicago reported buying, presumed for Eastern exporters, prices again rose as shorts covered. Shipping demand for corn was reported and country offerings were called light. There was late evening up business.

In the local cash grain market Saturday red winter wheat ruled firm to 1c higher. A good demand of varied character featured the market, all classes of wheat being cleaned up pretty well. Good soft wheat was wanted for local mills and on orders even the less desirable milling qualities seemed to meet pretty good demand. Low grades sold readily. Hard wheat was ½c to 1c higher. Yellow descriptions and low grades continued to meet good demand, presumably for export, and there was milling demand for good semi-dark Western wheats at around $1.15½ to $1.16. The latter price was bid for couple track cars Kansas No. 2 hard 12.50 to 12.60 per cent protein. One lot of 10,000 bu No. 2 hard 12½ per cent protein wheat sold to arrive basis 8c over Kansas City Dec. f. o. b. Kansas City. Cash corn was unchanged to 2c higher, the average price being ½c to 1c higher. The top price was paid late in day. There was good demand from elevators and shippers. Offerings were limited. This fact, together with strong future market, helped prices. Cash oats were steady to ½c higher. Offerings were scant and shippers and local trade cleaned up tables quickly.

After the higher start, wheat futures tended to ease off, December falling beneath previous close. There was some evening up business later. Liverpool December wheat opened ¼d higher and closed ⅝d better.

December wheat opened at $1.05⅝, May wheat $1.06⅞, December corn 61⅛c and May corn 62½c.

The three Northwestern markets combined Saturday had 2534 cars of wheat, compared with 3033 a week ago and 1879 last year, Minneapolis today receiving 391 cars, Duluth 275 and Winnipeg 1868.

Local wheat receipts, which were 136,800 bushels, compared with 120,000 a week ago and 106,005 last year, included 70 cars local and 44 through; corn receipts, which were 44,200 bushels, compared with 101,400 a week ago and 49,400 last year, included 25 cars local and 9 through; oats receipts, which were 40,000 bushels, compared with 76,000 a week ago and 120,000 last year, included 19 cars loacl and 1 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 1,764,000 bushels. Corn receipts were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,086,000 bushels. Oats receipts were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 735,000 bushels.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators Saturday were 1,173,161 bushels of wheat, 198,874 bushels of corn, 36,687 bushels of oats; grain stocks comprised 230,799 bushels of No. 2 red winter wheat, 9101 bushels of No. 1 hard winter wheat, 177,738 bushels of No. 2 hard winter wheat, 114,932 bushels of No. 2 corn, 16,236 bushels of No. 2 white corn, 40,530 bushels of No. 2 yellow corn, 10,800 bushels of No. 2 white oats, 9540 bushels of No. 3 white oats, 3512 bushels of No. 2 rye.

Primary shipments of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 1,107,000 bushels. Corn shipments were heavier than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 710,000 bushels. Oats shipments were lighter than a week ago and heavier than a year ago, being 600,000 bushels.

Clearances today were 642,000 bushels of wheat, 103,000 bushels of corn, 80,000 bushels of oats, 21,000 barrels of flour and 737,000 bushels of wheat and flour.

RALEIGH FIRM FISCAL AGENT OF FEDERAL HOME BUILDING TRUST

However, Bankruptcy Petition Filed Against Agency Does Not Affect Trust Company.

The Raleigh Agency Association, with offices in the Title Guaranty Building, against which an involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed by Paul Brown, owner of the building, on a claim for $1008 rent for offices, is the fiscal agency of the Federal Home Building Trust. The proceeding does not affect the Federal Home Building Trust.

Both the Raleign Agency Association and the Federal Home Building Trust were organized in October, 1921, with Charles Gutke of 5329 Bartmer avenue, as promoter. With him in the Raleigh Agency, a common law trust, were associated Lee A. Hall, John A. Alberici, W. R. Fisher, Arthur Watling and Felix Chaudet, who invested $10,000 and named Gutke as trustee. These men are named in the bankruptcy petition as co-partners in the agency. The fiscal agency is the sales organization of the trust company.

Fisher, who is treasurer of the trust company, said that in all probability a new fiscal agency would be organized.

1402 Enroll in Extension Classes.

This year's registration for the extension classes at Washington University is 1402. It is expected that 2000 students will have enrolled before the end of the semester. The extension classes have shown an increase every year since they were instituted in 1915. In that year only 250 students were enrolled.

ANNIVERSARY OF ROCK ISLAND CROSSING RIVER TO BE OBSERVED

First Train of That Railroad Came Across Mississippi 70 Years Ago Next Tuesday.

The seventieth anniversary of the operation of the first railroad train across the Mississippi by the Rock Island lines will be celebrated Tuesday with the unveiling of a monument and the planting of a memorial tree in honor of the late Edward J. O'Neill, formerly general agent of the system in St. Louis, in the Carrie avenue railroad yards.

O'Neill was a member of the House of Delegates in St. Louis.

Edgar Gengenbach, assistant general secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, will preside, and will unveil the monument.

The observation here of the anniversary will be in conjunction with celebrations in other cities entered by the Rock Island lines.

COTTON FUTURES UP IN WEEK-END TRADE

Bullish Reports From Goods Trade Factor in Market During Week.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—There was a considerable realizing and some scattered Southern selling in the cotton market at the opening today. This caused irregularity, first prices being five points lower to six points higher, but the offerings were absorbed by fresh trade or commission houses buying and the market soon showed net advances of 14 to 16 points, with December selling at 21.75c and January 21.60c.

The week-end figures were commented upon as moderately bearish and the near-Eastern news as showing no improvement, but these features seemed to be offset by bullish reports from the goods trade and reports that offerings of new crop cotton were being rapidly absorbed.

After selling at 21.83c on the early advance, December eased off, closing at 21.62c, and other months showed similar reactions under realizing for the week-end. The closing was easy at a net advance of 1 to 10 points.

Reports that some Southern mills were booked so far ahead that orders for spring delivery had been refused, furnished an indication, those argued, of what is going on in the dry goods section. Operations continued to expand, trading broadening out to include virtually all interests identified with the cotton trade. Professionals, the cotton trade itself, and general speculation have all entered the market on an increasing scale, producing a buying power that has absorbed all available cotton, both spots and contracts on a rising tide of value.

In three days prices have risen over a cent a pound, which is decided, considering this is still the marketing season when cotton is most plentiful. Conservative estimates place the amount of contracts taken from the New York market by trade interests in excess of 100,000 bales daily this week, with no sign that mill demand has been supplied.

Profit-taking, natural after a steady four days' rise, caused a 15 to 25 point setback at the close. December closed 21.62, March 21.60c.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Spot cotton quiet; middling, steady, 21.55c.

LEAGUE OPPOSED TO REED OUT FOR 100,000 MEMBERS

W. D. Vandiver Launches Move to Enroll Democrats Who Will Not Vote for Re-election of Senator.

HEADQUARTERS HERE AT PLANTERS HOTEL

Former Congressman Appeals to Other Democrats to Aid in Defeating "Chief Bolter and Wrecker" of Party.

Efforts to enlist the aid of 100,000 Missouri men and women in a movement to defeat Senator James A. Reed, Democratic nominee to succeed himself, will be launched this week by the League of Loyal Democrats of Missouri, an organization just perfected.

This announcement was made yesterday by its acting president, W. D. Vandiver of Columbia, former Congressman and Assistant Treasurer of the United States, in charge of the Federal Subtreasury here during the second Wilson administration, who on Oct. 3 issued a statement declaring that he is opposed to the election of Reed and would endeavor to bring about his defeat.

Headquarters for the League of Loyal Democrats have been established in Room 501 Planters Hotel. In addition to Vandiver the officers are Col. Francis M. Curlee, vice president; W. S. Brotherton, secretary, and Miss Mary Semple Scott, chairman of the women's division.

Organizations to Combine.

In a statement containing the announcement Vandiver declares that the three organizations which are combining in this movement are "practically assured" within the next 10 days of a membership of 3000 Democrats who will actively work against Reed.

Vandiver begins the statement issued yesterday with the question: "Is James A. Reed, the chief bolter and wrecker of our party, to be reelected to the Senate and the other candidates on the State ticket defeated?" and then adds: "If nothing is done, this result is liable to happen."

"How much better it would be to elect the others and let Reed be defeated," Vandiver continues. "I am for the latter course. His friends say he will be elected because he has enough wet Democrats, wet Republicans, pro-Germans, Ultra Irish and foreigners in Missouri to elect him!

"But I'm from Missouri; You've got to show me."

"There were 190,000 loyal Democrats in Missouri on the first day of August; there should be 250,000 now that the bolter's platform has been promulgated.

State Platform Criticised.

The state platform adopted at Excelsior Springs was dictated by the man who bolted the National platform two years ago and is still bolting it. His boast used to be that he 'never set up his own judgment against the combined judgment of his party as expressed in its platform.' But for the last five years he has been a continual bolter and his platform today is a repudiation of the national platform.

"Why then should Democrats feel any obligation to support him simply because by fradulent means his name is placed at the head of the Democratic ticket?

"Three outstanding facts which cannot be denied must be kept in mind.

"1: That during the war when our soldiers were baring their breasts to German bullets and the very life of the Republic was at stake, Senator Reed's conduct and utterances gave more encouragement to the enemies of our country than if he had joined the Kaiser's army and faced our boys on the battle field.

"This is so well remembered and appreciated that every pro-German in Missouri is now supporting him.

Course of Last Five Years.

"2. His course for the past five years or more, his conduct and utterances, have given more encouragement to the political enemies of the Democratic party than if he had joined the Republican party and leveled his guns against us from the front, instead of from within our rans, and for this service he is now being rewarded by the support of numbers of Republicans who have no idea of supporting any other Democrat on the ticket.

"3. He is not the nominee of a majority of the Democrats of the State, but only of a minority, aided by an invasion of Republicans into our premises on primary day.

"Hence, no Democrat should feel bound to support this chief bolter."

Vandiver declared that two purposes are actuating the persons who are striving to bring about the defeat of Reed. They are:

"First: To keep alive the spirit of true democracy as expressed in the national platform of the party and as exemplified in the achievements and noble endeavors of Woodrow Wilson, who has given the world the loftiest ideals of practical statesmanship ever proposed for the consideration of mankind.

Democrats Urged to Vote.

"Second: To urge all true Democrats not to stay at home on election day because they have no true Democrat to vote for as a candidate for United States Senator, but to go to the polls and vote for our State, district and county candidates who are loyal Democrats in every way worthy of support, and then as to the senatorship, we urge them to vote according to their convictions.

"We shall ask 50,000 men and 50,000 women to join this movement.

"You are requested to send in the names of good people in your cou ty who will co-operate."

Reed's Speaking Dates for Th Week as Announced by Committe

Mechanically it is far finer. It has the famous new Super-Six motor which has created such a sensation. It gives a heretofore unknown smoothness that adds to the charm of motoring.

The Coach body is wonderfully well built. Only good, lasting materials are used. For your next car—consider the Coach.

Virtue Must Triumph If It Costs Murder, Is "Bad Man's" Tenet

Holbrook Blinn Plays Philanthropic Cutthroat in Satirical Comedy—H. B. Warner Stars in "Bull Dog Drummond."

TWO flamboyant specimens of the genus "hombre malo" will do battle and scatter sudden death in the theaters this week. One is Pancho Lopez, Mexican Robin Hood, virtuoso of pillage, homicide and philanthropy, who serves as hero for Porter Emerson Browne's satirical comedy, "The Bad Man." The other is Capt. Hugh Drummond, adventurer and paladin, in "Bull Dog Drummond," which its author, Sir Gerald du Maurier—son of Trilby's creator—has described as an example of "thick-ear drama" Both plays open tonight, "The Bad Man" at the Shubert-Jefferson and "Bull Dog Drummond" at the American. The title role of the former is taken by Holbrook Blinn, and of the latter by H. B. Warner.

The Woodward Players, at the Garrick, begin their third week of popular-priced stock, at today's matinee, with Allan Langdon Martin's romantic play, "Smilin' Through," in which the fair and lachrymose Jane Cowl once wept her way across the continent. Allen Rogers and Leonora Allen, singers, have headline position on the new bill at the Orpheum. The "Shubert Unit" for the week, at the Empress, is entitled "Carnival of Fun," and features Jack Reid, the name familiar to followers of burlesque.

The Shubert-Jefferson announces "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," with Arthur Byron, for next week, beginning Sunday night, and the American promises Helen Hayes in "To the Ladies" as its next offering. The latter is to be followed by Fritz Leiber in Shakspearean drama, and a return engagement of Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln," with Frank McGlynn. Leiber will undertake "Macbeth," "Hamlet," "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Merchant of Venice," "Othello," "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet."

Scenes on Mexican Border.

THE scenes of "The Bad Man," one of the palpable hits of the 1920-21 season, are laid on the Mexican border. According to the story, an upstanding young American, Gil Jones, returns to his Arizona ranch after the war to find that all his cattle have been stolen. He must listen to the whining reproaches of an invalid uncle from Bangor, Me., who has sunk $10,000 in the ranch, and in addition finds himself caught between two swindlers, a Wall street operator and a Western land grabber, who intrigue to defraud him of his property in the belief that it is valuable oil land. Jones was formerly enamored of the Wall street man's wife, who is desperately unhappy in a loveless marriage.

But Jones once saved the life of Pancho Lopez when the latter was a poor peon, and before a career of villainy had raised him to the dignity of a bandit. Lopez arrives to plunder the ranch, but recognizes his benefactor, and sets about righting his affairs. He accomplishes justice by means of a little murder, a bank robbery and an assortment of misdemeanors.

Behind the lively action runs a constant current of satire against the injustice of American laws and many of our conventions. Blinn has been praised as providing a most diverting and picturesque portrait of the Mexican desperado and philosopher, of whom Pancho Villa is said to have been the original. In the supporting cast are Sidney Mason, Thomas Shearer, Marcia Byron, Richard Gordon, John Harrington, Wilson Reynolds, Olga Eide, Goldwin Patten, Anthony Bassett, Walter Bellinger, Frank Bixby, Charles A. Sellon and Stanley Grand.

Drummond Also War Veteran.

THE hero of "Bull Dog Drummond," also a war veteran, finds that the piping times of peace serve only to awaken a craving for fresh adventure, and inserts an advertisement to that effect in the London Times. As a result, he comes to grips with a gang of thieves and blackmailers, who have captured and drugged an American millionaire whose diamonds they covet. He is held a prisoner at the lair of the gang, ostensibly a nursing home at Godalming.

There are raids back and forth and the Yankee magnate is captured and recaptured, until finally, in two tremendous tussles, the hero overcomes the band's leaders, with the aid of a charming heroine, who wins the reward of a happy ending. Supporting H. B. Warner is a company including C. H. Crocker-King, Geoffrey Miller, Harry Green, Harry Plimmer, George Sydenham, William McNeil, Mary Robson, Marjorie Burgess, Gladys Burgess and others.

On the Orpheum program, in addition to the headliners, are Thomas Duggan and Babette Raymond in a humorous sketch, 'An Ace in the Hole"; Harry Breen, song writer, who improvises both words and melodies; Harry Kahn, who does six different things at the same time; Ed and May Ernie, dancers; and Bob Anderson with his polo pony.

In addition to Jack Reid, the Empress bill will present the DeWolf Sisters, dancers; Alfred Attell, who played the "dog" in "Buster Brown" and now appears as an animal imitator; Miss Betty Weber, singer; Eddie Clark and Joseph Verdi, in "A Riot of Nonsense"; the Romas troupe of acrobats, Bell and Jansen and the Clemens Belling Co. in a comedy skit. Gertrude Hoffman and her company of dancers will be seen at the Empress next week.

THE Rialto's offering for the first half of the week will feature Al Moore's jazz band, with Ethel Parker and a company in a song and dance sketch; Billy Zeck and Gladys Randolph in a comedy, "Grooming the Groom," and Sealo, an educated phocid. Beginning Thursday, the new bill will be headed by a condensed version of the popular comedy, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath."

The Grand's program includes Elsie McGarry and Sam Gilder, 82-year-old minstrel, in "The Cotton Pickers"; Bobby Adams, in "The Four of Me"; the Six Hassans, John Neff, Hubert Dyer, Mowatt and Mullen, Chapman and Ring, and Fox and Mack.

Opera by English Lad of 15 Is Performed

LONDON, Oct. 7.

AN operatic version of "The Merchant of Venice," which recently had a week's run at the Grand Theater in Brighton, had aroused considerable interest beforehand. The composer is the son of Sir Thomas Beecham, whose lavish efforts in the cause of English opera would, it was felt, be beautifully rewarded if his son should prove the genius which that struggling cause desires.

Adrian Beecham is still sufficiently young to make the fact of his writing an opera at all something remarkable. As a matter of fact, "The Merchant of Venice" was written several years ago. He was then about the same age that Mozart was when he wrote "La Finta Semplice." It would have been a clever critic

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

"Nobody's Money," an entertaining comedy adapted from the play by William Le Baron, will be Wallace Reid's next Paramount star picture.

Antonio Moreno has been signed by Paramount to appear as leading man for Gloria Swanson in her next picture, "My American Wife," adapted from an original story by Hector Turnbull. Moreno's handsome Spanish type is considered ideally suited for this picture, as all of the characters are Argentenians. Other members of the cast will be Joseph Swickard, Erie Mayne, Eugene Corey, Eileen Pringle, F. R. Butler, Jacques d'Auray, Loyal Underwood, Walter Long, Nadeen Paul and some not yet chosen.

In "The Cowboy and the Lady," a Paramount picture co-starring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore, the latter plays the role of the "Dude Rancher." He runs his ranch in Wyoming on a highly efficient basis—so far as office equipment is concerned. He can tell just how much the ranch is losing each month. Among his innovations are cowpunchers mounted on motor cycles.

In a banquet scene in the court of King James I of England in "To Have and to Hold" several historic personages have been reproduced. These are William Shakspeare, Ben Jonson and the Duke of Buckingham.

Three members of the cast of Cecil B. de Mille's recently completed production of "Manslaughter" will again appear together in Thomas Meighan's newest Paramount pic-

"Kindred of the Dust," "A Fool There Was," "Bond Boy," on View

"The Ghost Breaker" and "The Storm" Also Among Leading Local Features.

THE film version of Peter B. Kyne's story, "Kindred of the Dust," is the week's offering at the New Grand Central Theater. A feature also is another stage appearance of Gene Rodemich and his record orchestra, assisted by a piano trio composed of Rodemich, David Silverman and Allister Wylie.

"Kindred of the Dust" is a story of class differences and snobbery; of a girl who is falsely accused of wrongdoing, and of a boy's struggle between filial affection and his love for the girl. One of the picture's thrillers is a scene in which a big log splits a motorboat in two and sends it to the bottom of a river.

Lionel Belmore is cast as the stern father. Ralph Graves is the son and Miriam Cooper the heroine.

Richard Barthelmess, in his latest production, "The Bond Boy," is the principal attraction at the West End Lyric and Capitol. Mary Thurman and Mary Alden have leading supporting roles.

This is the story of a boy who is "bound out" to a farmer and who runs headlong into a tragedy because of his effort to save the farmer's wife from the consequences of her own folly. The farmer is killed under circumstances which cause suspicion to fall on the boy. To shield the woman the boy withholds the facts which would establish his innocence.

William Fox's 1922 version of "A Fool There Was" has headline honors at the Liberty. Many movie fans will recall that in its earlier form this picture started Theda Bara on her career as a screen vamp. In the new production Estelle has the seductive role made famous by the hectic Theda. Lewis Stone plays the part of the husband, who deserts his wife for an adventuress.

In preliminary announcements Fox said the picture had been brought up to date to conform with the new 1922 standards of vamping which call for mental rather than physical attractiveness on the woman's part.

Yerkes' Jazz Band, an organization of 11 singing and playing musicians known to talking machine owners, is sharing honors with Walter Hiers, Wallace Reid and Lila Lee, who appear in "The Ghost Breaker" at the Missouri Theater this week. In addition there is an old-time Sennett comedy, "Salome vs. Shenandoah."

"The Ghost Breaker" is a melodrama with modern trimmings. There is a Spanish castle in Aragon, which is peopled with ghosts, a lovely Spanish girl (Lila Lee) who is much annoyed by the ghostly visitants; a young and red-blooded hero, played by Reid, who bumps into a feud on a visit to Kentucky, just because he happens to be a remote branch of the Jarvis family; a funny colored servant, Rusty Snow, which introduces Walter Hiers as a black face artist; feud scenes, a fight in an elevator of a New York hotel and a chase after a liner.

"The Storm," a motion picture version of a play of the same name, is the featured attraction at the Delmonte. House Peters has the leading role. In the cast also are Virginia Valli, Matt Moore and Joseph Swickard. This is in the main a story of the great Northwest. The big outdoors, two men and a girl form the inevitable triangle here. One of the men is David Stewart, a sated New Yorker who goes into the open to escape the complicated social life of the city. The other is a crude son of the North who follows his rough primal instincts. The Northwest mounted police play no small part in the picture. The rescue of the girl in a forest fire is one of the thrilling episodes.

"R. U. R." to Open Theater Guild's New Season

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.

THE fifth season of the Theater Guild will open Monday night at the Garrick with a fantastic melodrama, "R. U. R.," by Karel Capek, a Czecho-Slovakian playwright. The translation is by Paul Selver, and the direction is in the hands of Philip Moeller and Agnes Morgan. The scenery has been designed by Lee Simonson. In the cast are Basil Sydney, Kathleen MacDonell, Henry Travers, Louis Calvert, Helen Westley, William Devereaux and John Rutherford.

Tuesday evening is to witness two openings—"Queen of Hearts," a musical play, starring Nora Bayes; and "The Faithful Heart," Monckton Hoffe's latest play. The former will be presented at the George M. Cohan Theater, and among the principals will be Edna Hibbard, Florence Mor-

Famous London Cafe Is to Be Closed

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The Cafe Royal, London's ancient and most famous Bohemian resort, soon is to disappear. It is planned to tear it down and erect in its place a modern building of luxurious appointments.

The announcement has brought forth a flood of protests. For more than 40 years the establishment has been the center of the cosmopolitan life of the city. The international fame of the Cafe Royal brought a fortune to its owner, Daniel Nicolas de Nicol.

LATE WELSH MINERS' LEADER LEFT ESTATE OF ABOUT $150,000

Labor Circles Are Surprised, Some Believing It Constituted Him a Capitalist.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Labor circles are surprised by the revelation that the late William Abraham, Welsh miners' leader, who was commonly called Mabon, left an estate of more than 30,000 pounds. There is much discussion in the labor papers as to whether this does not constitute him a capitalist, and his friends are explaining how he was able to accumulate such a large estate.

While Abraham for some years was a member of Parliament, the salary from this office amounted to only 400 pounds, but he received a generous salary as president of the Welsh miners' federation. The bulk of this money is supposed to have been invested in industrial and insurance companies, from one of which he derived an income as a director.

WESTERN PAINTINGS ARE AN EXHIBITION FEATURE

Taos Group of Artists Represented in Display at the City Art Museum.

A significant section of the annual exhibition of paintings which is on view at the City Art Museum in Forest Park, is the group of canvasses of the Far West. In these, American painting finds, so far as subject is concerned, its most distinctly national expression. Though it can scarcely be said that a national style has been developed in these paintings, it is unquestionable that the recognition of the artistic possibilities of local subjects is the foundation upon which a vital nationalistic art must rest.

The little group of artists which has settled at Taos, N. M., with the avowed purpose of painting the West and its aboriginal inhabitants in their original state, is represented in the exhibition this year by four important examples. Among these, Ernest L. Blumenschein's striking composition, "Superstition," has been singled out for much favorable comment because of its symbolic interpretation of the spiritual beliefs of the Indian. The central feature of the composition is the figure of an Indian, gazing abstractly out of the picture, his fixed countenance portraying admirably the stolid characteristics of his race. The background is filled with a confused pattern of symbolic import, wherein a crucifix mingles with swastikas and other native devices, in rich, barbaric color.

In direct contrast with this mystic symbolism is Walter Ufer's "Me and Him," a portrayal of the Indian which aims at a literal transcription of nature in a broad sense—so far as such an effect may be realized in art. Two Indians are shown, halting for a moment at tier labor in the fields beneath the brilliant, cloud-flecked sky of the Southwest. Gone are all the legendary trappings, the feathers and colorful robes, and in their places are simple cotton garments and agricultural implements. Racial characteristics are, however, unmistakably defined with vigorous modeling and incisive drawing. The artist has also rendered well the brilliant, dazzling sunlight of the region, with fine understanding of its effect upon flesh tints.

Victor Higgins shows a landscape called "Taos Mountains," which is distinguished by decorative interpretation of an interesting subject. In the foreground is a narrow valley, bathed in clear atmosphere and colorful with autumnal foliage. Tree forms are sufficiently conventionalized to impart a piquantly unreal effect. In the distance rise stately blue mountains, crag on crag, their configurations sharply defined by shadows of deeper blue. The painting has a broad and certain grasp of the fundamental structure of its subject, which elevates it far above the superficially realistic.

"Taos Cottonwoods," by Oscar E. Berninghaus of St. Louis, is an interpretative rendition of the brilliant color effects produced by the clear, dry atmosphere of New Mexico. A group of picturesque farm buildings is sheltered by stately cottonwoods, through which are glimpses of distant purple and turquoise hills beneath a sky of vibrant blue.

"Navajo Desert, Arizona."

Albert L. Groll, celebrated for his portrayal of the American desert, is represented in the current exhibition by a typical production, "Navajo Desert, Arizona." Great masses of clouds cast deep purple shadows across a barren, undulating plain, which loses itself in distant hills. The low horizon and dim blue of the distance given an effect of limitless space, which is accentuated by the tiny pioneer's wagon in the middle portion of the composition. "El Capitan," by George Townsend Cole, presents the sinister aspects of the desert rather than the color. Two somber-toned mountain peaks rise above the general level of the surrounding desert, their outlines sharply silhouetted against the sky. Foreground and middle distance are gently roiling plains, barren except for sparse clumps of desert vegetation and of forbidding aspect.

Arthur J. E. Powell's "A Mountain Trail, Glacier National Park," is a poetic rendition of the majestic outlines and prismatic color of a great mountain range. The painting is constructed in three well-defined planes: a bit of foreground upon which sparse grass struggles for a hold; beyond this an abrupt bank of mountain precipices, its crevasses lined with snow; and towering above this a yet more distant mountain range in faintly iridescent purples and violets. The annual American exhibition of which these paintings are a part will remain at the museum until Oct. 25.

REGAINS MENTAL FACULTIES AND FINDS DAUGHTERS LONG LOST

By the Associated Press.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Oct. 7.—A search begun at the instance of a recovered patient of the State Hospital for Insane here has led to her reunion with two daughters who had believed her dead.

Twenty-five years ago a young mother, suffering from mental breakdown, was brought to the hospital from an Illinois home. Two small daughters were left in the care of her husband. The husband moved to Iowa, where he placed the girls in the home of a friend. He disappeared. The daughters were told the mother was dead. But the mother's memory of her little girls survived, a faint flame flickering through the mental darkness.

Two years ago her mind was restored. In the buried years all trace of the girls had been lost.

Under the guidance of Supt. E. L. Hill of the hospital, an investigation was begun. Finally, from old records at the hospital, a friend of the woman was discovered. This was the opening wedge that finally led to the discovery that the daughters lived in Iowa. They had married. In tears and embraces the long separation was ended and the mother now is living with her daughters.

Danes Not to Quit Free Trade Policy.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 15.—The Danish Government has announced that it has no intention of departing from the national policy of free trade. Consequently it is expected to oppose some pending tariff bills. A tariff, the Government feels, would retard an early fall in the price of foodstuffs.

NOBEL PRIZE WINNER TO LECTURE IN CITY

Otologist in Swedish University Will Give Talks and Clinics at Barnes Hospital.

Dr. Robert Barany, professor of otology of the University of Upsala, of Upsala, Sweden, and winner of the Noble prize in medicine in 1914, will give a two weeks' course of lectures and clinics here for eye and ear specialists and neurologists, beginning tomorrow. The course will be given in the department of otology at Barnes Hospital.

Dr. Barany was guest of honor of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otology which held its annual meeting in Minneapolis last month. He has been conducting a course, similar to the one he will give here, in Minneapolis and St. Paul for the last two weeks, and will conduct courses in several other cities before returning to Sweden, Feb. 1.

He was awarded the Noble prize in 1914 for advancing new physiological principles on the function of the internal ear, which contains the vestibular nerves. By the exhibition of these principles, it is possible to determine whether the static sense (the power of equilibrium located in the internal ear) is normal or diseased. His method of examination also makes possible the localization of various types of tumors and lesions of the brain.

Discoveries Used in War.

The advancement of these new physiological principles of Dr. Barany played an important part in the World War, as aviators of all armies had to undergo tests of the vestibular nerves to determine their qualification, in this respect, for flying. These tests were sufficient to disqualify applicants, as it made possible the discovery of dizziness when it existed. The power of balance was most essential to aviators and the various examinations to determine the fitness of applicants on this point were largely due to the discoveries of Dr. Barany.

By means of the tests established by Dr. Barany, it is possible to determine whether a part of the auditory nerve is functioning. In the advanced methods of examining congenitally deaf children, these tests are made chiefly by use of the revolving chair.

The discoveries of Dr. Barany were made while he was a professor of the Politzer School of Otology, a part of the University of Vienna, Austria. He was educated there and served as a medical officer in the Austrian army during the World War. While in the service, he was captured by the Russians and held prisoner. He has been at Upsala for several years.

Subjects for Discussion.

His work here will consist of a presentation of his work on the physiology of the labyrinth, functional tests of the ear, the localization of brain lesions, special operative work on the cadaver and an examination of the unusual cases in this field. He will be the guest of the St. Louis Medical Society on the evening of Oct. 17, and will deliver an address on vertigo (dizziness). He will stay at the Buckingham Hotel.

Members of the local committee in charge of his visit here are Dr. Eugene T. Senseney, Dr. Louis K. Guggenheim, Dr. Harry W. Lyman and Dr. Max A. Goldstein.

According to his present plans, other cities which Dr. Barany will visit are Chicago, Denver, Los Angeles, Houston, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Boston and New York.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY BRANCH TO MEET IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Women From Four States to Take Part in Gathering at First M. E. Church, Oct. 10 to 12.

A missionary conference will be held by the Northwestern Branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Oct. 10-12 at the First M. E. Church, Thirteenth street and Summit avenue, East St. Louis. A registration of 1000 delegates is expected from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, the four states included in the Northwestern Branch.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, president of the National Woman's Foreign Missionary Society; Mrs. F. Lindsey of Minneapolis; Bishop Fred B. Fisher of Calcutta, Ind., and several foreign field missionaries.

Bishop Fisher will address a group of Methodist laymen in St. Louis Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. at the Missouri Athletic Association. He will discuss the needs in the foreign missionary field and the work there of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE TODAY AT SALEM EVANGELICAL CHURCH

Congregation Was Formed 37 Years Ago—Bazar to Be Held Wednesday and Thursday.

The Salem Evangelicl Church, Marcus and Margaretta avenues, is celebrating its thirty-seventh anniversary today with a special German service at 9:45 a. m., followed by regular Sunday morning devotions at 10:30. A social hour will be held by the Sunday school in the afternoon and evening services will be under the auspices of the Salem Church Choral Society.

Salem Church was organized at the home of Frank Grafemann, 4870 Natural Bridge avenue, by a group of men of whom only a few are living. The first pastor was the Rev. Mr. Fink, who several years later was succeeded by the Rev. H. Walz. The latter was pastor for 20 years. The present pastor is the Rev. Paul Langhorst.

For years services were held in a small frame building, which afterward served as a school house. About 25 years ago was built the brick and stone edifice, which the congregation now is planning to renovate and enlarge.

On Wednesday and Thursday of this week the congregation will hold its anniversary bazar.

CIVIL SERVICE FACTORY TESTS

Oral Examinations Decided On for Orthopedic Device Makers.

In anticipation of the establishment of an orthopedic device factory in St. Louis by the United States War Veterans' Bureau, plans for which have not yet reached a definite stage, the Civil Service Bureau announces that it will hold competitive examinations for mechanics experienced in the making of metal, leather and elastic appliances for defective feet and limbs.

The examination will be based on the applicant's physical ability, training and experience. A written or scholastic test will not be required. Application blanks may be had at the office of the local board of civil service examiners in the old Customs House, Third and Olive streets, or at any postoffice in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and the southern half of Illinois.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

"R. U. R." TO OPEN THEATER GUILD'S NEW SEASON

rison, Arthur Uttry and Georgia Brown. As authors are named the following roster: Frank Mandel, Oscar Hammerstein II, Sydney Mitchell, Lewis Gensler and Dudley Wilkinson. "The Faithful Heart" will be given at the Broadhurst, with Tom Nesbitt, Flora Sheffield, Daisy Markham and Edward Poland in the company.

Miss Barrymore to Play Rosalind.

FOLLOWING Hauptmann's "Rose Bernd," Miss Ethel Barrymore is to portray Rosalind in "As You Like It" in her season of repertory at the Longacre, and then do a Greek play. McKay Morris will play Orlando. * * * John Barrymore's "Hamlet" will appear at the Broadhurst Theater in about three weeks, it now seems assured. * * * Alla Nazimova is said to have refused $2000 a week to play in "Mon Homme," one of those thrilling Apache things, by Andre Picard, the French playwright, who is responsible for Lenore Ulric's tantrums in "Kiki."

Fay Bainter's new play is "The Painted Lady," by Monckton Hoffe, English author of "The Faithful Heart. * * * Arthur Hammerstein has entered into an eight-year contract with Frank Tinney, under which the comedian will appear in a new girl-and-music show each year, to remain in New York only 10 weeks, and then tour the country.

There are only three characters in "Aimer," which Grace George is rehearsing. "The First Fifty Years," by Henry Myers, had but two roles; and now, it is said, Myers has written a play with only one character—a woman, incidentally. There is a good chance that it will be produced soon.

Origin of "Rose Bernd."

LULWIG LEWISHON, who translated "Rose Bernd," reveals that while acting as a juror in Silesia Gerhart Hauptmann found the theme of the play. A peasant girl was brought before the court for trial, and the dramatist succeeded in obtaining her acquittal. Hauptmann's protagonists, says Lewisohn, are chosen from those whom a malevolent world defeats, and adds: "None in the long list is more attractive than Rose Bernd—a woman framed for love and work and motherhood whose destruction condemns her destroyers, and whose fate is Hauptmann's judgment upon a society in which such things can be."

Sir Arthur Pinero's latest play, The Enchanted Cottage," has had its first American production at the Opera House of Providence, R. I. It is said to show the influence of Barrie. * * * John Alden Carpenter's jazz-pantomime, "Krazy Kat," has at last found a desirable haven in the "Greenwich Village Follies" * * * Christopher Morley, the paragrapher, is writing a play about a haunted bookshop. * * * It is said that the long-heralded and much deferred comedy, with Whistler for principal character, is nearing production. * * * Marjorie Rambeau has won the prize of the chief part in Bataille's play, "The Wedding March," now on its way to the American stage. * * * Marcus Loew, also, is trying out the unit system on his vaudeville circuit.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

ture, "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," which Alfred Green directed at the Lasky studio and on Catalina Island. They are Thomas Meighan, Leatrice Joy and John Miltern. Other members of the cast are Theodore Roberts, Albert Roscoe, June Elvidge, Alec Francis, Laurance Wheat, Eva Novak, Robert Brower and Edward Patrick.

In retaking a scene for Douglas Fairbanks in "Robin Hood," the chief camera man and his assistant had to go to Abalone Point, near Balboa, Cal. They got ashore safely and took the scenes from the top of the cliff, 200 feet high. In going back to the launch they were nearly drowned in a wind-lashed surf. For five hours they struggled against the waves and at times the small boat threatened to founder. At last they were able to signal their launch, which finally got to them and rescued them. In the struggle they lost $3000 worth of camera equipment and all the film they had shot.

Helen Jerome Eddy was born in New York City, but was taken from the city when an infant. She really saw New York for the first time when she came from the coast to see her first starring vehicle shown on Broadway.

"Vanity Fair," the novel without a hero, will soon be seen on the screen.

Douglas Fairbanks' first picture was "The Lamb," in which he had also appeared on the stage. This picture was made for Triangle.

Bebe Daniels is 5 feet 5 inches tall and tips the scale at 120 pounds.

Charles Ray was born in Jacksonville, Ill. He began his movie career as an extra. His home is at Beverly Hills, Cal.

Mary Pickford's pet in her new version of "Tess of the Storm Country" is a tame crow, which appears with the star in many of the scenes. In the original picture a rabbit was Mary's pet.

Ray Carroll, Hollywood's only girl picture producer, has made her chum, Helen Jerome Eddy, the star of "Love's Coming of Age," her first production. Miss Carroll studied at the University of California. Then she turned to newspaper and advertising work. Her interest in the movies led her to study them to the last detail. Now she has begun to produce independently. Miss Carroll is a New Yorker by birth, but has spent most of her life in California.

Salesmanship Author on Program.

Prof. Paul Wesley Ivey, instructor in advertising and selling at the University of Nebraska, will address the Sales Managers' Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce at luncheon tomorrow, in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium on "Increasing Sales in a Buyers' Market." He is author of two books on salesmanship.

OPERA BY ENGLISH LAD OF 15 IS PERFORMED

who could have foreseen the composer of "Don Giovanni" in that infant effort. So it would be rash to attempt to foretell Adrian Beecham's future as a composer from this work. Here, at any rate, is a boy who takes a play of Shakspeare and sets the greater part of it to music, and, moreover, shows considerable discretion in choosing the portions for musical treatment and leaving subsidiary scenes in spoken dialogue.

The result is certainly very like an opera—one might say very like a lot of operas. There are high soprano songs for Portia. "Tell me where s fancy bred," with chorus, while Bassanio makes a choice of the caskets, may be called an effective number. There is a most elaborate coloratura scene for Portia.

Some Distinctive Touches.

THERE are love scenes and sinister scenes, particularly, of course, the latter associated with Shylock. There are fanfares and a march to introduce the court scene. Some of the tunes are really quite good; others are really quite bad. The worst, perhaps, is the march in the court scene.

One or two touches in Shylock's music are quite distinctive, the accompaniment to his first monologue, for instance. Portia's speech on "The Quality of Mercy" comes with a seriousness that is surprising. In short, a boy who can attack a big scene like this at the age of 15 may do something important before he is twice that age, supposing, that is, that he does not get persuaded into thinking he has set the Thames on fire because his youthful effort has reached public performance.

Clarence Raybould conducted, and the chief performances were those of Augustus Milner as Shylock, Miss Ena Reiss as Portia, Miss Desiree Ellinger as Jessica, and Gregory Stroud as Bassanio. On the opening night the opera was very kindly received by a fairly large audience.

AMERICAN TOURIST ARMY RETURNING FROM EUROPE

London Filled to Overflowing by Americans on Way to Embark on Steamers.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—October is marked by the homeward embarkation of the rear guard of the American tourist army of occupation which has been in Europe since early summer. In family squads, boarding school platoons and personally conducted companies they are trooping through England at a speed rivaling the recent Greek retreat through Anatalia.

For the last week they have filled London to overflowing, and it was with great difficulty that many obtained hotel accommodations. However, shiploads are being evacuated daily through Liverpool and Southampton, and within a month they will be scattered to the four corners of the United States.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture.

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

"Is It Fair"—
Busy Businessman?

"Cleanliness is next to Godliness."

Have you ever stopped to consider the amount of time devoted each day to cleaning and other household duties? If you are not availing yourself of labor-saving and time-saving electrical devices such as the electric cleaner, much of that time is wasted.

The development of the electric light and power industry has reduced your hours of labor and increased your hours of leisure. To the busy housewife it is indeed "A Fairy Godmother."

WHY is it that many men who are great advocates of efficiency and economy in business still thoughtlessly let their wives keep house the old backbreaking, heart-rending way of their grandmothers?

Why will they equip their offices and work-shops with time, labor and money saving devices, while neglecting the equipment of "The woman's work-shop?"

Surely it's a fifty-fifty problem! The job of home-making is no less a business than that of money-making.

If telephone, typewriter and adding machine increase industrial efficiency, so surely does the electric vacuum cleaner and other electrical labor-savers promote efficiency and economy in the work-shop of the home.

Many men of business whose tasks are made shorter and easier with modern devices should be the first to advocate similar efficiency in their households. They should encourage home labor-savers like the electric vacuum cleaner, which eliminate the youth-destroying drudgery of sweeping, beating and dusting, precisely for the same reason that they encourage labor-savers in their business.

The electric vacuum cleaner reduces carpet cleaning expense; keeps floor coverings looking like new; improves the efficiency of household help, makes the home more sanitary and hygienic, while relieving cleaning monotony.

Is it fair—Busy Businessman! Ask yourself what you have done to modernize your homekeeping equipment. Then consult with Her—and as the next step, have a demonstration of an electric vacuum cleaner in your home. Any dealer or your lighting company will arrange it for you.

The electric vacuum cleaner removes all dirt and dust without the labor of moving the furniture!

Retail Salesmen Wanted

A SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY FOR THE RIGHT MEN

The J. C. Penney Company needs capable salesmen for managers of its new stores. Would you like to be manager of a retail store in which you own a one-third interest—paid for out of the profits of the business?

If you are between 25 and 35 years old, have good habits, can give us the highest references, have had thorough experience in small or medium size department store, or are experienced in general store work in special lines—either clothing, shoes or dry goods,

We Want You

While of course we want to secure the very best experienced men, we are not expecting the superman. Experience has taught us that some of the greatest successes come from the ranks of average men. We believe that every man has within him "that something" which will lead him to success if properly guided and given the right opportunity. Limited experience, plus character, a lot of ambition, industry and a desire to achieve are the prime factors we are looking for in young men. Investigation will prove that this is an exceptional opportunity.

The investment of money is not necessary for your success with us. The financial backing of our company is ample. What we need are young, healthy, vigorous and capable salesmen who are determined to go to the top while they have youth and energy. We pay you while you are proving your ability.

Here is our proposition outlined briefly:

Men come to us first as retail salesmen in one of our stores. During the period of proving their ability they learn the greater possibilities of co-operative effort. Their progress depends upon their ability and effort. As our new stores are opened, the managers are selected from our sales force.

When a man makes a success of the management, he is sold a one-third interest in a new store and becomes its manager. He may afterward acquire a partnership in other stores which are the outgrowth of the one in which he first received a financial interest. To those who do not possess the capital to purchase a one-third interest in a new store, the money is loaned by the J. C. Penney Company and is repaid from subsequent profits of the store.

The J. C. Penney Company, started in 1902 with one store, now operates 371 stores in 29 states, selling dry goods, shoes, clothing, for men, women and children, and kindred goods. Our cash sales for 1921 amounted to $46,641,928. If you have had thorough experience in one or more of the above lines, it is to your interest to investigate our plan.

Write today for our booklet, "Your Opportunity," which fully explains our plan. Give your age and number of years' experience in our lines of merchandise in your first letter. We may arrange for a personal interview later. All correspondence strictly confidential.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL TO BE HELD NOV. 11-30

New Feature Will Be Campaign on High Seas to Enroll Persons on Ships.

The American Red Cross now has 4,000,000 members, according to a count made by national headquarters in Washington recently in preparation for the annual roll call which is to take place this year Nov. 11-30. Plans for the roll call and the campaign through which it will be conducted will be formed in Washington at the annual Red Cross convention, which will open tomorrow.

Starr Cadwallader, manager of the Southwestern Division, said that from reports sent in from the six Red Cross divisions the national office believes that a widespread revival of war-time enthusiasm for enrollment of members will be manifested this year.

The roll call, which will begin Armistice day and close with Thanksgiving day, will be notable this year in the marshaling of forecs throughout the world for a straightforward advance toward a set objective, rallying under the slogan, "Every American Everywhere a Member of the Red Cross." Under the leadership of John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, it is to be an intensive campaign from start to finish that the organization may maintain its strength to carry out the obligations laid upon it by its congressional charter.

Service to Disabled Veterans.

The direct appeal in behalf of a great sustaining membership is to be made for support of the service rendered by the American Red Cross in their homes and in hospitals to disabled ex-service men and their families, for which some $10,000,000 will be spent this year in work the Government is not authorized to do and for which no Government funds are available. This work is going on in virtually every community in the United States, through individual and sympathetic contact with the veterans by chapter workers.

Three other important duties are also emphasized in the Red Cross program of activities—public health nursing service for rural communities where adequate health facilities are lacking; preparedness for relief in disaster, famine, flood, epidemic; and the work of the Junior Red Cross at home and abroad in building up among children everywhere a spirit of mutual trust and confidence and the will for unselfish service. These are the outstanding Red Cross services in a program which includes widespread instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, in nutrition, general health conservation, first aid, water life-saving, production of Braille for the blind and the vast production of clothing for the needy at home and overseas by chapter volunteers.

Roll Call on the High Seas.

A new field of action in the approaching campaign will be a roll call on the high seas designed to register members on every ship afloat or in the ports of the world in which merchant marine companies and ship captains have been enlisted and the co-operation of the U. S. Navy Department obtained. The campaign in the insular possessions and in foreign chapters is also definitely planned with the view of increasing the enrollment.

In joining the Red Cross this year the new member, as well as the old member renewing his membership, will receive a certificate of membership designed to fit a purse or card case in addition to the white button bearing the symbolic cross in red. This certifiacte is the stub of a filing card adopted by the Red Cross for the first complete system of registration of members in all the 3300 active chapters. The cards containing names, addresses and classes of membership will be retained as permanent records by the chapters and as lists whereby it will be possible in the future for the Red Cross to keep in touch with its members for all emergencies, whether local, state or national.

Series of Posters Designed.

A series of posters impressively visualizing the work of the American Red Cross have been designed by well-known artists, and these will be displayed in every nook and corner of the country. A special poster has also been designed for use by the chapters overseas. A Red Cross worker's badge, new in this campaign, will identify the solicitors in the roll call.

The outlook for an increase in membership, it was unanimously agreed at a recent conference of Red Cross division managers at Washington, is extremely bright because of the prospect of improved commercial and industrial conditions everywhere and because the public at large is now better informed as to the peace-time obligations the Red Cross is carrying out.

The keynote among the chapters is organization for the most efficient enrollment ever recorded by the Red Cross, many of the chapters adopting the residential canvass plan by volunteer workers which in numerous cities last year proved succesful in adding thousands of members to the roll. The members of the American Red Cross are modern minute men and women, the greatest proved reserve for relief the world has ever seen. In the roll call task the chapters have pledged themselves to maintain this reserve at its highest possible level.

New Japanese Party Planned.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 10.—Acting on the advice of their leader, Ki Inukai, the Kokuminto or National party, which has a small but influential group in the Diet, has decided to dissolve. Thus there disappears a party that has existed 30 years, but Inukai, one of the most incisive speakers in the Japanese Parliament, although not in good health, does not intend to retire. His object in asking the Kokuminto to dissolve was to endeavor to form a larger party to include all the Nationalists and those members of the Seiyukai and Kenseikai, the two large parties, who are dissatisfied with the present policy of their leaders.

Did you ever see corners in a cup?

Who wants a square cup, full of unsanitary corners? Who wants an old-fashioned kitchen cabinet, when you can get the Kitchen Maid?

78 dirt-catching corners are eliminated by the rounded-corner construction and by the no-panel doors, as smooth as a table top, like the one shown here.

No one would be so foolish as to make any dish full of corners, where food would stick and you could scarcely wash it out. And yet there is only one kitchen cabinet that recognizes this idea. Only in the Kitchen Maid do you find the rounded inside corners—cuplike—and as easy to wipe as a bowl. This one piece of thoughtfulness in the Kitchen Maid shows you how carefully the whole cabinet has been built from the woman's standpoint. Miss Alice Bradley planned and diagrammed it for your use.

With all its superiority, it costs you no more. See it at your furniture dealer's.

THE SMOOTH SURFACE ROUND CORNER
KITCHEN CABINET

The Kitchen Maid is well built, of seasoned lumber, with many improvements in construction which make it easier to use and more lasting. Doors always fit—drawers do not stick—porcelain top can be extended or removed for convenience in using and cleaning.

A SURE WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

"OLD PARK STREET," edited by Dr. Robert Means Lawrence. A most delightfully written description of Old Park street, Boston, which has had an unusually interesting historical background. It also includes some reminiscences by a former resident which are of interest.

"NORTHWARD COURSE OF EMPIRE," by Vilhjalmur Stefansson. With great literary charm the author discusses the enterprises that have been undertaken, and the definite possibilities for industries and colonization in the far North.

"BIRD GOSSIP," by Harriet Wilbur. Observations of the author, a great lover of birds, who relates her many interesting adventures in studying them. Numerous colored illustrations add greatly to the text.

"TECHNICAL EXPOSITION," by Karl Owen Thompson, D. M. A textbook designed to cover the practical aspects of instruction in English for use in scientific, agricultural and engineering colleges.

"HOUSEHOLD ENGINEERING," by Mrs. Christine Frederick. Shows in a clear manner how housework can be made more stimulating, productive and constructive.

"PIECES OF HATE," by Heywood Broun. Delightful sketches on books, politics, the theater and sports, written in the author's inimitable spirit of humor and clear thought.

"THE STATE AND THE CHURCH," by John A. Ryan and F. Millar Morehouse. Gives the Catholic doctrine regarding the nature, authority and object of the state, and the relations that should exist between the state and the church.

"MOROCCO THAT WAS," by Walter B. Harris. Describes in detail life at the Moorish court and then devotes the later chapters to the changes that are taking place in Morocco now. There is also an interesting chapter on Raisuli, the Moorish bandit.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Five of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Geitz's Children at Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Geitz, who have lived in St. Louis for nearly 60 years, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at the home of their son, Will S. Geitz, 1826 Warren street, where they now live, last Wednesday. Relatives, including five of their six children, attended. A son, Dr. H. A. Geitz, is in Mexico. Geitz is 74 years old and his wife is 67. They were married in St. Louis in 1872. Mrs. Sophia Jenkins, only sister of Geitz, who was bridesmaid, was present at the celebration. Geitz was in the sewing machine and furniture business for many years, starting in 1877. He retired several years ago, however, and his sons and a brother now conduct the business.

TARIFF LAW HAS BROUGHT TO LIGHT ALL OLD SHAMS TO TRICK FARMER, BRYAN WRITES

Fight of Administration Against Appointment of Farmer on Reserve Board Another Factor in Coming Campaign.

Following is the first of a series of articles written for the Post-Dispatch by William Jennings Bryan dealing with present political campaign issues. Other articles of the series will appear in the Post-Dispatch from time to time until the election.

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

IN these chaotic times it is impossible to look far ahead—even a day, and therefore it is not safe to predict as to what issue will be paramount on the 7th day of next November. The tariff question has in many campaigns occupied the foremost place, but for several reasons this will not be true this year. The strikes at home and the political situation abroad may at any time precipitate a crisis that will temporarily crowd out other questions. Then, too, we have the bonus bill and the profiteer to deal with, not to speak of law enforcement, the ship subsidy and other issues.

But the tariff has become of secondary importance for another reason, viz., because the amount collected from imported duties is relatively smaller than it was formerly. The sum now raised by a tax on incomes and upon corporations is so large that it overshadows import duties.

"Public Noot Frightened."

A third reason is to be found in the fact that the country prospered so greatly under low tariff, that the beneficiaries of protection are no longer able to frighten with the threat of a panic. For a generation, the threat of a panic has been used as a club to beat the country into submission to the exploiters. Working men were afraid that they would lose their jobs if the tariff was lowered and farmers were afraid they would lose their markets. It seems incredible that so many people could have been deceived by the literature circulated by those who use the taxing power for their own private advantage, but the fat-frying went on campaign after campaign until actual experiences proved to the country that prosperity does not depend upon high tariff rates.

The discussion of the tariff bill in the present Congress revealed such a difference of opinion among Republicans, as they fought over the various schedules, that the Democrats did not have to do much speaking—they could not have framed a more severe indictment than some of the Republicans made against the more outrageous rates. The extravagance of the demands made by the tariff barons was probably due to the fact that they recognized that this Congress is giving them the last chance that they will likely have for many years. "Work for the night is coming," seems to have been the battle hymn of those peculiarly interested in the high tariff rates.

Attempt to Trick the Farmers.

The tariff bill has brought out and polished up nearly all the old shams and humbugs that have been employed in years past. The home market argument has been used wherever the protectionists could find any voters still willing to listen to it, and the attempt is still being made to tole the farmer into the protectionists' camp by a tariff on agricultural products, although they ought to know that the farmers as a whole will pay $10 because of protection on manufactured products, where they collect $1 because of a tariff on agricultural products.

The old and absurd claim that the "foreigner pays the tariff" cannot well be used at this time, because prices have already been advanced on domestic articles in anticipation of the tariff on foreign imports.

But while the Democratic candidates will profit politically by the greed of the protected interests, shown by the tariff rates in the new law, it will not make as many Democratic votes as the revenue law passed last year. An eminent French economist, Bastist, said that the chief virtue of indirect taxation was that "under it the Government could get the most feathers off the goose with the least squawking."

Plain Issue for Democrats.

Direct taxation does its work openly; if the law is unjust, the injustice cannot be concealed as it can in a tariff law. For this reason, the provisions of the revenue law have aroused a nation-wide protest, which, while strongest among the farmers, is powerful among a large percentage of the people. There is a sense of justice which can always be appealed to when the issues are clearly understood; the Democrats are fortunate this year in having an issue of universal interest which can be easily understood by everyone.

When the Ways and Means Committee presented the revenue bill to the House it contained, among other vicious provisions, two that deserve the condemnation of all who favor justice in taxation. The first provision repealed the tax on excess profits, giving an estimated benefit of $450,000,000 a year, according to the tax returns of last year, to the profiteers, viz., to those who are collecting excess profits. An excess profit is, of course, an unreasonable profit—that is the meaning of the word excessive. The tax on excess profits was for two reasons the most just tax that we had. In the first place, it tended to restrain profiteering by punishing the profiteer to the extent of the tax: It was a sort of fine imposed, through taxation, on those guilty of extorting from the public. In the second place, it was the easiest tax to pay, because it was paid out of excess profits or profits which the profiteers should not have collected. I might add a third reason, namely, that it was the only tax that a person could repeal(so far as he himself was concerned) without the aid of law. If anyone objected to the excess profit tax, all he had to do was to cease collecting excess profits, and then he would have no tax to pay on excess profits. In other words, if he would quit stealing he would not have to divide it with the Government.

While the repeal of the tax on ex-

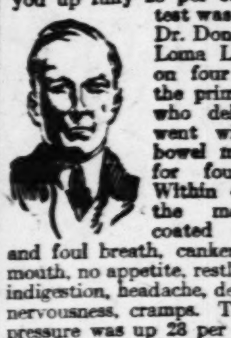
Prove splendid laxative properties of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin by test

A SCIENTIFIC test has now proven what Dr. Caldwell of Monticello asserted many years ago, that constipation will slow you up fully 25 per cent. The test was made by Dr. Donaldson of Loma Linda upon four men in the prime of life who deliberately went without a bowel movement for four days. Within 48 hours the men had coated tongue and foul breath, cankers in the mouth, no appetite, restless sleep, indigestion, headache, depression, nervousness, cramps. The blood pressure was up 28 per cent. It is just this that Dr. Caldwell has preached to his patients in private and to the public through the printed word ever since he began the practice of his specialty, diseases of the stomach and bowels, back in 1875.



After observing for years the satisfactory effect of his prescription for constipation, he placed it in drug stores in 1892, a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics, now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. That was 30 years ago, and today over 10 million bottles are bought annually, the largest selling family laxative in the world. You will find it in any drug store you enter, a generous-size bottle costing you less than a cent a dose.

Every member of the family from the infants to the grandparents can use it with safety. It is gentle and mild. The formula is on the package. Mrs. Roy Cook of Bellefontaine, O., has been giving it to her 5-months old baby, who now weighs 19 pounds; and Mr. J. B. Dawson of Brinson, Ga., declares it the best laxative his family has ever found. Try a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for constipation or any of its symptoms. The results will delight you. And the cost is only one cent a dose.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

profits was utterly inexcusable, was another reduction which if possible, more easily under- and explained: namely, the re- of the tax on big incomes a maximum of 65 per cent to aximum of 32 per cent. When was first proposed by Secretary it seemed so astounding that no idea it would ever be incor- d in a bill, but the bill pro- d by the Ways and Means Com- actually contained the pro- , and all the reactionary Re- icans were back of it—and it not be forgotten that the reac- ry leaders are in control of the at Washington. According to tax records of last year, less 8000 persons paid a rate above er cent—the number being some- over 4700—but the reduction rred a benefit of $80,000,000 on small group with large incomes.

The Retroactive Clause.

e bill, as presented to the House, ained what was known as the roactive clause, which made these items take effect on the first of ary of last year, although the did not pass until late in the . What injustice could be more than to select these two groups the least deserving of aid of all groups affected by the bill—and them relief nearly a year earlier any other persons benefiting by bill. This retroactive clause was ken out in a Republican Con- by a majority of nine—the ma- ity vote coming very largely from West. If this clause had re- ed in the bill, it would have out of the treasury, for last $450,000,000, the sum which, rding to estimates, the profiteers d have paid, and $90,000,000 the people of large incomes d have paid—a total of $540,- ,000. This would have made it essary to devise new taxes to e up the deficit and these new s would have been collected from er people. It was a simple prob- in arithmetic, the transferring much taxes from the backs of rich to the backs of the poor. The king out of the retroactive clause ed $540,000,000 to the treasury year and thus made it unneces- to collect that much in new , but the clauses remained in bill, and the profiteers and the le with big incomes are now get- the benefit of this favoritism n them by the Republican y.

DON'T SQUEEZE BLACKHEADS—DISSOLVE THEM

Squeezing and pinching out blackheads make the pores large and cause irritation—then, too, after they have become hard you cannot get all of them out. Blackheads are caused by accumulation of dust and dirt and secretions from the skin and there is only one safe and sure way and one that never fails to get rid of them—a simple way, too—that is to dissolve them. Just get from any drug store about two ounces of calonite powder—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off and you'll be surprised to see that every blackhead has disappeared, and the skin will be left soft and the pores in their natural condition—anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should try this simple method.

charge was made in the provision repealing the excess profits tax). In conference the two committees agreed on a 40 per cent compromise—a rate of 8 per cent above the 32 per cent in the House bill, and 10 per cent lower than the 50 per cent rate in the Senate bill. I should have said in the beginning that Secretary Mellon and President Harding stood back of the revenue bill as it was presented to the House, and that both Secretary Mellon and the President indorsed the compromise measure; the leaders of the two Houses also supported the compromise. And yet, in spite of this pressure, 93 Republicans, nearly all from the West, joined with 106 Democrats and fixed the new rate on incomes at 50 per cent—10 per cent higher than the conference compromise. When before did so small a minority in the House ever secure the aid of so large a fraction of the majority and fix so important a rate in a revenue bill? I think there is no parallel in all American history.

President Harding has had more difficulty with his revenue bill than any former President, and it was due wholly to an inexcuseable attempt to relieve profiteers and people with large incomes at the expense of the people with smaller incomes."

Federal Reserve Board.

The farmers have a special grievance in the effort of the administration to defeat the passage of the measure directing that a farmer be appointed on the Federal Reserve Board. That board is more powerful than any other arm of the Government. It can act more quickly and more effectively than the House, the Senate or the President, for each fo these three branches of government (the House, the Senate and the administration) must have the ai odf the other two before it can do anything, while the Federal Reserve Board is composed of seven men and

MOTHER, OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS—GIVE "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even Cross, Feverish, Sick Children Love its Delicious Taste and it Never Fails to Empty Little Bowels

If your child is listless, full of cold, has colic, or if the stomach is sour, breath bad, tongue coated, a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup" will quickly start liver and bowel action. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the constipation poison, sour bile and waste right out and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today may save a sick child tomorrow. It never cramps or overacts. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

I First Compounded This Newer Form of Iron For My Own Neighbors

Their Praise of This Remarkable Remedy Has Spread So Rapidly That Now Over 4,000,000 People Use It Annually

Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring, without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and run-down. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100% iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding this newer form of iron which I call Nuxated Iron, I employed a special form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach, and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

Near East Situation Again Brings Out Importance of Oil in Modern Warfare.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—The importance of oil in modern warfare is being brought to the front again in discussions evoked by the situation in the Near East, where it is conceded that the question of oil supplies has figured extensively in shaping the various national policies.

Studies of the French General Staff indicate the enormous meaning of oil in war. Some of its conclusions are that the German offensive on the Western front in 1915 was temporarily relaxed so that Germany might carry on a stronger offensive into Galicia and Rumania for the "oil peace treaties," as the Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk agreements are sometimes called.

One of the most critical moments of the war, that of March, 1918, was partly due to the shortage of oil among the allies. One of the greatest services rendered to the alllies by America was that of having placed at the disposition of the allies 100,000 tons in tank ships, which were taken from the Pacific.

Deficit in Telephone Service.

The French Government is still unable to make the national telephone service pay, despite a 50 per cent increase in the number of subscribers over the pre-war figure. This is shown in a report prepared by Paul Laffont, Under Secretary in the Ministry of Posts. The report was presented to the Finance Commitee of the Chamber of Deputies. It showed that the average yearly cost of supplying a telephone service in Paris is 780 francs, for which the subscriber pays 700. Thus, the department loses 80 francs yearly on each subscriber. For long-distance calls, the average loss per call works out at 7.15 francs. Fifteen per cent of the calls are canceled because the clients are unwilling to wait long enough to obtain communication. The cost of working the postal telegraph and telephone departments in 1921 was 10 per cent over the receipts. M. Laffont hopes to improve the telephone service enough to pay the cost and perhaps yield 5 or 10 per cent profit. The only effort hitherto made toward this end has been a constant increase in rates.

tatives in the President's Cabinet; we have a Secretary of Agriculture, a Secretary of Labor and a Secretary of Commerce. Why not have on the Federal Reserve Board a farmer who farms, a laborer who labors and a business man who is not a banker?

This article has dealt largely with the policies that have caused the revolt among the farmers—the most formidable revolt among them since the revolt in the early '90s. Other causes of complaint will be treated in future articles.

"Thoughtful Mothers!" Are You One of Them?

All mothers—bless them—are loving and devoted. How often we are led to respect and admire the "thoughtful mother" who provides for emergencies and saves her loved ones from hours of suffering and herself from needless anxiety and sleepless vigil.

The season for colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and catarrhal ailments is drawing near, when the "thoughtful mother" makes up a full pint of pure, quickly effective cold and cough syrup made at home by using pure concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene (2½ ozs.) mixed with simple sugar syrup or strained honey. A pint of sugar and a half pint of water makes the syrup in three minutes. The essence and and the syrup are then poured into a pint bottle and is ready to use to prevent bad colds and coughs getting worse. The very first dose gives wonderful relief and in a few days all trace of the congestion and catarrhal symptoms are usually gone. The joy of seeing the quick freedom from colds, coughs and dangerous complications, the freedom from anxiety and sleepless nights, to say nothing of the real economy of this home remedy—is "worth its weight in gold."

The drug store supplies the Essence Mentho-Laxene. "Best ever sold for cough or cold".

The Amazing Discovery of the Real Cause of Body Odors!

How Immac, the wonderful new product of modern science, acts as a purifying filter. Perspiration itself practically odorless. Some startling facts about the sebaceous glands. Why they give forth stronger odors in winter than in summer!

Dainty women all down through history have known that unpleasant body odors come principally from the hairy surface in the arm pits. And in all ages they have used various methods to overcome these odors—mostly by means of salves, liquids and powder.

Now the trouble with every one of these treatments is that they are prepared and used for the purpose of doing away with the smell from sweat, when the amazing fact is that unpleasant body odors do not come from sweat, but from an altogether different cause and, contrary to popular belief, are even more offensive in winter than in summer.

This astounding discovery, which is destined to stop entirely the use of astringents, salves and other harmful makeshifts in the treatment of body odors, was made only a comparatively few years ago. Since that time science has been hard at work on the production of a genuine deodorant—a deodorant that would not interfere with normal healthful sweat activity, but that would positively and harmlessly banish obnoxious odors by acting as a soothing, purifying filter for the excess secretion from the under-arm sebaceous glands. This scientific deodorant has at last been perfected under the name Immac.

Why powder, liquid, grease, salves and all the other makeshifts heretofore used under the arms are so harmful!

Normal perspiration is perfectly natural and healthful, and for people in good health is odorless. It is the mixture of sweat with the excess secretion from the sebaceous glands, and not the sweat itself, that is responsible for the strong odors that come from the armpits, particularly during periods of emotional or nervous activity, as will be presently explained.

The point here to be emphasized is that all of the various makeshifts—unlike Immac—interfere in one way and another with the natural function of healthful sweat. Some of them increase its flow, some check it. None of them completely nullifies bad body odors as Immac does; the best they can do is to smother the odors, which, in the end, of course, makes the unpleasant condition worse than ever.

But the greatest harm done by these makeshifts is that in interfering with the sweat flow and also the secretions from the sebaceous glands, they cause pores of the armpits to become clogged so that the waste matter cannot escape. Naturally, much of this flows back, seeking an outlet from other parts of the system. This may directly result in blackheads, pimples and other blemishes about the nose and face.

This effort on the part of nature to rid itself of impurities may also cause coated tongue and bad breath, which in turn so deadens the sense of smell that one's own body odors cannot be detected—except by others.

Why Immac and Immac alone positively and harmlessly banishes body odors!

All of us know that we blush under sudden embarrassment, that fear may cause us to turn pale or faint, that any unusual excitement brings forth, particularly in the armpits, an excess of fluid watery matter which we commonly refer to as a "cold sweat." Now as a matter of fact, much of this fluid is not sweat, but is in the form of excess secretion from the sebaceous glands. This secretion is stimulated, not only by excitement and other forms of nervousness, but also by pleasurable emotional activity as for example, when we see a thrilling moving picture or an exciting play; also when we attend the opera or go to a dance; even when we read a fascinating novel.

Because these various forms of entertainment are naturally indulged in much more in winter than in summer—because our clothing is heavier and we are for the most part in a "close," overheated, underroof atmosphere, and not out in the open air as we are during so much of the time in summer, bad body odors are actually stronger in winter than in summer.

When the excess secretion from the sebaceous glands becomes mixed with the hair and sweat in the armpits, there quickly develops a very strong and offensive odor that soap and water, even when applied frequently, simply will not remove. And, as already explained, daubing or smearing on powder, greasy pastes or any of the other makeshifts only aggravates the condition. Not only do astringents close up the pores, thereby stopping healthful perspiration; they add to the amount of waste matter already in the armpits and in the end actually make the odors stronger and more offensive than they would have been if let entirely alone.

What causes excess secretion from the sebaceous glands and the bad odors accompanying this secretion?

Immac is the only medicinal preparation scientifically compounded, to prevent clogged sebaceous glands, cleanse the under-arm pores, and completely nullify the stagnant odors which settle in the armpits as a result of physical or emotional activity.

Immac has a definite healing value. It soothes the sensitive skin of the armpits and prevents the pimples and boils which are all too often caused by makeshifts. Covering the affected parts with a white satin smooth coating, Immac does what no other so-called deodorant can do; it acts as a purifying filter (in no way interfering with healthful perspiration) which completely nullifies all odors arising from body secretions in the arm-pits, the groin and feet.

Immac comes to you in an attractive, convenient tube-like tooth paste. It is a pure, white, rose scented CREAM; not a grease, a salve or a paste. It has none of that disagreeable stickiness to which all dainty women object. And it can not stain or damage the clothing.

Apply Immac regularly and you will be absolutely free from all disagreeable body odors the year 'round—in Winter as well as in Summer. Think how much this knowledge will add to your life's happiness. SWEET CHARITY

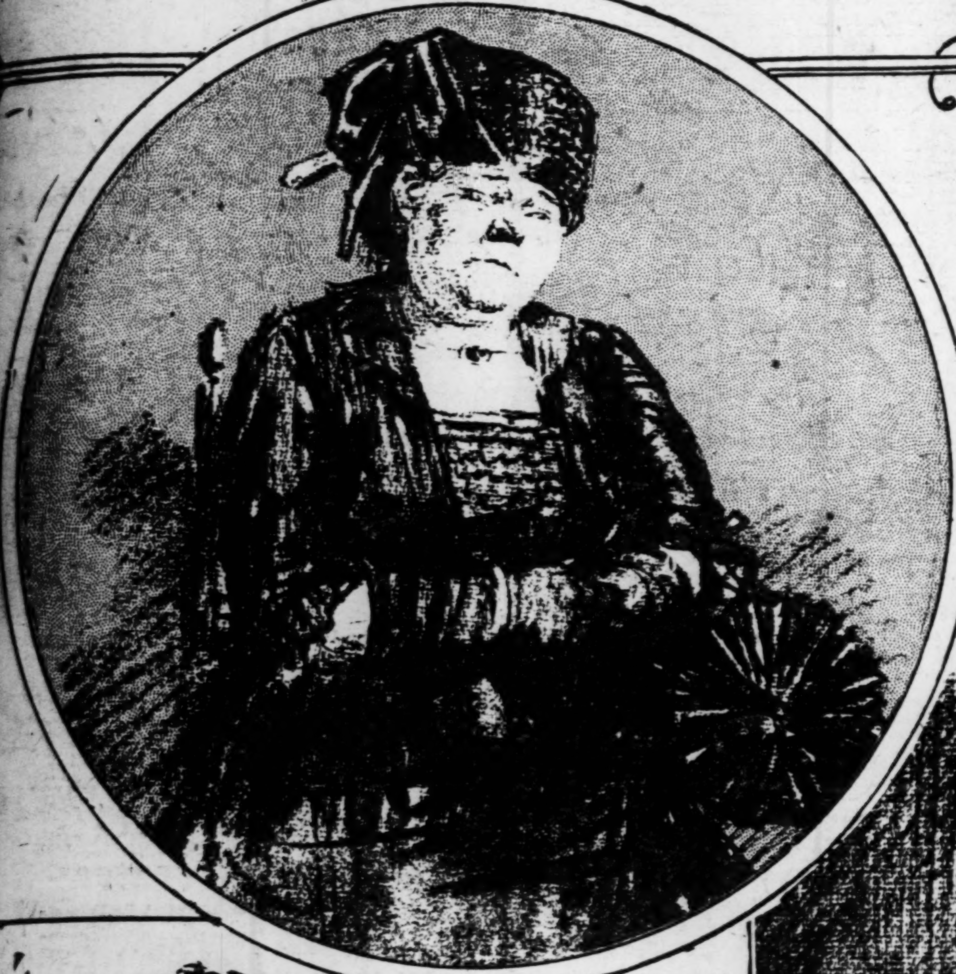
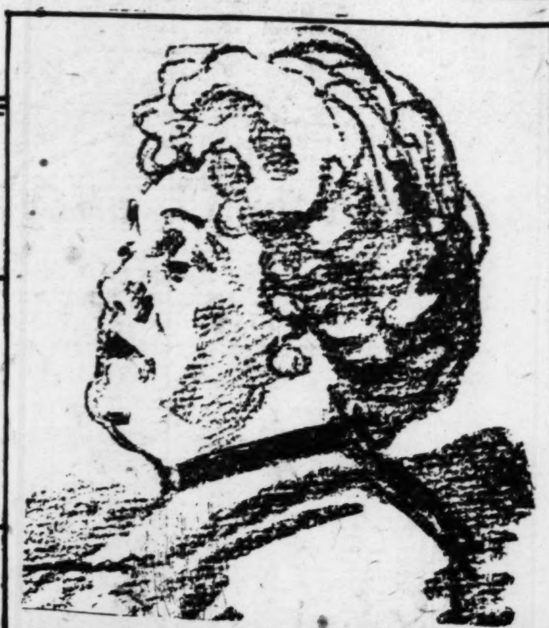
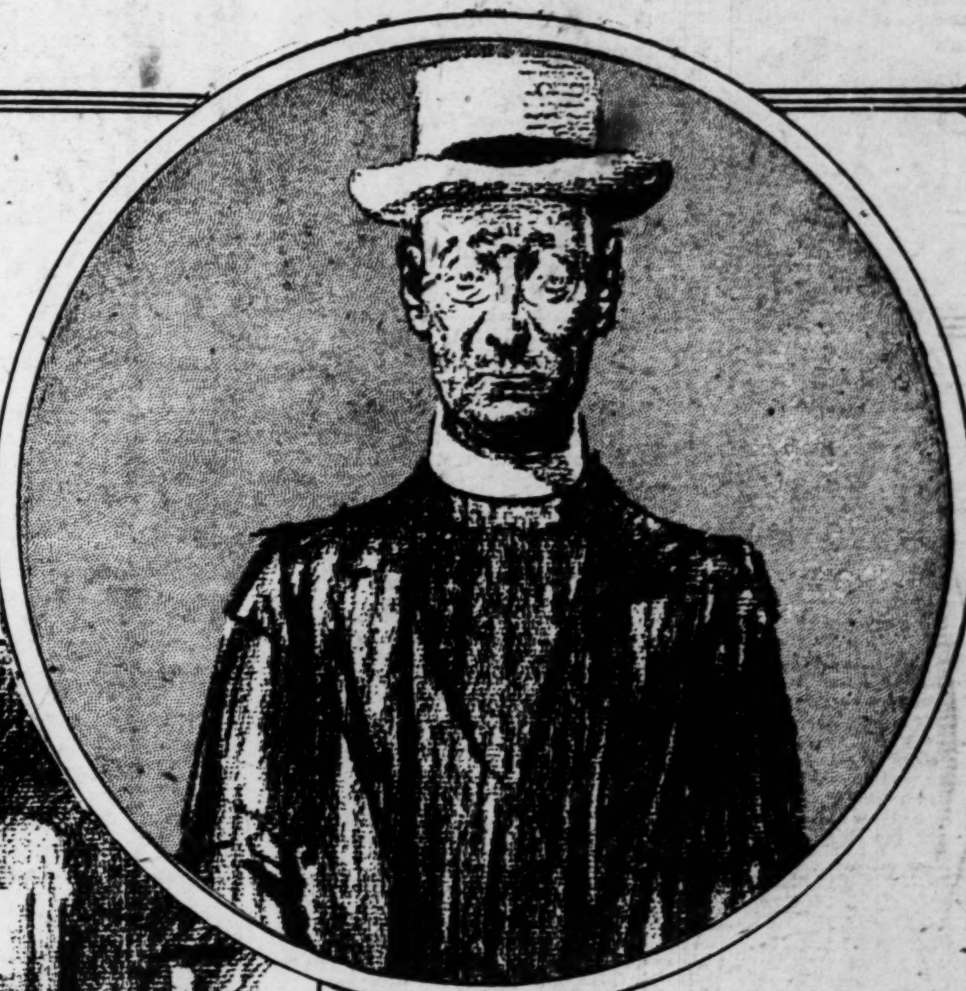
By W. E. Hill



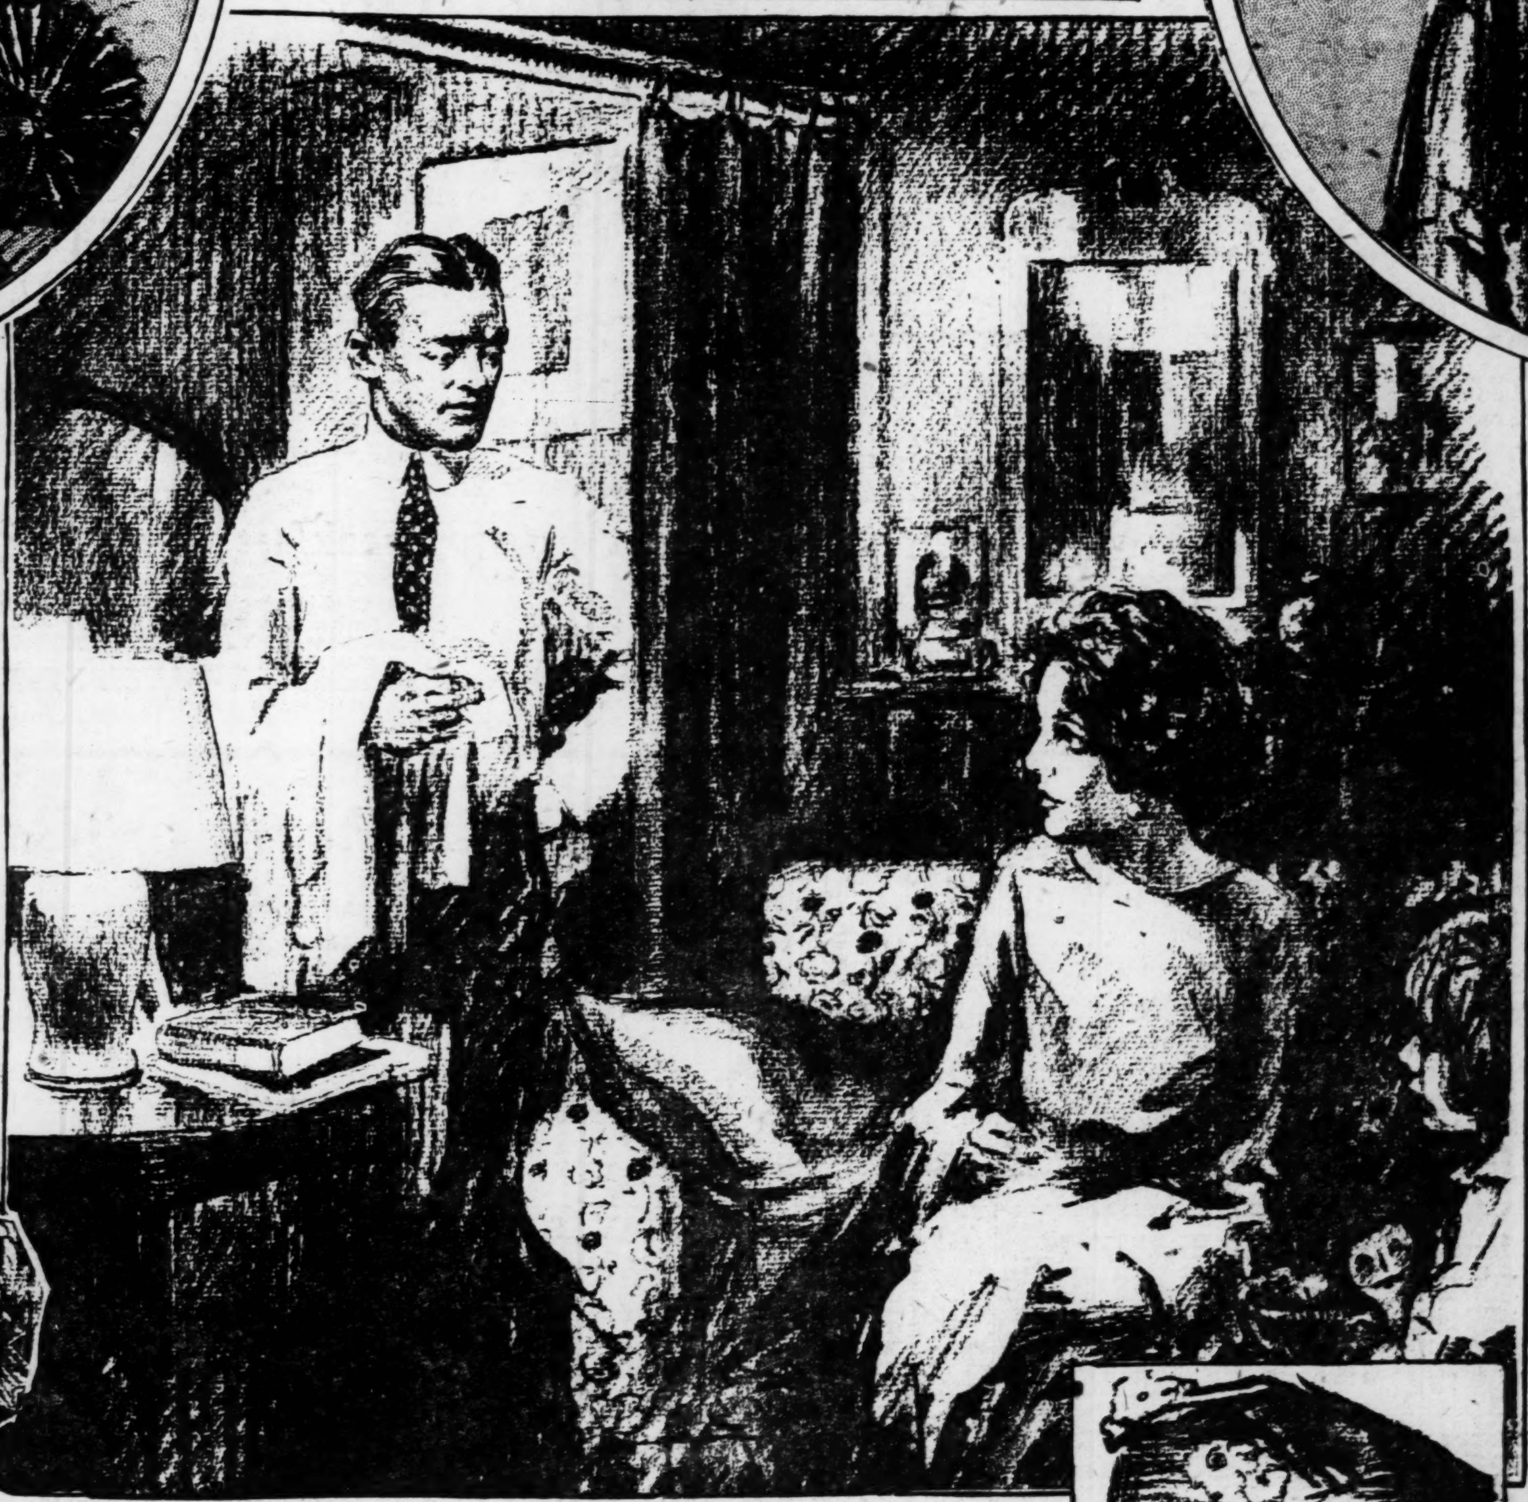


The lady philanthropist who is perfectly willing to give, provided she can do it her way. If interfered with, she won't play.

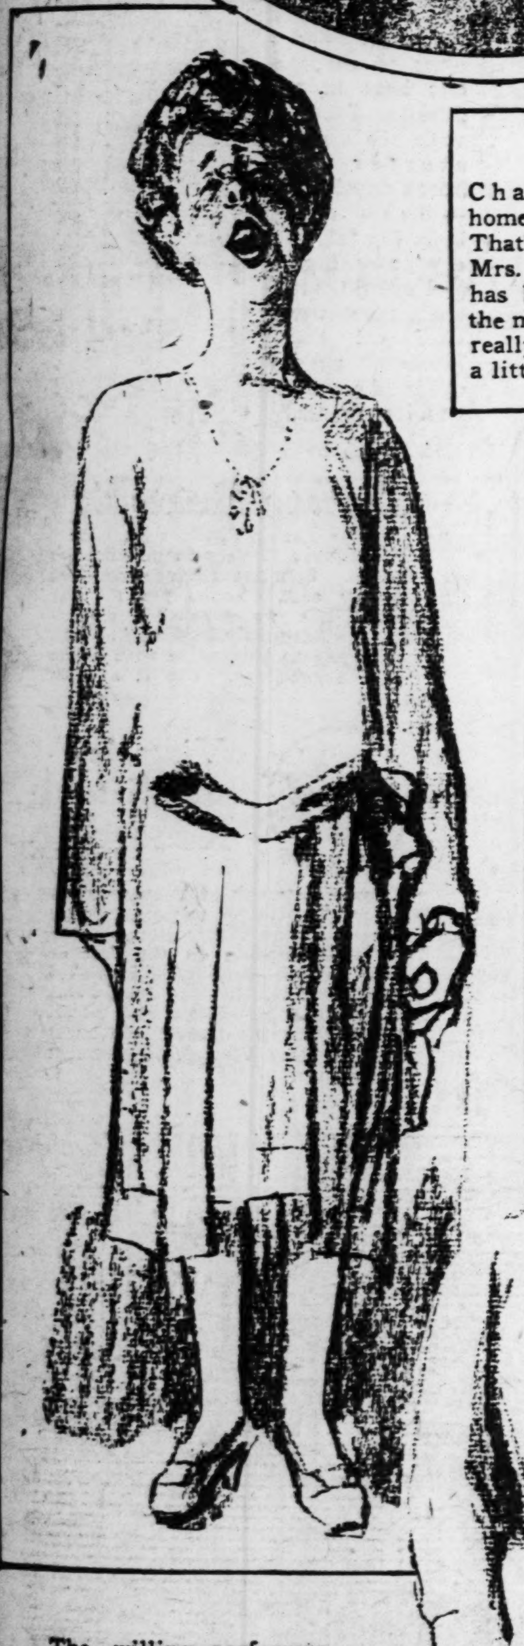


Irwin, alas! has the type of face that only means one thing—a chronic reformer.

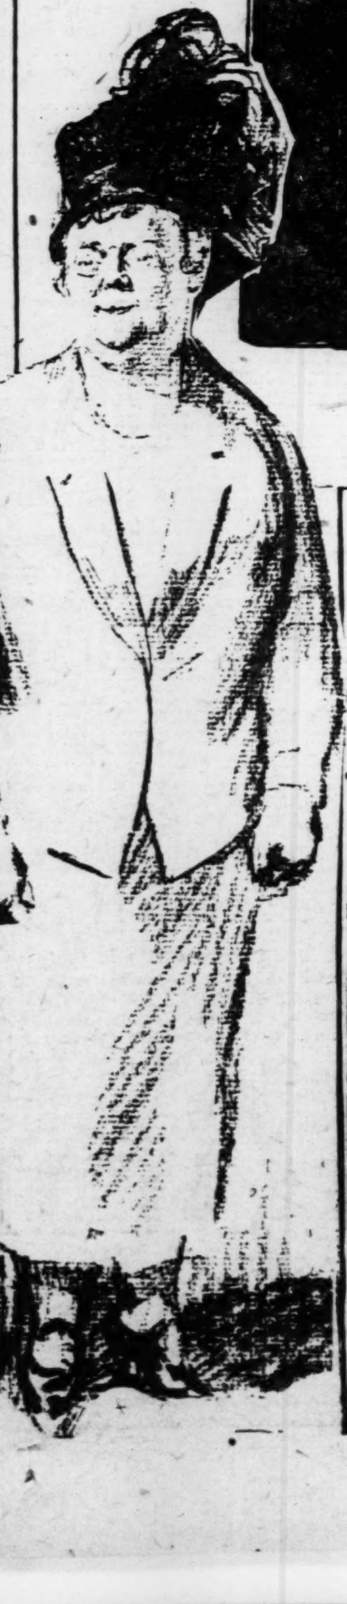
Charity begins at home, you know. That's probably why Mrs. Fred Gunther has been over to tell the minister's wife that really her dresses are a little too short.



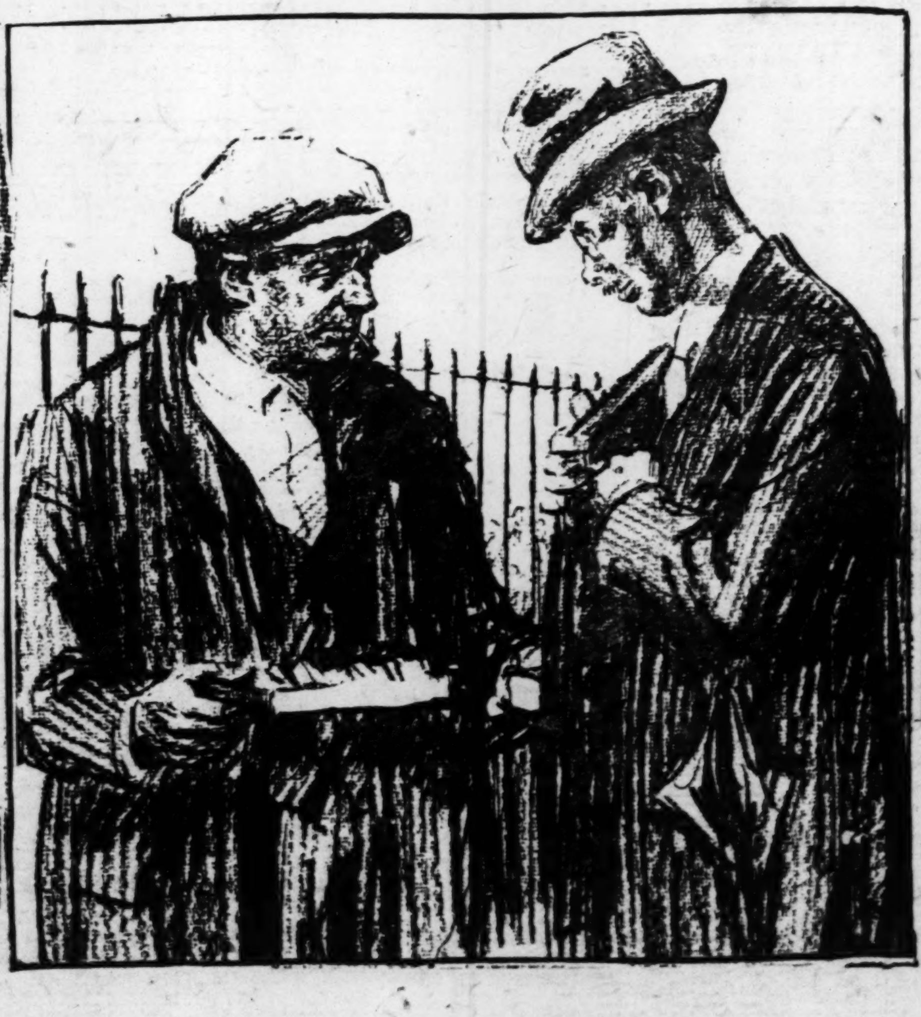
"Why, I didn't suppose you were going to wear them any more, Arthur, so I gave them to the furnace man." There are times when Mr. Dobbie wishes that charity would NOT begin at home!



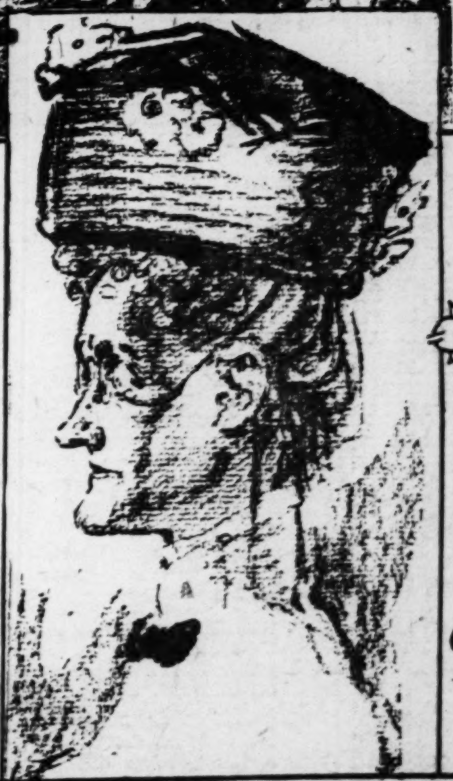
The willing performer, who volunteers her services for charity often with little or no provocation. The W. P. is singing about how "thy fragrance makes me swoon, as the jasmine at noon."



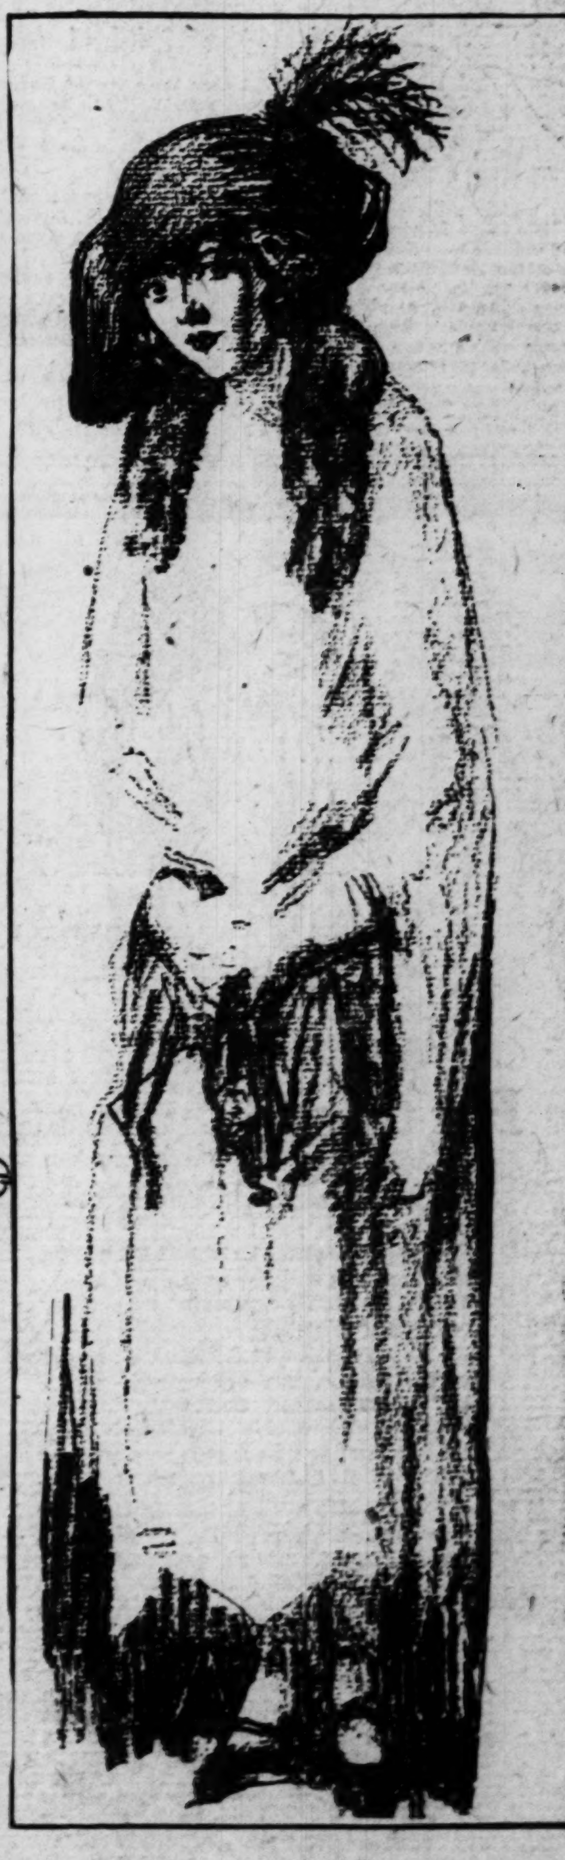
The organizer, whose life is just one series of committees for the benefit of this that and the other thing.



"Every man his own settlement worker," seems to be Mr. Clock's motto. His inside coat pocket is full of little cards telling where the needy and jobless can obtain good, wholesome, honest employment. All the venders of rubber gum and leadless pencils are, of course, grateful beyond words to Mr. Clock.



The church worker. Cousin Rhoda Torby varies in her religious intensity. Some months she will be very slack, and then again she will be just as willing about the altar flowers and the Ladies' Aid! It all depends on whether or not the minister has offended her.



The temporary settlement worker. Gladys is working at the day nursery. Something has to be done with Gladys till she marries.

Clears Skin of Pimples

Remarkable Action of Stuart's Calcium Wafers in Ridding Face of Pimples, Boils, Rash, Blotches, Etc.

You know what a tiny pinch of saleratus does when added to milk and acid. It stops curdling, and this is comparatively the same influence that takes place when you add calcium sulfide to the blood. It is a refining influence. Calcium is the principal agency in Stuart's Calcium Wafers and exerts a peculiar stimulus to skin repair. Pimples, blackheads and other such evidence of localized skin sluggishness are replaced with new material and soon the skin renews itself with firmer, healthier tissue. This makes the beautiful complexion so much admired. No use to hide pimples with cold cream and lotions. These blemishes either come from within or become localized if the calcium influence is lacking and they keep coming until such an influence as calcium is supplied by the blood.

Let nature clear your skin through the influence of Stuart's Calcium Wafers which you can obtain in any drug store at 60 cents a box. These wonder wafers are used by thousands of women who have learned from experience their remarkable influence to make the skin beautiful and keep it so.

Shave With Cuticura Soap

The healthy up-to-date Cuticura way. Dip brush in hot water and rub on Cuticura Soap. Then make lather on face and rub in for a moment with fingers. Make a second lathering and shave. Anoint any irritation with Cuticura Ointment, then wash all off with Cuticura Soap. Nothing better for sensitive skins.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 29T, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Your druggist carries a thousand and one items for your convenience and welfare. Always "Try the drug store first."

Put these 3 questions to your druggist

How quickly should a physic act? What laxative gives quickest relief? Is a quick-acting laxative necessarily harsh, and will it gripe?

Your druggist will answer that 80 per cent of all sickness originates in decaying waste matter; therefore, minutes count—quick relief is of first importance. He will tell you that Pluto gives quickest relief—it acts in 30 minutes to two hours.

He will also tell you that Pluto, being a water laxative, is gentle, harmless and won't gripe. When sickness comes, it is always best to call your doctor; a timely dose of Pluto, however, is a wise step toward prevention. Keep Pluto always in the home.

FOUR CASH DONATIONS ADD $32 TO MILK FUND

Returns From Vaudeville Revue and Carnival Expected to Bring Total to $6500.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

Previously acknowledged	$6138.69
Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe B. Thomas, 4011 Shaw av.	25.00
Shipley, 5608 Pershing av.	5.00
Elsie Gorosky, 404 De Baliviere avenue	1.00
Ruth Bondi, 2631 Oregon av.	1.00
Total	$6170.69

Four cash donations increased the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund by $32 on Friday, bringing the total sum in the fund to $6170.69. When final returns are made from the vaudeville revue given Aug. 26 at the Orpheum Theater by members of Stockham Post, American Legion, and the proceeds of the outdoor carnival recently held at Vandeventer and Laclede avenues are reported, approximately $6500, it is expected, will be on hand. This leaves only $3500 to be raised if the work of furnishing milk to destitute children is to be continued through the offices of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission.

This amount must be made up by cash donations, as the lateness of the season and the return of the children to school precludes the possibility of any large benefits being given. St. Louisans who have not already assisted the Milk and Ice Fund and wish to help care for the delicate children of the poor are urged to send their donations, no matter how small, to the cashier of the Post-Dispatch. Names will not be published if the donors prefer to give anonymously, but all contributions will be acknowledge in the columns of the paper.

Among the donors on today's list are: Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe B. Thomas, 4011 Shaw avenue, who sent $25; Shipley, 5608 Pershing avenue, who forwarded a check for $5, and $1 each from Elsie Gorosky, 404 De Baliviere avenue, and Ruth Bondi, 2631 Oregon avenue.

THUMB BOX EXHIBITION TO BE GIVEN IN ART MUSEUM

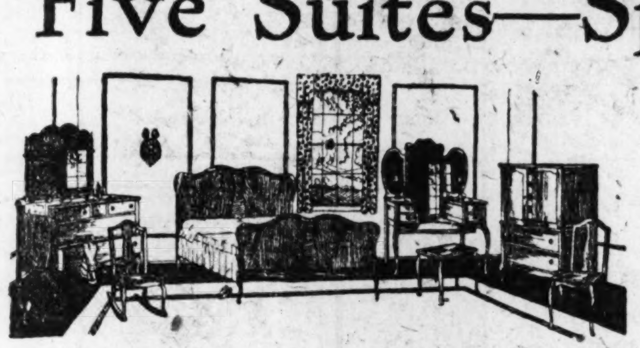
Artists Who Would Enter Must Submit Works to League's Jury By Oct. 25.

The eighth annual exhibition of Thumb box pictures, sculpture and handicraft, to open Nov. 1 under the auspices of the St. Louis Art League, has been allotted gallery space in the City Art Museum in Forest Park.

Entry cards and necessary information will be sent to previous exhibitors. Artists not on the lists may write or apply personally to the league headquarters in the Planters Hotel. Works must be submitted to a jury chosen by intending exhibitors not later than Oct. 25 at the Planters.

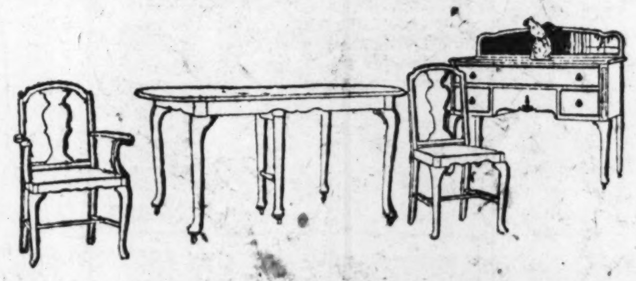
Five Suites—Specially Priced!

These Five Suites indicate the wonderful values you can obtain here. And you can buy any one of them on convenient monthly terms.



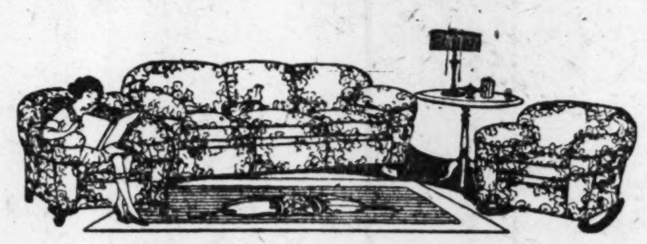
7-Piece Bedroom Suite $198.50

Not often is so splendidly desirable a Suite offered at so favorable a price. Queen Anne design, every piece strongly put together and finished in American walnut. The bed is double size; and the other pieces are large and well proportioned; French plate mirrors on dresser and semi-vanity dresser.



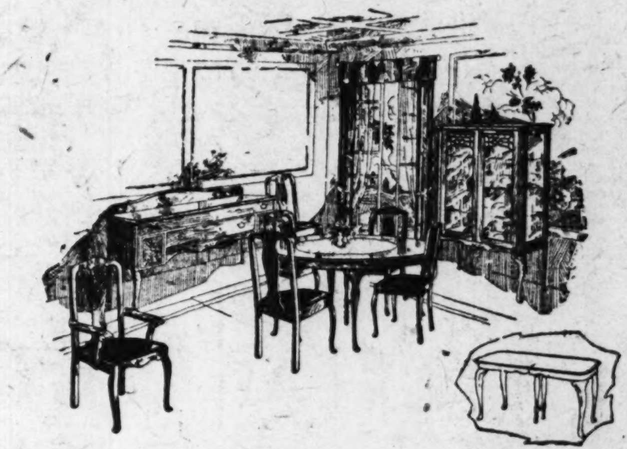
8-Pc. Dining-Room Suite $149.50

Every piece of furniture in this Suite is built of genuine American walnut—and solidly built. For $149.50 you get an oblong extension table, a 60-inch Buffet with French plate mirror, one armchair and five straight chairs with slip seats of genuine brown or blue leather. It's a rare value!



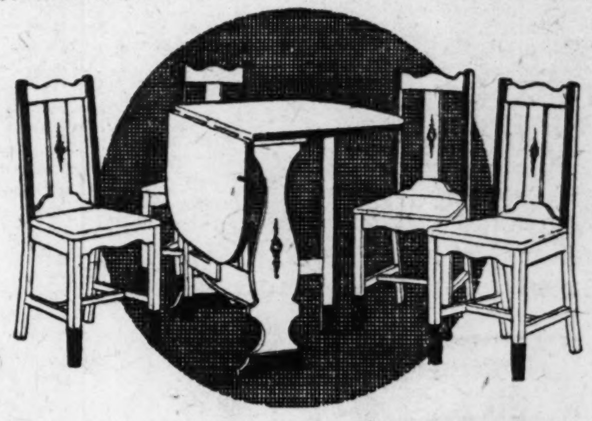
Overstuffed Living-Room Suite $187.50

A very handsome three-piece Suite, as illustrated. It consists of full-length davenport, club chair and rocker—all luxuriously overstuffed and upholstered in rich velour or tapestry of your own selection upholstered to order. Turkish pillow arms on all three pieces.



9-Piece Dining-Room Suite . . . $279.50

Strongly built of genuine American walnut, this Suite will last for years. And you'll never grow tired of its appearance, for it's in the always pleasing Queen Anne design. Buffet is 66 inches long and has a mirror. Choice of 54-inch round extension table or 45x60-inch oblong table. One armchair and five straight chairs with slip seats of genuine leather, blue or brown. The china closet is 40 inches wide. Pieces of this suite can be bought separately, if desired.



Breakfast Set . . . $29.75

This good-looking and remarkably low-priced Breakfast Set consists of a drop-end, gate-leg table and four chairs. Table top measures 42x36 inches. All five pieces are heavily enameled in dull finish French gray, decorated with blue band and flower sprays. Quantity of Sets is limited; early selection is advised.

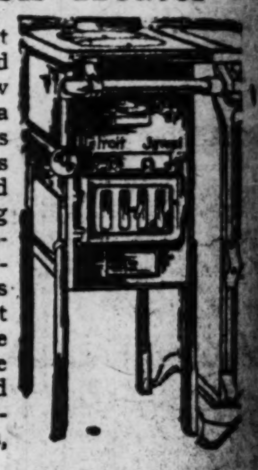
Hot-Blast Heater $18.75

This Heater will save money for you, because it gets a maximum amount of heat out of even the poorest grade of coal. The hot-blast tube feeds warm air over the gas liberated from the coal, causing this gas to burn instead of being wasted, and doing away with practically all smoke and soot.

We have a full line of Heating Stoves including the famous Wilson Heaters, Detroit Jewel, Bridge & Beach and Charter Oak Heaters.

Detroit Jewel Kitchen Heater

It will "get going," and start to throw out heat in a minute. Starts with a gas starter and burns anything—even rubbish. On "shivery" mornings and evenings it will take the chill off the kitchen, and other downstairs rooms, too.



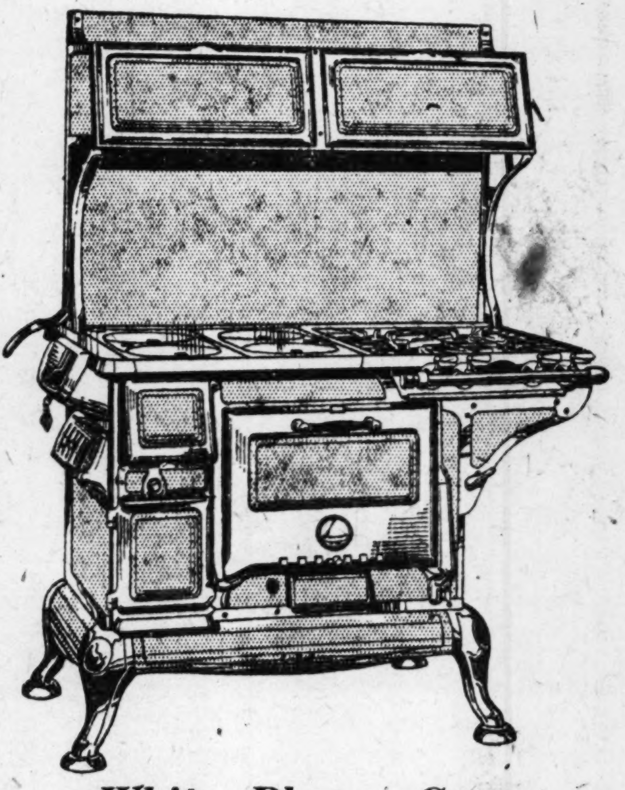
Estate Heatrola

—The Parlor Pipeless Furnace

The pipless furnace in phonograph design. Supplies furnace comfort at low cost. Looks for all the world like an expensive phonograph. Beautifuly finished in grain mahogany to harmonize with finest home furnishings. See it at our store.

Victrolas and Victor Records

A complete stock of Victrola models, from portables to period styles—thousands of Victor Records, and the new Records on the first of every month—invitingly furnished soundproof booths—a quick service Record counter—that's what you'll find here in the largest and finest Ground Floor Victrola Department in the city.



White, Blue or Gray

Combination Range

A Wonderful Value at $124.60

This Range is just as good—and as good looking as any Range can be. It's built of genuine, rustproof Armco iron and is porcelain enameled—white, blue or gray. Enamel fully guaranteed.

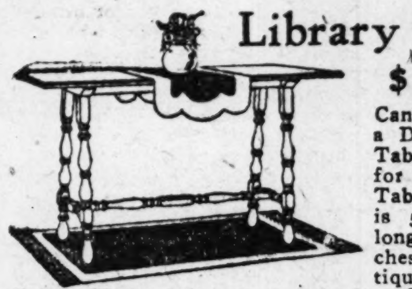
Has four coal holes, also four gas burners with pilot light. The large oven (18-inch) is triple lined and is enameled inside with porcelain. The double warming ovens are porcelain lined, too.

Finest nickel-plated trimmings throughout. Porcelain handles on gas burners. Convenient thermometer on oven door. Examine this Range to the smallest detail and you'll understand why we can unqualifiedly guarantee it to be as good as any Range can be, and to satisfy you. $124.60 is really a small price for it.

Tables for the Living Room

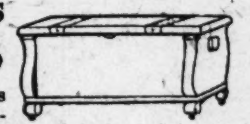
Davenport Table, $16.75

A long, narrow Table, designed in the Queen Anne style—graceful and distinctive looking. Of substantial construction and beautifully finished in brown mahogany. Top measures 18x60 inches.



Library Table $12.95

Can be used for a Davenport Table as well as for a Library Table, since it is 54 inches long and 18 inches wide. Antique walnut finish. Moderately priced, indeed, at $12.95.



Cedar Chests $12.75 to $75

A complete line, all styles and sizes, all made of genuine Tennessee red cedar.

End Table $8.75

With its handy trough for books and its 24x15-inch top, this little Table is mighty convenient to have next to the davenport or your favorite armchair. It is finished in Antique Walnut.

Difficult to Keep Your Hair Wavy? Read This

If you have not yet tried the new way, the silmerine way, by all means do so, whether your hair be long or bobbed. You'll never again use the ruinous heated iron. The curliness will appear so perfectly natural and the hair will be so beautifully lustrous, instead of dried and parched. Thus liquid silmerine serves also as a beneficial dressing for the hair. It is neither sticky nor greasy, but quite pleasant to use. It should be applied with a clean toothbrush before putting up the hair, drawing the brush through the hair from root to tip.

The hair will have the loveliest curls and waves imaginable in three hours, and it will be easy to manage, no matter how you do it up. A few ounces of the liquid from your druggist will last a long time.

RETIRING HEAD OF CITY NURSES TELLS OF HANDICAPS HERE

Lack of Interest on Part of Public Officials and Limited Funds, Chief Criticism of Miss Anderson.

WOMEN OVERWORKED IN SERVICE, SHE SAYS

Work in St. Louis 12 to 15 Years Behind That in Other Large Cities, She Asserts.

Miss Grace L. Anderson, who has been superintendent of Municipal Nurses for the last five years, in resigning to become director of a model demonstration work of similar character in New York City under the Rockefeller Foundation, yesterday criticised city officials for what she termed their lack of sympathy with preventive health work.

As is known, the Municipal Nurses work out from eight infant welfare clinics, advising mothers in their pre-natal habits and supervising at this time feeding and health principles for more than 11,000 St. Louis babies. It is generally asserted and not contradicted that the work of the nurses has been the chief factor in the reduction of the city's infant mortality rate to the lowest among the large cities of the United States. They also seek out cases of tuberculosis and advise families in which the disease is found of measures that will prevent its spread to them.

Fund Cut Below Minimum.

Miss Anderson said that at the last budget-making, the nurses asked for $80,000, the minimum sum needed to maintain the service at the standard of last year, which, she said, was far behind the standard of other cities of similar class. The Nurses' Board were assured, she said, that the sum would be granted—the assurance of the specific sum coming from Mayor Kiel and President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, Comptroller Nolte refusing to pledge himself to any sum, but stating the work would not be permitted to retrograde. In spite of this assurance, Miss Anderson said, the sum was cut to $51,000, which compelled the closing of two clinics.

The number of nurses employed is 30. Miss Anderson declares that there is work for 80. "We have enough centers," she said, "but not enough nurses and physicians to keep the centers open every day in the week as they should be. On clinic days, it is not an uncommon sight to see 70 mothers with their babies gathered inside the clinic, while outside crowds of other mothers with their babies wait to be admitted. We have the needed machinery, but the factory must work part time because of lack of hands to man it. Instead of being allowed more nurses this year we have been compelled to discharge three.

"This is not charity. Mothers have the right to demand of the city this service to the coming generation. They are seizing it as the growth of the work indicates. Mothers want the clinic advice and help.

Work Behind Other Cities.

"The work in St. Louis is 12 to 15 years behind that in other large cities. It is discouraging to be handicapped by lack of interest on the part of public officials. There is no hope under them for a woman with a sincere desire to perfect this service which the city owes. The nurses are overworked, yet are compelled to leave undone many things which they know should be done.

"It is ridiculous and humiliating that the decision on development of this vital work seems to lie with the Comptroller's secretary. Our requests are checked by him. He reports that a clinic here is not needed or equipment there would be wasted. He is placed in the position of being sole arbiter of the fate of St. Louis babies. There is no indication of either understanding of the work or sympathy with it on the part of the officials who have the ultimate voice in the matter."

When the work was established in 1917, it was under an appropriation of $18,200. During that year 2066 cases of tuberculosis were supervised and 2397 babies placed under medical and nursing advice. At the present time the nurses are watching 2636 cases of tuberculosis, are supervising the care of 11,762 babies and children under school age, and are giving guidance to 336 prenatal mothers.

Nature of New Field.

Miss Anderson will establish similar service in a section of New York having a population of 40,000 persons, a section having the city's highest death rate and highest rate of sickness. The appropriation for the work among 40,000 persons there is $60,000 a year, or nearly $9000 in excess of the sum St. Louis appropriates for its entire population of nearly 800,000.

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

MONUMENT TO AUTHOR OF "LITTLE BOY BLUE"

Statue to Eugene Field to Be Unveiled in Lincoln Park, Chicago, Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—Eugene Field, "the children's poet," best known for the poignant lines of his "Little Boy Blue" and his series of lullabies, will take his place Monday in Chicago's marble hall of fame with the unveiling, in Lincoln Park, of a monument dedicated to him.

Children of Chicago, through newspaper subscription funds raised nearly half the cost—the remainder was donated by the Ferguson Memorial Fund—and the memorial fittingly commemorates the famous lullabies to which millions of children have been sung to sleep.

A brooding angel is depicted hovering over two sleeping children, sprinkling the sand of dreams into their eyes. Beneath, on one side of the memorial, is carved the first four lines of the Dutch Lullaby, better known as "Wynken, Blynken and Nod." On the other side of the sleeping figures are the opening lines of "The Sugar Plum Tree:"

Have you ever heard of the Sugar Plum Tree?
'Tis a marvel of great renown.
It blooms on the shore of the lollipop sea
In the garden of Shut Eye town."

A fountain, marble seats and the brief inscription, "To Eugene Field," complete the memorial.

The principal speaker at the unveiling ceremonies will be Melville E. Stone, counsellor and former general manager of the Associated Press, who brought Eugene Field to Chicago from Denver in 1883, when Stone was associated with Victor Lawson in the publication of the Chicago Daily News. The poet remained with the News until the time of his death, in 1896, conducting a column called "Sharps and Flats."

Two grandchildren of the poet, Jean Field Foster and Robert Field, will pull the cords to unveil the monument, while Slason Thompson, a friend of Field's newspaper days, will preside. The Dutch Lullaby will be sung by Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade and the Rev. William E. Barton also will speak.

The statue was designed by Edward McCartan of New York City. The children of Chicago raised nearly $10,000 of the funds for its erection, the remaining $11,000 being donated from the Ferguson Foundation, which, by its donor's will, is used exclusively to erect statues in Chicago's public places.

Eugene Field was born in St. Louis in 1850, either on Sept. 2 or Sept. 3. The latter date is given in the Field family genealogy as the correct one, though for the greater part of his life the poet observed the former as his birthday.

His mother died when he was six years old, and his youth was spent in the home of his cousin, Miss Mary F. French of Amherst, Mass., years whose happiness he commemorated in his verses, dedicating his "Little Book of Western Verse," the first published volume from his pen.

He began his newspaper career as a paragrapher in St. Louis, spent a short time in St. Joseph, went from there to Kansas City, and then to Denver, where he remained until persuaded by Stone to transfer to Chicago.

His poem, "Little Boy Blue," beginning

The little toy dog is covered with dust
But sturdy and staunch he stands.
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.—

is probably the best known of all his published verses, and, with his lullabies, has made his name a household word in America while the fact that he devoted most of his life to newspaper work, and that most of his published verse originally appeared in his newspaper column in Chicago, Denver and other cities has been forgotten by many.

How I Put On New Firm Flesh

Startling Proof That Mastin's Vitamon Quickly Rounds Out Face and Figure, Beautifies Skin and Gives New Energy to Thin, Nervous, Run-down Folks

"If it hadn't been for the scales and the mirror, the compliments of my friends and the increased admiration I received—to say nothing of a wonderful inside feeling of strangely new energy—I never could have believed that so great a change could take place in such an amazingly short space of time. Yet, happen it did, and from a thin, gaunt, angular woman with mottled, ugly skin and nerves always on edge, I can today walk forth with pride, whether it be in the ballroom or on the bathing beach. I cannot fail to see the looks of admiration that are constantly turned in my direction—I am never without a partner for a dance.

Men outdo themselves to offer me a seat in cars or public places and at the beach there are always plenty who want to teach me how to swim. Yet I am perfectly sure that almost any of the thin, run-down, careworn-looking girls and women whom I have seen turn envious glances in my direction might easily make just as great a gain as I in rounding out the face and figure, beautifying the skin and improving the general physical condition by simply trying the same easy, economical plan which did so much for me.

It was due to the urging of one of my friends (an elderly woman who looked much younger than her actual age) that I first started taking MASTIN'S Vitamon. Results were evident after only a few days—but these seemed as nothing compared to the truly startling proof that MASTIN'S Vitamon gave later on. What a marvelous builder of health and beauty! I cannot say enough in its favor, and only one like myself who has actually experienced its benefits in her own case can form any idea of its value for every woman in the land."

The above case is but one of many which show beyond all doubt how MASTIN'S Vitamon is taking the country by storm. Men and women everywhere have made the test with MASTIN'S and have found the firm flesh, the strong nerve force, the rich, red blood, the clear skin and added energy for which they are seeking so that today MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets are recommended by physicians, used by millions and endorsed by druggists. Because of the rare combination of marvelous vitalizing elements in MASTIN'S Vitamon the results produced are often so quick and wonderful as to seem almost like magic.

If you want a graceful, shapely figure, beautiful complexion and the "pep" and glow of perfect health, go to any drug store today and get a package of MASTIN'S. Simply take two tablets with each meal for a short time and watch results. It is not only a question of how much better you look and feel, or what your friends say and think—the scales and tape measure will tell their own story. Start the test today.

You can get MASTIN'S Vitamon at all good druggists such as All Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Pabley's, Wolff-Wilson and Huger's.

WHY PILES SHOULD BE CURED

Piles do not appear suddenly, but creep upon the unsuspecting victim like an assassin at midnight. Often before one has any suspicion of its presence, the disease has gained great headway in the system. One symptom after another appears—they may at first be slight, but nevertheless they pave the way for Piles and a life of almost endless misery. Frequently even the slightest change from the normal mode of living opens wide the system to the inroads of this treacherous disease.

If you are sedentary in your habits—if you do not take sufficient exercise to keep every portion of the body in proper working order—if you are accustomed to late hours and high living—if your bowels do not move regularly every day—or if you are afflicted with Indigestion or Dyspepsia—any one of these is sufficient to cause and promote the growth of Piles.

Whether from one cause or another, the outcome is sure and unalterable, unless the Piles are quickly cured. If you now have Piles, and allow them to continue their treacherous course without interruption—and unless a cure is quickly effected, they will quite likely develop into Incurable Diseases, such as Ulceration of the Bowels, Cancer and Consumption,—any one of which is extremely dangerous.

DR. HENRICH'S TREATMENT FOR PILES

Is entirely different from any of the so-called "Pile Cures" which make their appearance from time to time. Invariably these lotions, salves, suppositories, etc., are for external application only, and in some instances they will relieve the pain and suffering for the time being, but the Pile Tumors are still there—the pain will reappear as soon as the effects of the application gradually wear away. Piles Can Be Cured permanently only by my Mild Medical Method, a Direct Treatment, which removes every Pile Tumor from the system by going to the root of the disease. I always obtain prompt and satisfactory results, because my searching examination brings to light the nature and extent of the trouble. My experience in Curing Piles and other Rectal Diseases extends over a long period. My facilities are of the best and my Treatment is most perfect. So remember that "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure."

My charges are very reasonable and in reach of any working man or woman. I especially invite those men or women who have been treated without results elsewhere, to call and be examined. Examination and Advice is FREE and carries with it no obligation to engage my services. Call as soon as possible, any day except Sunday.

Rich English Woman Comes to America

Spends Thousands in Search of Health

Coming all the way from England in search of better health, she was given up to die. Accidentally a circular describing the American intestinal antiseptic ADLERIKA was given her. She decided to try it. Her health improved immediately and she became so well that she was able to return to England STRONGER and in better condition than her husband who had taken care of her.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington, and other leading druggists.

TOO MUCH MEAT HURTS KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so that they no longer irritate, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and other organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

GIRLS' WEEK TO OPEN WITH DOWNTOWN PARADE SATURDAY

Several Organizations Will Have Floats Illustrating Their Activities for Girls.

"Girls' week" will begin next Saturday afternoon with a downtown street parade. Many of the organizations co-operating with the Board of Religious Organizations in the program will have floats illustrating their activities for girls. The parade will be viewed by Mayor Kiel and representatives of the organizations interested from a stand in front of the Hotel Jefferson.

Monday, Oct. 16, will be devoted to exhibition of girls' work at the Young Women's Christian Association. The agencies to be represented will include the Girl Reserves, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Girls' Friendly Society of the Episcopal Churches and the Girls' Club of Christ Church Cathedral. The speaker of the evening will be Miss Lily Ernst, Assistant Superintendent of Schools. The exhibition will be free to the public.

A pageant will be given Friday evening, Oct. 20, at the Odeon, under the auspices of the Baptist Unit of the Board of Religious Organizations. More than 600 girls will take part.

OLD AND NEW STAMPS SHOWN IN ART ROOM AT LIBRARY

Exhibit Lent by St. Louis Collectors' Society to Remain Until Next Sunday.

An exhibit of rare postage stamps lent by the St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society, which will remain in the art room of the Public Library until next Sunday, includes examples of the new and the old.

The old is represented by an old St. Louis issue known as the "Bear Stamp," from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Diamant. For the new there are air mail stamps of various governments, belonging to Mrs. Frank W. Woolrych, and an exhibit of Bolshevik and Maygar issues and of Austrian stamps overprinted for use in Carinthia, lent by Henry Lack. Rare stamps of the United States and European countries are included, as well as issues from remote lands whose very names have an exotic tang. Many of the stamps have not been shown in previous exhibits at the Public Library. Incidentally, they demonstrate methods of mounting.

Biblical Oratorical Contest.

A Biblical oratorical contest will be held at the meeting of the Central W. C. T. U. in St. John's Methodist Church, tomorrow afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. L. H. Bowerman, superintendent of the medal contest department. Six members of the organization will give chapters and other selections from the Bible in the contest. The male quartet of Xenia Seminary will sing.

NAVY DEPARTMENT HAS RADIO STATION FOR RENT

Complete With Transmitting and Receiving Equipment Having Range of 300 Miles.

The Navy Department is offering its Radio Station at Miami Beach, Fla., for lease to the highest bidder, pending the enactment of legislation authorizing its sale. Bids will be opened at the Central Sales Office, Navy Yard, Washington, Oct. 17, 1922. N G E, the station, is completely equipped, and, on 1620 meters, has a radius of about 300 miles.

The site comprises 13,650 square feet on Miami Beach, and includes an operating building, bungalow, storehouse, steel antenna towers and complete radio equipment. The operating building is built of terra cotta faced with stucco, contains machinery, operating, store and wash rooms, and an office built in 1921. The operating room is modern, being sound proof and copper-screened on all sides. The bungalow contains six living and sleeping rooms, suitable as quarters and fully equipped for the radio men of the station.

Two steel towers, 210 feet high, support the large "L" type and shorter "T" type aerials, both of which are said to be in good condition.

The equipment includes a rotary spark gap transmitter, generators, motor generators, switchboards, transformers, protective devices, condensers, loading coils, instruments, tools and batteries; even clocks and typewriters.

Bidders, who are required to be of the Caucasian race, must make an offer of a yearly rental, not to exceed five years, and forward three months rental in advance, the successful bidder furnishing a $25,000 bond to the Navy.

SIGNAL CORPS SET ESTABLISHES 2700-MILE SENDING RECORD

Apparatus Designed to Work Under 100 Miles Accomplishes the Unexpected in Pacific Coast Test.

In testing out the radius of one of its standard radio telegraph sets designated as S C R-79-A, the Signal Corps has established a new record of transmission between 1175 and 2700 miles.

A 79 set was temporarily installed in the headquarters of the Ninth Corps Area, San Francisco, with the call W Y C H, and communication was undertaken with army transports on the Pacific. On one occasion the Sherman reported as hearing the signals from W Y C H while she was 700 miles west of Honolulu, a distance of approximately 2700 miles. Other signals were exchanged between the Signal Corps station and the Buford over a distance of 1550 miles, and with the Sherman again when she was 1486 miles away.

This record is considered very remarkable for a set designed for under 100 miles, although communication was not maintained for any length of time and interference was at a minimum.

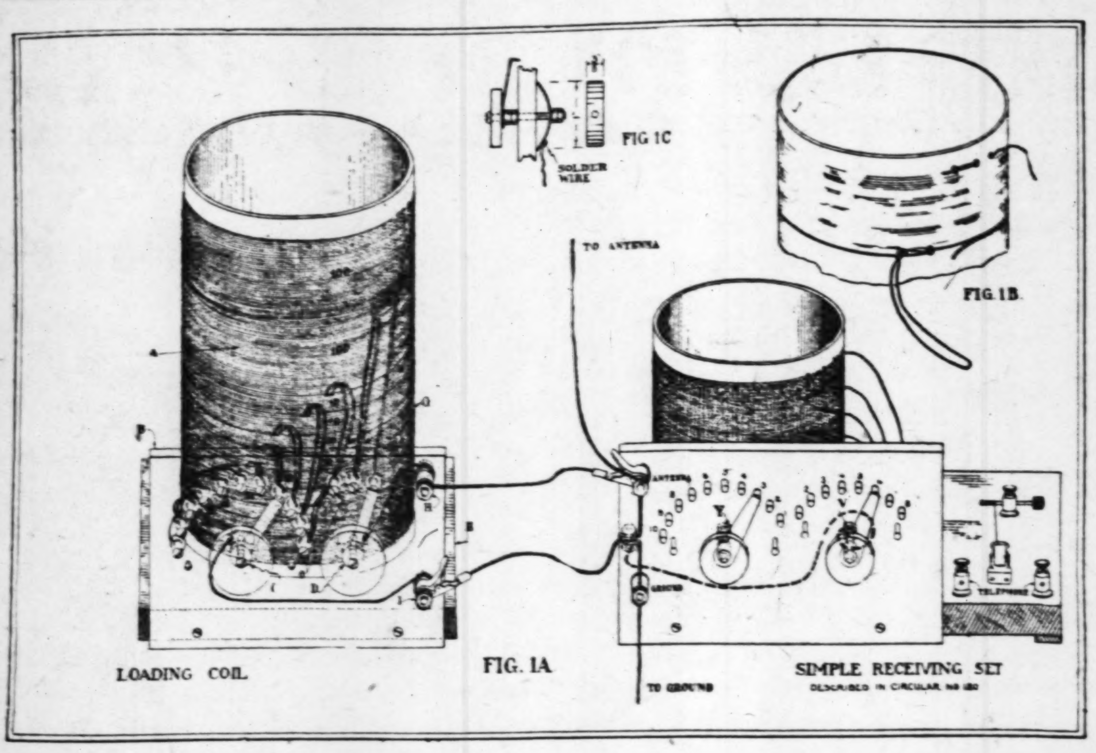
Diagram Prepared by the U. S. Bureau of Standards for the Construction of a Loading Coil for Use With Receiving Sets



How to Make a Loading Coil to Be Used With Homemade Radio Receiving Sets

Complete Details for Constructing a Coil Which Will Enable Receiving Apparatus to Respond to Longer Waves.

A loading coil is simply a coil of wire connected to the rest of the receiving equipment in such a manner that a variable number of its turns are included in the circuit between the antenna and the ground connection. When longer wave lengths are received, more turns are used on the coil.

The loading coil is shown at A in Figure 1A, and consists of 300 turns (about 5 ounces) of No. 28 double-cotton-covered copper wire wound on a round cardboard box 5 3-8 inches in diameter by about 8 inches long. An oatmeal box is used for the cardboard tube with the cardboard cover glued to one end. Certain of the turns are provided with taps which are connected to switch contacts so that the number of turns included in the circuit can be varied. One end of the wire is fastened at the closed end of the tube by weaving it through two holes ½ inch apart and ¾ inch from the end. The free end of the wire projects about 10 inches. The wire is wound on the tube in a single layer so that the turns lie closely and evenly together. When 10 turns have been wound, a 10-inch tap is taken off. The method of winding and also one method of taking off the taps has been explained in circular No. 120. Instead of using the simpler method of taking off taps as described in circular No. 120, a somewhat more difficult and correspondingly more satisfactory method is used on this loading coil. After the given number of turns of wire have been wound on the tube, a hole is punched through the tube just underneath the last turn and, by using a small blunt tool or stick, a 10-inch loop of the wire is pushed through this hole. A second hole is punched through the tube about ½ inch farther along the circumference and the loop pushed through this hole to the outside of the tube again. The loop may or may not be twisted as it emerges from the second hole. See Fig. 1B. When 10 more turns have been wound, another tap is taken off in the same manner. The arrangement of these taps is shown in the left half of Fig. 1A. It will be noticed that there are 13 tops on the completed coil, counting the two ends of the wire at the start and finish. Each tap is slightly offset from the preceding one, so that the line of completed taps progresses about half way around the coil, as indicated in Fig1A. After the wire is wound on the cardboard tube or oatmeal box it is placed in a warm oven to drive off the absorbed moisture. After the tube has dried for some time, and while still warm, melted paraffin is brushed over the tube, inside and out. The paraffined tube is put back in the oven for a few minutes in order to more thoroughly impregnate the tube.

The switch panel B is made from a piece of dry wood about 7 inches long, 4½ inches wide and ½ inch thick. Its general construction is similar to the switch panels described in circulars Nos. 120 and 121. The two switch arms, C and D, which are used with this panel have also been described in Circular No. 120. Having drilled the holes for the two switch arm bolts, the switch arms are placed in position and the knobs rotated in such a manner that the ends of the contact arms describe arcs upon which the contact points are to be placed. The holes for the switch contact bolts are then drilled; the spacing between contacts depending upon the width of the end of the switch arms, as well as upon the kind of contacts which are used. For the switch arm C there are 11 contacts and for the switch arm D, 3, as shown. The wood base E is a block of wood about 7 inches square and ¾ inch thick.

Assembly and Wiring.

Before any of the parts are assembled the base and panel are treated with paraffin as described in Circular No. 120 or they may be thoroughly dried and coated with a good grade of varnish which will not absorb moisture. Shellac is not used. The panel B is fastened to the base E and the coil A is placed in position so that the row of taps faces the rear of the panel. The coil is fastened in this position by small wood screws passing through the cardboard end, each screw being provided with a washer. The two switch arms with the necessary contact bolts are placed in position on the panel. A wire connection is made between switch arm D and binding post H and between switch arm C and binding post I, as explained in circular No. 120, or a spring washer is slipped over each switch-arm bolt at the rear of the panel and the wires soldered to these. (See Fig. 1C.) The several taps from the coil are cut off to a length sufficient to reach from the coil to the contacts. The insulation is scraped from the ends of the wires and the ends of the double taps twisted together below the point G, Fig. 1A. The taps are fastened between the nuts and washers of the proper contact bolts as shown in the left half of Fig. 1A, or preferably soldered.

This loading coil is used in connection with the receiving set described in Circular No. 120. The method of making the connections is shown in Fig. 1A. A 10-inch copper wire with a battery clip at one end is fastened to the binding post H with the clip attached to the receiving set binding post marked "antenna." The wire originally leading from the back of the "antenna" binding post was connected to the back of the switch arm bolt V. This wire is removed from the back of the "antenna" binding post and attached to a new bolt or binding post fastened to the baseboard of the simple receiving set. This bolt or binding post is located just at the rear of the receiving set binding post marked "ground." A 10-inch piece of copper wire is attached to this new bolt or binding post with a battery clip attached at the end toward the loading coil binding post I. The wire leading from the crystal to the rear of the "antenna" binding post, as described in Circular 120, remains as it was. If this wire was originally connected directly to the switch-arm bolt V it is removed and connected to the rear of the "antenna" binding post. All other wiring is as described in Circular No. 120.

Method of Operating.

The wire leading to the antenna is connected to the binding post marked "antenna" and the wire leading to the ground is connected to the binding post marked "ground" as before. In order to receive messages transmitted at wave frequencies between 500 and 1500 kilocycles per second (wave lengths between 200 and 600 meters) the switch arms C and D on the loading coil panel are both set on the contacts marked O. When receiving at the shorter waves (200 to 600 meters), it is better to remove the battery clip from the "antenna" binding post and put the clip previously attached to I in its place, that is, attach the wire from the new binding post to the "antenna" binding post. The loading coil is thus entirely disconnected from the receiving set and should be removed some distance from it. The operation of the receiving set is then exactly the same as described in Circular No. 120. In order to receive messages transmitted at wave frequencies less than 500 kilocycles per second (wave lengths over 600 meters) the loading coil is again connected as shown in Fig. 1A and the switches on the loading coil panel are adjusted so that the proper number of turns is included in the circuit. The switches on the panel of the original receiving set are set so that they include all of the wire on the coil (i. e., set switch arm Y on contact point 10 and switch arm V on contact point 8, Fig. 1A. See also Fig. 3, p. 10, Circular No. 120.) The switch D on the loading coil panel is set to the extreme left on contact O, and the switch arm C is rotated slowly over its entire range. If signals are not heard, the switch arm D is set on the next contact to the right and the switch arm C is again rotated over all of its contacts. If the signals are still not heard the switch arm D is placed on the contact to the extreme right and the switch C again rotated over its contacts. When the transmitting station is heard, the signals may be improved by adjusting the right-hand switch arm V of the original receiving set and the same time changing slightly the setting of the switch on the left.

Labor News Broadcasted.

Secretary of Labor Davis started broadcasting on Oct. 2 for the Department of Labor through the naval air station at Anacostia, N O F. The service will be for three 15-minute periods each week, from 7:15 to 7:30 every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The Secretary in his first broadcast presented a short exposition of what the Department of Labor can do and is doing for American wage-earners. A definite program will be announced later.

RADIO AIDS EXPANSION OF FOREIGN TRADE

Uncle Sam Makes First Practical Application of Wireless to Business.

Uncle Sam's "sell it by air" plan, the first practical application of broadcasting to business, is developing rapidly, Department of Commerce officials announced today. Following the broadcasting from Boston of the department's trade opportunities throughout New England, many Chambers of Commerce in the country have asked for similar service for their broadcasting stations. Several of the high-powered radio stations have offered their services to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce for this new and unique method of making public trade opportunities in foreign lands.

The Ridgewood (L. I.) Times broadcasting station is anxious to serve the territory around New York. Another station, W F O, at Dayton, O., desires to receive information on the world's markets that it may be broadcasted to the exporters in the Miami Valley. A station at St. Louis has already begun to broadcast foreign trade notes to 10,000,000 fans, and the Chamber of Commerce at Buffalo wants the data for use in two of its local stations.

It is understood that the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington is considering sending weekly data to other localities, where it will be distributed by radio to interested manufacturers and exporters.

When Using a Loud Speaker.

Never use more amplification than is necessary.

Remember that clearness is as important as volume.

An operator should not force the loud speaker to the limit.

Overloading the plates of the amplifier tubes is unnecessary.

Keep the tube and socket contacts free from dirt and dust.

Do not expect the loud speaker to do the work of a one-step amplifier.

To Prevent Interference.

Amateurs who operate sets for receiving should tune and stop their bulbs from oscillating as quickly as possible, as they may interfere with their neighbor's entertainment.

Constructing a Regenerative Set.

In making a regenerative set employing two variometers and a vario-coupler, be careful not to get the instruments too close together. If they are, the set will howl. A set of this type should be mounted on a box not less than 16 inches long.

Safety First.

For a home-made storage battery mix a solution of 2 per cent sulphuric acid and 80 per cent water. Do not make the mistake of pouring the water into the acid. That would be disastrous. Pour the acid into the water. Water, when poured into sulphuric acid, develops a high temperature.

RADIO EXPERT SOLVES MYSTERY OF FIRES

Buildings Located Under Antenna at Annapolis Absorbed Enough Energy to Overheat.

What caused the roof of one of the buildings of the navy's farm at Greenberry Point, near Annapolis, to catch fire repeatedly, was a mystery, the solution of which required the services of a radio expert.

After three or four small conflagrations broke out on the roof of a wooden building used to house hogs, an inspection of the shingled roof revealed the fact that the wood around many of the nails was charred. In other places, where the wooden timbers came in contact with the ironwork, charred and burn places were also discovered, but the fire fighters of Annapolis were unable to determine the cause.

When an officer of the great radio station, which incidentally is the most powerful in this country, heard of the fires, he decided to take a 'look see.' His inspection revealed the fact that many of the iron shingle nails were actually hot, and that the iron members of the structure were as warm as if they were connected with a heating system. Sitting on the roof, the "Radio Detective" pondered, and, looking aloft observed that the great aerials of the station stretched directly over the building.

Hair-Raising Situations and Hot Feet

Immediately he recalled how the hair of the radio operators in certain stations was frequently known to stand on end without any causative fear on the part of the operator. He also remembered hearing that radio men sometimes suffered from hot feet while on duty, and cases where the nails in such men's shoes had all but melted, necessitating that they eliminate the iron nails or substitute rubber soles.

The "hair-raising" instance was due to statisc electricity induced by nearby antenna leads charged with high potential. The iron nails in the shoes of operators, who stood on ungrounded metal floors or over iron plates, got hot like tranformer plates, because of currents inducod in the metal by overhead loading coils. Mathematically combining two and two, the radio officer had the voltage of the sending aerials reduced, proving his theory when the fires on the farm building roof ceased.

It was an unusual case and one not likely to occur anywhere in this country, or at Annapolis again, for that matter. This transmission station, which is 10 times as powerful as NAA at Arlington, is a 500-K. W. station, with fully 300 amperes in the antenna when sending. The aerials form a giant gridiron, approximately a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide, held aloft by six 600-foot towers. Its power is indicated by its radius of transmission on 17,170 meters, which is 6000 miles; messages reaching beyond the Red Sea, even in the summer. When transmitting at full power, a tremendous electric field is set up and any iron masses below or in close proximity with the antenna grid are affected electrically.

That fires are never caused by radio is often stated, and it is true; the case cited being an exception due to the fact that the transmitting voltage in the wires was very high, higher than any other station on the continent, and because the wires stretched directly over the farm building. There is no fire danger whatever in the proximity of ordinary transmitting stations.

Bids on Navy Radio Sets.

The opening of bids by the navy revealed the fact that 47 firms and individuals were interested in the 395 radio sets offered for sale recently. The highest bid received was on Sept. 28, $206 per set, but the awards will not be made until late in the week, it was announced.

YMCA SCHOOL OFFERS COMPLETE COURSE IN RADIO INSTRUCTION

Courses in Theory and Code Practice Will Start the Week of Oct. 9.

With the beginning of the fall season and the increasing interest in radio communication, the demand for instruction in radio has resulted in the organization of new classes in the Y. M. C. A. schools; a class in theory for the amateur or person expecting to purchase a receiving set; a class in code practice for advanced students who desire to take the examination for Government license, and a class in construction for persons who wish to build their own radio sets.

These courses are the outgrowth of the first course offered by the Y. M. C. A. in radio last spring, when 48 students registered for a general course in theory and code practice. Complete euipment will be provided for each student in the code class; instruction will be given in the same manner as in the United States Navy Radio School, each student being furnished with receiving and sending equipment for practice work. In the construction class each student will be furnished with all the separate parts which go into the construction of a vacuum tube receiving outfit. Instruction will be by the practical laboratory method. Equipment is provided for drilling, soldering and connecting coils. Apparatus will be mounted on standard panels

Arrangements are being made by some of the large supply houses to offer vacuum tubes, head phones and other valuable equipment to students who construct the best outfits. Announcements regarding these special offers will be made later.

A complete sending and transmitting set for telegraphy and telephony will be constructed by the advanced class in radio during the fall and winter term.

Application for registration may be made by the Y. M. C. A. schools, Seventh and Locust streets.

INCREASE IN CIRCULATION OF GOVERNMENT RADIO MAGAZINE

Bulletin of Interest to All "Fans" Has Become Popular in Past Year Due to Broadcasting.

The circulation of the Radio Service Bulletin, published monthly by the radio section of the Department of Commerce, has a circulation of 11,000. This bulletin, which was first issued in 1915 and struggled along with a few amateur radio telegraph subscribers, increased its circulation by leaps and bounds after broadcasting started just a year ago. In September, 1921, there were only 3000 subscribers to this official organ of the Government, but today there are nearly four times that number. Information of Government radio activities, issuance of licenses, call letters, etc., appear in each issue, as well as corrections and data of interest to radio enthusiasts throughout the country. Subscriptions may be filed with the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D. C., for 25 cents a year.

Questions From Radio Fans Are Answered by Expert

Q. Would a loop aerial, say five feet square, be as good as a two-wire antenna 70 feet long? (W. R. L.)

Ans. An outdoor aerial cannot be replaced with a loop and obtain the same results without the addition of two stages of radio-frequency amplification. Under some conditions two stages of audio-frequency are also necessary for satisfactory results.

Q. I am using the single circuit described in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch. My aerial is about 115 feet long, 12 feet high at one end and 25 feet high at the other. I hear St. Louis stations but cannot hear any stations outside of the city. What is my trouble? (J. C.)

Ans. It is hardly possible to obtain satisfactory results using an aerial as low as yours. We suggest raising it 15 feet at each end and adding one or two steps of audio-frequency amplification, assuming, of course, you employ a vacuum tube as a detector.

Q. My receiving set consists of a vario-coupler and two variometers. How can I "load" it so as to make it respond to 3000 meters? (J. G.)

Ans. If you desire a variable wavelength range of from 200 to 3000 meters, we strongly advise the use of honeycomb or duo-lateral wound coils which may be plugged in for different wave lengths. This will give you far more efficiency than trying to load a vario-coupler.

Q. At what number of turns should a coil be tapped? (J. G.)

Ans. In winding a loading coil, the usual procedure is to tap every 10 turns. The primary coil for a vario-coupler, or loose coupler, is tapped every single turn for the first 10 and every 10 thereafter.

Q. Should a loading coil be attached to the vario coupler? (J. G.)

Ans. The loading coil need not be in inductive relation to any other instrument.

Q. What is the right capacity for an antenna condenser? (J. G.)

Ans. .001 (43 plates) will give best results.

Q. Please tell me whether "meters" mean so much distance or something else. How far can I receive with a vario-coupler? (C. D.)

Ans. Wave length and meters have nothing to do with the receiving range of a set. The distance a set will receive is entirely dependent on the kind of detector, circuit used, ground connection and the height and length of aerial used and the power of the transmitting station.

Q. Is it dangerous to ground the antenna to the water pipe in a building? (J. R. P.)

Ans. The Underwriters require that a separate outside earth connection be used for grounding the aerial. The ground wire should be direct and short as possible.

Radiograms.

The islands of Japan are to be connected by radio telephone communication.

In the American navy it takes, on an average, two years' time to develop a qualified naval operator from a raw recruit.

Every battalion of artillery, cavalry and infantry in the United States army is equipped with a portable wireless set, which is able to send and receive wireless telegraph dispatches and telephone messages.

By means of radio it is said that storms originating on the southeastern coast of the United States can be followed every foot of their progress up the gulf or coast. Forecasts can be sent in advance to the sections of the country which the storms will touch.

The world's series baseball games are to be sent by the W G Y radio broadcasting station at Schenectady, N. Y. Direct wires will be connected with the ball grounds, and the story of the game will be flashed to the radio and relayed to the wireless audience almost the same instant the action occurs.

Lining Up for Best Results.

To get the maximum results from a radio set, connect the apparatus on the table exactly as per circular of instructions. All of the instruments which comprise the set are purchased separately, and fastened down permanently on a board big enough to accommodate everything without crowding. It is well, in fact, to space the various units a fair distance apart, so that they will not react on one another and affect results.

Radio Exports Total $385,861 for July.

Radio equipment exports from this country during July were valued at $385,861 and totaled 225,475 pounds in bulk. Most of the apparatus went to England, where $139,027 worth was forwarded. Cuba was second, importing $42,415 worth during the month from the United States.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Homemade

Here's an Easy Way to Save $2 and Yet Have the Best Cough Remedy You Ever Tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this homemade remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggists for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TOPICS OF INTEREST IN GERMAN CAPITAL

Women of Rank Forced to Work—Criminologists Blame War for Crime Waves.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 7.—The fight for a living has driven an increasing number of German women of rank into the world as bread winners. In the face of the winters' first chilly blasts, many women, who formerly were hostesses at Berlin's brilliant social functions, are seeking shelter behind the doors of employment organizations able to furnish them with odd jobs.

A varied assortment appears every morning in the headquarters established by the Housewives' Association of Greater Berlin. This association aims to provide the needy of the middle classes with employment. The ordinary burgher's wife, who though uneducated is an expert needle woman, may be seen side by side with the professors' wives or a countess. The association examines the applicants regarding their certain kinds of work. It gives examination free if required. It supplies home work, such as sewing and embroidering. The products are sold at the association's sales rooms, the buyer never learning the identity of the actual producer.

Colonel's Wife Would Be Maid.

Private labor exchanges are unable to conceal the former social status of their would-be employes. A Major's wife recently applied to the exchange for a housemaid. The willing candidate appeared, but was rejected because she was found to be the wife of a Colonel. The Major saw the applicant and thought that it might cause her embarrassment and explained to the exchange officials that it was impossible for him to engage her.

Investigators declare that the German exchange rate has caused ruin for the middle classes. This stratum of society, some social workers say, must either join the proletariat or die out. Many, who through inheritance of lifetime savings, had acquired what was regarded as a comfortable fortune, now find themselves virtually penniless because the currency is worth only 1-500th of its former value.

A large property exchange is conducted by the housewives' association. Scores of the middle classes sacrifice every day some treasured household article in order to meet their rent, gas or other domestic bills.

War Blamed for Crime Wave.

Criminologists maintain here that the war is responsible for the bulk of the crime wave which has swept Germany during the past few years. They brand the army as the "high school of the lawbreaker and the academy of the liar."

The criminologists explain that during war an unusually large number of men are mobilized under the colors and that these become accustomed to a mode of living in which comeraderie is encouraged and the appropriation of the other men's effects, such as mess kits and clothes excused.

Militarism, the experts declare, has also developed the hostile depression which is now spending itself on civil society. It is claimed that the difficulty with the Leipsic tribunals which tried several war cases and are now trying the alleged assassins of Former German Foreign Minister Rathenau, is found in the spirit of soldiers. The spirit instills into individuals a stubborn opposition to the betrayal of their fellows in crime.

DR. COFFEE SAYS:

If You Suffer With Deafness, Head Noises or Catarrh You Can Probably Find Relief by His New Treatment. Here Wednesday and Thursday.

We call attention of our readers to Dr. W. O. Coffee, one of the most widely known specialists in this country. If you suffer with partial deafness or head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat, system or diseased tonsils or diseases turbinated he has a special method of treating these diseases without a surgical operation. He has been using his nonsurgical method for over 25 years, treated over 20,000 cases of catarrh, catarrhal deafness and head noises, especially cases where the hearing is quite bad in one ear and just getting started in the other, that grow worse with each cold, that have crackling or other kind of noises in the ears and that come from catarrhal conditions. He says most of these cases can be materially benefited or completely relieved. He has treated over 1000 cases in his St. Louis offices. He treats over 50 patients a day and making many remarkable restorations of hearing. He says catarrh is a constitutional condition and has to be treated through the system and blood as well as the nose and throat, but each case should be curable. J. R. Meyer, East St. Louis, Ill., had catarrh, deafness and head noises 20 years; completely relieved. Mrs. Minnie Schierer, 3210 Pestalozzi street; almost totally deaf, suffered 48 years; hearing being rapidly restored. J. W. Proctor, 3120 Whittier street, almost totally deaf in one ear 26 years, hearing restored almost normal. J. C. Patterson, Elmer, Mo., 86 years old, suffered with catarrh, deafness and head noises eight years, completely relieved. If you suffer with deafness, head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system he will examine your case, tell you what the condition is, whether you can be benefited by his method and explain his treatment. He will do all this free of charge. He wants to talk to and examine every person with catarrhal deafness or head noises and especially catarrh. He has published several booklets and pamphlets on his treatment of catarrh, deafness, head noises, eye diseases and cross-eyes. If you cannot see him in St. Louis, write him describing your case. He will send you the booklets free. He says many people suffer with stomach troubles and neuritis, caused from catarrh. He has established permanent offices in St. Louis, rooms 408-9 Odd Fellows Bldg., 816 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo. He is in these offices every Wednesday and Thursday. Office hours, 9:30 to 4:30. He will treat no patients outside of these hours. He is absolutely responsible; devoted 39 years to this specialty and over 25 years to his special non-surgical treatment. If you suffer you need not hesitate to consult with him any Wednesday or Thursday.

CHURCH REPORT DISCUSSES BENEFITS OF PROHIBITION

Five Months' Survey Shows It is Better at Worst Than License, Conference is Told.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, Ill., Oct. 7.—Prohibition at its worst is better than license at its best, declared Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church in reporting today a five months' survey by that board of conditions in Chicago. It was made to the Rock River Methodist conference.

Secretary Wilson said that Chicago was selected for this study "because it was desired to uncover prohibition at its worst." The committee compared wet and dry years in their relation to crime welfare and relief, health, thrift and prosperity and general business conditions. In each case, he said, the advantage was shown to exist since the advent of prohibition days.

The report cites statistics of the medical superintendent of the House of Correction who stated that in 1918 345 cases of acute alcoholism were reported and in 1921 this number decreased to 61. Chronic alcoholism cases in 1918 totaled 1614 and dropped to 127 in 1921. Three cases of delirium tremens were reported in 1921 as compared with 109 in 1918.

SHOP FOR HOUSES ESTABLISHED

New Orleans Women Have Place Where Materials May Be Priced.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—A place where the prospective home-builder can go shopping for everything in the building of a house, from foundation material to the tiles or shingles for the roof has been established by two young New Orleans women—Miss Frances Campbell and Miss Emma Parker. Their enterprise is one of the firts of its sort in the South, and has been indorsed by all the architects in New Orleans. A number of large contractors have become participants.

"The object," said Miss Parker, who originated the idea here, "is to assemble in one place, where they can be inspected and priced by the man or woman who is going to build a home everything he will need in it. Costs can be reconciled to tastes and selection made with a minimum of time and trouble .You should be able to shop for a house just the way you do for the things that go into it."

FRAMPTON NAMED TO SERVE AS DIRECTOR

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association Tuesday afternoon, R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson and Essex distributers, was elected director of the association, to succeed F. H. Squires, formerly branch manager of the White company, who resigned. Frampton last year held the office of president of the dealers' association.

DODGE BROTHERS
BUSINESS SEDAN

With this car, Dodge Brothers have literally created a new type of sedan.

They have combined open car ruggedness with closed car protection and smartness.

They have demonstrated, once for all, that a sedan can be as practical and almost as inexpensive as an open touring car.

The body is built of hand-welded steel because steel is sturdy, and will take a permanent, oven-baked finish, eliminating forever the cost of repainting.

The seats are upholstered in attractive, genuine Spanish blue leather, because leather will wash and wear.

To further enlarge the car's usefulness, the rear seat, back and side cushions, seat frame and foot rest are quickly removable, giving sixty-four cubic feet of flat loading space in the rear compartment. The manifold uses made possible by this unique feature are readily imagined.

The top and rear quarters are of non-rumble, fabric construction, conforming with the present attractive vogue. From cord tires to curtain cords, the fittings, inside and out, are distinctive and complete.

In fact, every detail of the car emphasizes its striking adaptability to business as well as social use.

The price is $1295 delivered

Eggs come in the original "sealed package"

The hen sends her fruit to you in the original container. No matter when or where you get Eggs you can have them in Nature's own "sealed package."

You should eat Eggs and Butter in plenty the year 'round. They are necessary at any price because they contain nourishment far beyond other foods in proportion to quantity eaten.

You who have heard so much of the need for Vitamines should know that Eggs and Butter supply abundance of that element which is essential for the growth of the young and health of the grown-up.

"Egg yolks are rich in iron, and are valuable sources of vitamines A and B."
Dept. Bulletin 975, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

For the Invalid

Raw eggs beaten up with milk make an ideal form of nourishment. To make a raw egg more palatable, eat it like an oyster, with lemon juice or vinegar.

CANDIDATES ASKED TO STATE TAX VIEWS

Officials of National Automobile Chamber Reaffirm Motor Industry's Opposition.

Reaffirming the continued opposition of the automotive industry to the "discriminatory war excise taxes," C. C. Hanch, chairman of the Taxation Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, has addressed a letter to each nominee for Congress, asking him whether he favors repeal of this legislation.

The communication, which was unanimously approved by the board of directors, points out that Congress itself emphatically indicated its desire to repeal these taxes in the passage of the 1921 law, when the taxes were removed from some articles and reduced on others. "In no case," Mr. Hanch points out, "did Congress increase such taxes or add new ones.

"Apparently Congress believed it of greater importance to relieve musical instruments, sporting goods, chewing gum, thermos bottles, fur articles, picture frames, perfumes, toilet waters and hair dyes than individual transportation. In this belief we do not concur and we feel that the only equitable thing in the interests of fair play and the welfare of all induustry as a whole is to repeal all discriminatory war excise taxes."

The letter is accompanied by a memorandum which shows in graphic form the repeals and reductions made in the tax law of 1921 as against the law of 1918.

In addition to the signature of Mr. Hanch, who is vice president of the Lexington Motor Co., Connersville, Ind., the letter bears the names of the other members of the committee as follows: H. H. Rice, president of the Cadillac Motor Car Co.; J. Walter Drake, chairman of the board of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation; George M. Graham, vice president Chandler Motor Car Co., and F. J. Haynes, president Dodge Brothers. Charles Clifton, president of the chamber, and chairman of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., is also listed as a member ex-officio of the committee, of which Pyke Johnson is secretary.

JORDAN PRODUCTION SHOWS LARGE INCREASE

Jordan Motor Car production figures for the first nine months of this year show an increase of considerably over 100 per cent against the first nine months of last year.

"When you consider that Jordan production last year was only 7 per cent below 1920," said Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co. "you will realize what the 1922 figures really mean.

"1920 was the peak year for everyone in the industry, but as far as Jordan production is concerned, 1922 will run considerably ahead of 1920.

"There is an apparently insatiable demand for closed cars. We are at present devoting over 60 per cent of our total production to the enclosed type.

"A very strong tendency has developed toward the brougham type of body with trunk equipment. This type of car takes care of the average family comfortably. It is easy to handle and is economical. For that reason it has become increasingly popular with women. Practically all manufacturers will list a car of the brougham type among their new enclosed models."

The St. Louis Motor Car Co. distributes the Jordan car in St. Louis.

DAVIS TO DOUBLE 1922 PRODUCTION NEXT YEAR

Production of Davis motor cars for 1923 is to be doubled over 1922, according to announcement just received by J. C. Auffenberg of the Monarch Auto Co., local Davis distributers.

This announcement, which comes from Mr. Walter C. Davis, secretary and sales manager of the Davis company, follows closely upon the issuance of Davis production records for the last four months. Davis production during that time broke all previous records for corresponding months, culimnating in a 200 per cent increase in September over that month in any previous year.

Plans for this expansion have been under way since the increasing popularity of the new Davis line of cars became evident. Numerous additions and improvements have been made in the Davis plant at Richmond, including the erection of a plant to handle the manufacturing of all sheet metal parts. This plant is now completed and in operation.

APPERSON-ST. LOUIS CO. MOVES TO 2814 LOCUST

The Apperson St. Louis Co., a direct factory branch of the Apperson factory of Kokomo, Ind., have moved their sales and service department from 3333 Locust street to 2814 Locust street.

L. F. Jalagena, branch manager, announces that the company's new location would only be a temporary one as arrangements are now being made for a new and larger building.

NEW FRANKLIN SEDAN SHOWS UP WELL IN TEST

A demonstration of the riding, hill-climbing and economical qualities of the new Franklin sedan was given to newspaper men Thursday morning by J. Fenner of the Franklin Automobile Co. of St. Louis.

The demonstration is similar to the one that will be given all prospects this week which has been designated as Sedan week by the Franklin factory. The demonstration consisted of a 48.5 mile jaunt over various kinds of city streets and over the Telegraph, Baumgartner, Le May Ferry, Ringler and Sappington roads. During the trip the car responded at all times, whether going 40 miles per hour over the hills and bumps on the Le May Ferry and Ringler roads, or when throttled down to five miles per hour over city asphalt streets. During the trip the car averaged 19.2 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

Sedan Week will be celebrated this week by all Franklin dealers throughout the United States.

NEW 1923 CHEVROLET MODELS NOW ON DISPLAY

The Chevrolet Motor Co. today announces a complete line of new Chevrolet 1923 superior models ranging from the roadster priced at $510 to the sedan at $860 f. o. b. factory, the prices being the same as were in effect on the old models.

The new models have a streamline body with a much higher hood, which makes the new Chevrolet look considerably larger. Crowned, paneled fenders, vacuum feed and rear gasoline tank are on all the new models. This does away with the necessity of the driver having to get out to fill the gasoline tank on the open models.

Other new features are drum type head lamps. Door-opening curtains on the open models are also an improvement.

All closed models have Fisher bodies with plate glass Terstedt regulated windows, straight side cord tires, sun visor, wind-shield wiper and dash light. The sedanette, a new model to the line, is equipped with auto trunk on rear.

The complete line consists of roadster, touring, coupe, sedanette and sedan. The new models are now being exhibited by the various authorized Chevrolet dealers in St. Louis and adjacent territory.

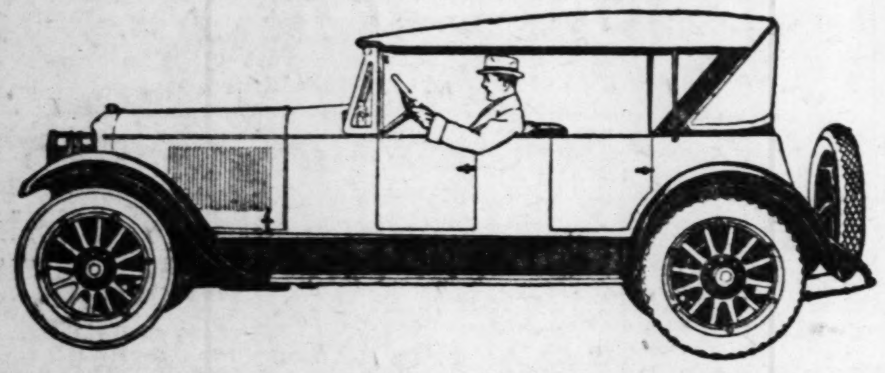
PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America



The True Value of The Champion

A CAR that consistently outdistances any rival on the highway, irrespective of price or make, is surely a car of superb mechanical quality. This championship form is worth even more than the zest of victory in a brush between thoroughbreds, for better still, it is a guarantee of those enduring qualities that mean long life, untroubled mileage and economy of operation.

And there you have the secret of the extraordinary preference being shown for the Paige 6-66 in every corner of the land. The mighty 70-horsepower engine with its amazing speed and irresistible power, has won for the Paige the happy title of Master of the Highway, for here is a car that is always ready to meet all comers and will tackle the stiffest of grades with the utmost confidence.

Other vital features of design unite with this superb power plant. The 131-inch wheel base, the 118 feet of vibrant spring leaf, the perfect balance, the deep upholstering assure the utmost of comfort and ease of riding.

In the New Series 6-66 there are numerous improvements that make this fine car still finer. Examine any 6-66 model, ride in it, compare it with any other car in performance and equipment. Then look at the price-tag and we are content to leave the decision to you.

The complete Paige-Jewett lines of six-cylinder passenger cars offer a selection of thirteen models priced from $995 to $3350. The complete line of Paige trucks meets every haulage need. They are sold and serviced by Paige dealers everywhere.

GRAY ECONOMY CAR TO COMPLETE TRIP MONDAY

The Gray touring car on its economy test run from San Francisco to New York which arrived in St. Louis Monday afternaan and departed again Tuesday morning, is due to complete its trip in New York City some time tomorrow, according to a telegram received yesterday by Milton Strauss of the Anderson-Strauss Co., from F. L. Klingensmith, president of the Gray factory, who is in Philadelphia awaiting the car's arrival there today.

The car upon crossing the St. Charles Bridge Monday afternoon was met by a caravan of 12 Gray cars consisting of Klingensmith, president of the Gray factory; Rex Glasson, advertising manager of the factory; Milton Strauss, employes of the local agency, newspaper representatives and several Gray owners and dealers.

Upon the arrival of the party in the city they were escorted through the downtown streets by a detail of motorcycle police and then taken to the showrooms of the Anderson-Strauss Co., Lindell cutoff and Locust street, where the car was put on exhibition.

During the trip downtown the party was greeted by Mayor Kiel at the City Hall. Mayor Kiel gave Capt. A. B. Walton official observer of the American Automobile Association, a letter to be delivered to Mayor Hylan of New York upon the arival of the car at its terminus.

The car left Frisco on September 18, and had traveled 3387 miles upon its arrival in St. Louis. During its trip from Kansas City to St. Louis it averaged 32.7 miles to a gallon of gasoline.

THREE BROWN STARS SPORTING NEW AUTOS

Although the Browns failed to beat out the Yankees for the pennant by the game, finishing second, there is nothing second-hand about the automobiles that three of their stars have been driving about with during the past week.

Shocker, Williams and Tobin each are sporting a new car.

Shocker is now the possessor of a Jordan Blue Boy, in blue devil blue, purchased by popular subscription, which was presented to him the day before the season closed in St. Louis.

Home-Run Williams last week purchased a new Haynes speedster and is now touring the West, while Tobin has entered the automobile business and can be seen daily spinning around in a new Buick.

Johnny Tobin, the Browns' outfielder, has joined the sales force of the South Side Buick Auto Co., authorized Buick retailer, which recently opened headquarters at 3456 South Grand boulevard.

SAFFORD AND FRAMPTON TO ADDRESS DEALERS

L. A. Safford, vice president of the McQuay-Norris Mfg. Co., and R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. and of the Frampton Co., will be the principal speakers at the regular monthly meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association Tuesday evening at the Claridge Hotel.

Safford will address the dealers on "Why Some Automotive Equipment Dealers Starve to Death," while Frampton will talk on "Why We Went Into the Accessory and Supply Business."

Invitations have been extended tire and battery dealers to attend the meeting. H. H. Fleer, president of the association, will preside.

A Beauty Hint.

A tire that "bellies out" just above the point where it touches the ground should be inflated immediately until it is well rounded.

Distribution of the New F-50
Mitchell in the St. Louis Territory
Has Been Awarded to Brock

Motor Car Company
4416-18-20 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

WE announce with genuine satisfaction to the hundreds of Mitchell owners in St. Louis and vicinity, the appointment of the Brock Motor Car Co. as the distributors of the NEW F-50 Mitchell Motor Car. The Brock Motor Car Co. will render the highest grade of motor car merchandising. Adequate service facilities and a liberal service policy will always be of prime consideration.

The Mitchell company has served the American public since 1834 and the Mitchell car has been in production since 1902. More than 95% of the now famous F-50 Mitchell car is made in the Mitchell factory.

We suggest that you visit the showroom of the Brock Motor Car Co., and not only inspect the new Mitchell Models, but let them be demonstrated on the hills of which St. Louis is justly proud. There is a pleasant surprise awaiting you.

BROCK MOTOR CO. TO DISTRIBUTE MITCHELL

The Brock Motor Car Co., 4416 Olive street, have been appointed distributer for the new Mitchell F-50 cars in St. Louis and adjacent territory, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Mitchell Motors Co., Inc., of Racine, Wis.

The new F-50 Mitchell comes in the class of cars selling for more than $1000 and less than $2000, and is representative in the medium price field.

The appointment of the Brock Motor Car Co., Mitchell executives say, is in keeping with the promotional campaign which has as its object the revivifying of the dealer organization throughout the United States.

The "come-back" of Mitchell is proving one of the sensations of the automobile world. Starting with the creation of the new F-50 model, demonstrations of the new product increased in scope until a great fleet of "White Streaks" were put in operation throughout the country.

Speeding over railroad ties, climbing the steps of public buildings, jumping over curbstones was the regular daily routine of these cars—109 in all.

In conjunction with these factory activities, designed to prove to the public the true merit of the Mitchell, two "White Streaks" were operated 10,000 miles each with the hoods sealed so that adjustments to the motor were impossible. Both completed their tests with perfect scores.

Having now completed a grand total of more than 1,000,000 miles in demonstration work, the Mitchell slogan for the immediate future will be "A Million Miles."

The Brock Motor Car Co. is well known to the motoring public of St. Louis, operating a large and completely equipped sales and service building.

In taking on the Mitchell account, R. H. Brock, president, said: "We are convinced that with the building of the new F-50 the Mitchell Motors Co., Inc., has produced a car of exceptional merit. Public demand has been enormously stimulated through the convincing demonstrations of the 'White Streaks' and sales have increased 100 per cent during the last six months."

Associated with Brock in the sale of Mitchell cars is his brother, Johnny Brock, the former Cardinal and Kansas City catcher, who is in charge of the company's sales.

A demonstration in the form of motion pictures, showing the performance and construction of the new Mitchell will be held at the Brock showrooms on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

GRINHAM AND JOHNSON OPEN CHEVROLET AGENCY

Fred Grinham, formerly of the Chevrolet retail store, and L. L. Johnson, until recently in charge of sales for the Mepham Motor Car Co., have been awarded a Chevrolet agency and have opened temporary quarters at the southwest corner of Ninth and Clark avenues.

The new company, of which Grinham is president and Johnson vice president, is incorporated under the name of the Grinham-Johnson Motor Sales Co. The present location will be occupied until a suitable site for the erection of a new building can be found.

Johnson states that while he and Grinham are the youngest Chevrolet dealers in St. Louis, they can also be classed among the oldest, having been associated in business as Chevrolet dealers back in 1916, when Gardner was at the helm. Since that time Grinham and Johnson have been connected with various Chevrolet retail organizations.

Because of their sluggish action on rough roads, rusty springs will cause damage to the car and tires.

Introducing
Johnny Tobin
Salesman

We are mighty proud to announce that Johnny Tobin, famous right fielder of the famous Browns, has joined the sales force of this organization. We know the many friends of Mr. Tobin will join us in predicting for him a success in selling Buick cars that will be worthy his stellar achievements as one of the best all around ball players that ever wore a St. Louis uniform.

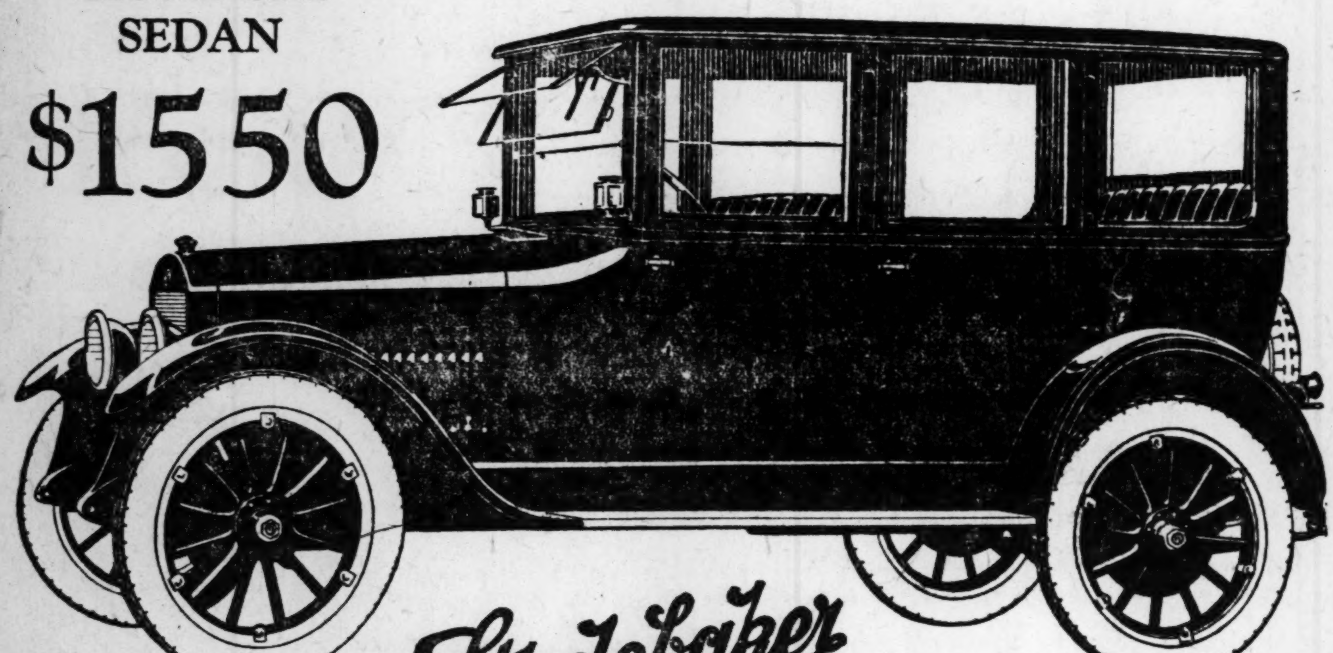
LIGHT-SIX
SEDAN

$1550



Studebaker

Let Us Show You the Difference!

Vibration is destructive. It shortens the life of a car. It takes the pleasure out of riding because it causes rattles, squeaks and other irritating noises.

Vibration is particularly annoying in closed cars.

There is no perceptible period of vibration in the Studebaker Light-Six at any speed. This is due in part to Studebaker's method of machining the crank shaft and connecting rods on all surfaces. No other car, at anywhere near the price, follows this practice.

Lack of vibration and the quiet, smooth-running motor find quick approval from everyone who rides in the Light-Six Sedan.

And every driver is similarly enthusiastic over the way it throttles down to a walking gait in high gear—and the quick response that follows the touch of the accelerator.

Aside from its mechanical excellence, the Light-Six Sedan is notable for its sterling coach work. The substantial body, like the chassis, is built complete in Studebaker plants. Materials and workmanship are of highest grade.

Long, semi-elliptic springs and deep, restful, nine-inch cushions afford genuine comfort. Upholstery is of a rich, mohair velvet plush—good-looking and durable.

Today's price is the lowest at which the Light-Six Sedan has ever been sold. It has no competitor in the amount of value you get for your money.

The name Studebaker on your car is the best protection you can have!

Announcing the 1923 SUPERIOR Models

CHEVROLET

for Economical Transportation

Again Chevrolet Motor Company has emphasized its admitted leadership as producer of the World's Lowest Priced Quality Automobiles.

The 1923 SUPERIOR models, here illustrated, represent the most sensational values in modern, economical transportation ever established.

Quality has been still further improved by more artistic design and added equipment.

Economy has been still further increased by engineering refinements and greatly broadened production and distribution facilities.

Service is ensured by more than 10,000 dealers and service stations operating on a flat rate basis.

Prices remain the same in spite of added equipment and more expensive construction, which have greatly increased the value of these cars.

Some Distinctive Features

Streamline body design with high hood and crowned panelled fenders, vacuum feed and rear gasoline tank on all models; drum type head lamps with legal lenses. Curtains open with doors of open models.

All closed models have Fisher bodies with plate glass Ternstedt regulated windows, straight side cord tires, sun visor, windshield wiper and dash light. The Sedanette is equipped with auto trunk on rear.

See these remarkable cars. Study the specifications.

Invitation to the Public and the Trade—

Everyone interested in economical transportation is invited to call on the nearest Chevrolet dealer, who will be proud and pleased to show these cars.

We are glad to include the automobile trade, business men and bankers because of the important position Chevrolet now occupies in the field of automotive transportation and of economics.

The automobile dealer will wish to see this latest improvement in the line that in less than a year has advanced from seventh to second place in sales of cars because it will vitally affect his business whether he continues handling a competing line or hopes to connect himself with the line that offers the greatest dollar value to the consumer and the greatest opportunity for him.

The business man, considering standardizing on equipment for his representatives, will want to learn how this line reduces transportation costs while reflecting the high character of the house and its product.

The banker will wish to learn how the general public demand for modern transportation can be met with small investment and low-operating costs.

ONE TRUCK TO EVERY FARM IN UNITED STATES

The tremendous growth of motor truck sales and how they are fast replacing the horse on the farms of the country is shown in figures announced by Vance Day, sales manager of the General Motor Truck Co., Pontiac, Mich.

"Today there are 189,169 motor trucks on 131,551 farms in the United States. The farmers of New York lead the country in the number of trucks with 9259 to their credit while Pennsylvania is second with 9072 to their credit, and Iowa is third with 8910. Ohio ranks fourth with 7319."

Other states and the number of trucks owned in that territory follow: Maine, 1120; New Hampshire, 717; Vermont, 616; Massachusetts, 3535; Rhode Island, 536; Connecticut, 1595; New Jersey, 3380; Indiana, 3671; Illinois, 6154; Michigan, 4886; Wisconsin, 4044; Minnesota, 3803; Missouri, 5059; North Dakota, 774; South Dakota, 4353; Nebraska, 6548; Kansas, 3928; Delaware, 304; Maryland, 2805; District of Columbia, 29; Virginia, 2544; West Virginia, 936; North Carolina, 2671; South Carolina, 1736; Georgia, 3145; Florida, 1617; Kentucky, 1538; Tennessee, 1430; Alabama, 1180; Missippi, 1005; Arkansas, 1027; Louisiana, 874; Oklahoma, 2155; Texas, 5399; Montana, 1225; Idaho, 837; Wyoming, 591; Colorado, 3016; New Mexico, 593; Arizona, 581; Utah, 572; Nevada, 174; Washington, 3371; Oregon, 1819; California, 6416.

TWO-YEAR TRIP AROUND WORLD IN BUICK SEDAN

Word has just been received at the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., of what is probably the greatest motor trip ever attempted by a private party. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Jeffries of Columbiana, O., are now on their way around the world in their Buick four-cylinder, five-passenger sedan. The trip will take two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffries are now touring through the Rhine Valley in Europe. They left Columbiana in June, drove to New York and sailed on the 17th, landing in Lisbon, Portugal. Portugal, Spain and France were visited in the order named.

After touring the Rhine Valley they will spend several weeks on the battlefields near Coblenz and then return to Paris. During December they will tour England, Scotland and part of Ireland.

Early in 1923 the party is scheduled to start again on a long tour, visiting Belgium, Netherlands, Denmark, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Italy, Greece, Turkey, Palestine, Egypt, Arabia, and then return to England.

The last stage of the journey, in 1924, will include Indo-China, the Philippines, China, Korea, Japan and Hawaii. They expect to sail from Honolulu on June 15, 1924, and will drive from the west coast to their home in Ohio.

NEW NASH "6" SPORT MODEL NOW ON DISPLAY

The new Nash 6, sport model, in maroon, with a silk mohair top, which was recently announced by the Nash factory, is now being exhibited in the showrooms of the Southwest Nash Motor Co., distributers for Nash cars and trucks in St. Louis territory.

The new sport model is equipped with Biflex bumper front and rear, rear view mirror, windshield wiper, Johnson windshield wings, nickle-plated windshield posts, the windshield is one piece of glass, spotlight, pickel-plated head lamps, cowl lamps and nickel-plated stop and tail lamp. The radiator shell, cowl, ventilator and motormeter are also nickle plated. The new model is equipped with a special running board covering and aluminum step plates with rubber pads.

The car is equipped with six Budd disc wheels, the two spare wheels being mounted on running board at each side in front. The two spare wheels are furnished with extra cord tires and tire covers.

On the rear of body is mounted trunk rack and trunk, the trunk having water-proof cover. On rear of body directly in front of trunk are upright guard bans. All nickle parts are nickled over brass to obviate rusting. The new model sells for $1645 f. o. b. factory.

MAXWELL INCREASES CLOSED CAR PRODUCTION

Further increases in the production of closed car bodies have recently been made by the Maxwell Motor Corporation through added manufacturing facilities recently installed in the company's large body plant in Dayton, O.

In the one year which these closed cars have been on the market the company has been confronted with a demand never fully satisfied, even though production has been several times increased, according to the statement of S. B. Ward of the Ward Motor Co., Maxwell distributer. The recent additions to manufacturing equipment in the Dayton plant now give the Maxwell organization full opportunity to carry out the closed car production schedule to which it has aimed for several months.

REDUCTION ANNOUNCED ON COUPE DE LUXE BODY

A reduction of $51 in price of the new coupe de luxe body for Ford cars, effective immediately, was announced yesterday by the manufacturers, the Coupe De Luxe Body Co. of St. Louis.

The coupe de luxe body, which has sold for $350 since it was introduced several months ago, now sells for $299, f. o. b. factory. The company, which operates two factories in St. Louis, now have their sales and display rooms at 3040 Locust street.

The transmission should not be lubricated with a solid grease, because the gears will merely cut a path in the grease and all parts within the case will not be lubricated.

KOHLER-SPEER TO SELL MAXWELL AND CHALMERS

The Kohler-Speer Motor Co., who several months ago opened new quarters at 5033 Delmar boulevard as retailers of Studebaker cars, have been appointed associated dealer for the Maxwell and Chalmers cars, according to announcement made yesterday by Thomas C. Kaut, vice president of the Ward Motor Co. Inc., distributers for the Maxwell and Chalmers cars in St. Louis and adjacent territory. The company was also recently appointed Hupmobile retailers.

VIRTUES REWARDED BY FRENCH ACADEMY

Merit of Various Sorts Recognized Each Year by Distribution of 2,500,000 Francs.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Among the varied activities of the French Academy is the distribution every year of 2,500,000 francs in awards of merit, not only for literary excellence, but for filial devotion; to compensate the underpaid; for domestic virtue, and to help the needy. The money comes from various foundations, notably those of Baron de Montyou, who died in 1820, and Monsier Cocgnacq, at one time proprietor of a large Paris department store.

The Academy must give yearly to each of 90 families in straitened circumstances the sum of 25,000 francs, but only on condition that the family has nine children. Filial devotion by a person not less than 50 years old is rewarded yearly by 1500 francs, and an equal amount goes to a servant not under 60 years of age who has remained in the employ of the same master more than 20 years, and has received only part of the wages due, or else very small compensation.

Two medals valued at 500 francs each are conferred on persons not less than 60 years of age who are in difficult circumstances. The sum of 5500 francs is to be given yearly to an unmarried woman servant who has served with devotion a family or preferably a maiden lady, in adverse circumstances. Another testator who specified that his or her name was never to be published left 4500 francs a year to be distributed every two years in prizes of 1000 francs each to poor but well reared young women of irregular birth.

The academy also awards literary prizes amounting to nearly 200,000 francs a year. As in the case of the prizes for merit, the first one was founded by Baron de Montyou. His prize of 18,500 francs goes to the most moral book of the year. The literary prizes are fewer and more valuable than those awarded for merit. The largest, after the Montyou, is the Jean-Jacques Berger prize of 15,000 francs, which is awarded every five years for the best work dealing with the city of Paris.

Leonard Hi-Oven Coal Range

Take the "Ake" Out of "Bake"

$59.75

Terms—$1.00 a Week.

AS you see in the picture, the oven is just the right height for convenience—it heats evenly and quickly. Holds its fire overnight, saving the muss and trouble of rekindling. Takes one-third less fuel and one-third less space than low-oven Ranges. See the Leonard—it has many advantages that will appeal to you. An unusual value at $59.75.

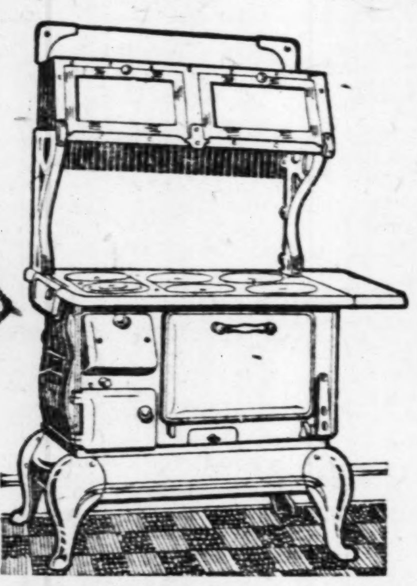
Cast-Iron Range

Holds Its Heat Better Than a Steel Range — Saves Fuel.

$47.50

Terms—$4.00 a Month.

THIS Range is of cast iron throughout—large size with six 7-in. holes, 18-inch oven and high warming closet. Will give long service and perfect satisfaction. A real bargain at $47.50.



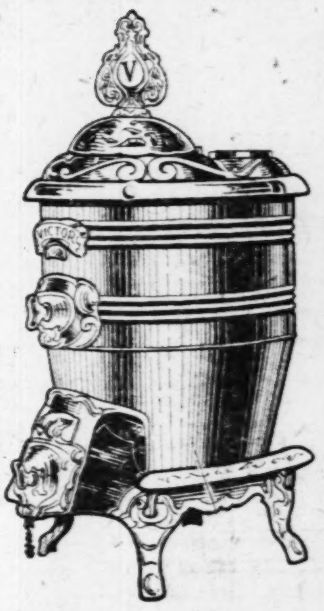
"Victor" Overdraft Heater

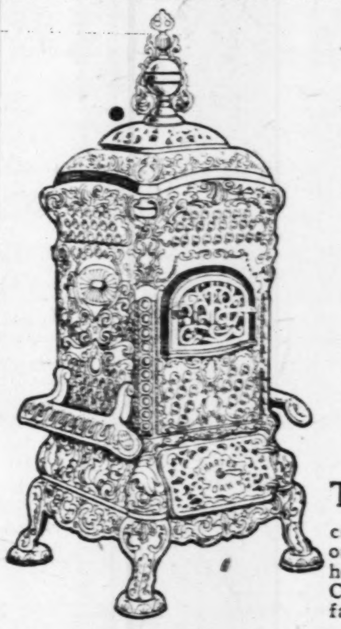
The Most Remarkable Heating Stove Ever Produced.

$27.50

Terms—$2.50 a Month.

NO need to worry about the scarcity of coal if you have a "Victor" Overdraft. It burns soft coal, slack, coke, wood or anything combustible. It consumes the smoke and gasses that usually go up the chimney as waste and will cut your fuel bills way down this Winter. We want you to call and let our salesman explain the patented overdraft construction which makes this the most remarkable heater on the market.





Charter Oak Air-Tight

The Best Product of the Charter Oak Company of This City.

$44.85

Terms—$3.00 a Month.

THESE splendid Heaters are built like a furnace—a stove within a stove so the fire never comes in contact with the outer casting. It is ornamental in design, absolutely air-tight and will hold its fire over night. The fact that this is a Charter Oak is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction. Specially priced at $44.85.

This Blue Enameled Combination Range

SITE PURCHASED FOR $365,000 APARTMENT GROUP

May Building and Investment Co. Buys Southwest Corner of Forest Park Boulevard and Taylor Avenue.

PLANS CALL FOR 18 BUILDINGS

Each Structure to Comprise Four Apartments; Project Being Financed by Anderson-Stocke-Buermann.

By Berry Moore.

The May Building and Investment Co., of which Harry A. Barnett is president, yesterday purchased the southwest corner of Forest Park boulevard and Taylor avenue, and announced plans for the improvement of the site with an apartment group to cost $365,000. The transaction was made by the Weisels-Gerhardt Real Estate Co., in connection with the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Real Estate Co. and is noteworthy as embracing the largest area of West End corners which have recently changed ownership.

The site has 265 feet on Forest Park boulevard, 387 feet on Taylor avenue and 400 feet on Duncan avenue, and was owned by Clara I. and Julia W. Gerhardt. It is one of the few remaining sites within the city limits not restricted against and available for apartment building operations on this scale. The plans contemplate 18 buildings, each comprising four apartments, alternating in three, four and five rooms. The building will be under the management of the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann company, which will finance the project.

One of Series of Notable Sales.

This is one of a series of notable sales of holdings in this locality effected by the Weisels-Gerhart company, including the site of the Jewish Hospital at King's highway and Forest Park boulevard, Parkview place, and that of the Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, facing King's highway, McKinley avenue and Clayton road.

The Hasgall Realty and Investment Company has purchased through the Weisels-Gerhart Company, a lot on the north side of Laclede avenue, 90 feet east of Euclid avenue, as a site for a building to contain six stores, 18x50 feet each, several of which have been leased from the plans. The contract for the construction of the building, which will cost with the ground, $40,000, has been let to B. J. Charleville.

Options on Other Sites.

The Weisels-Gerhart company, recently obtained an option on the northwest corner of West Pine boulevard and Euclid avenue for persons with plans for a six story kitchenette structure, and on the northwest corner of Buckingham court and North court, 220x90 feet for a four-story fire-proof building of four and five rooms each.

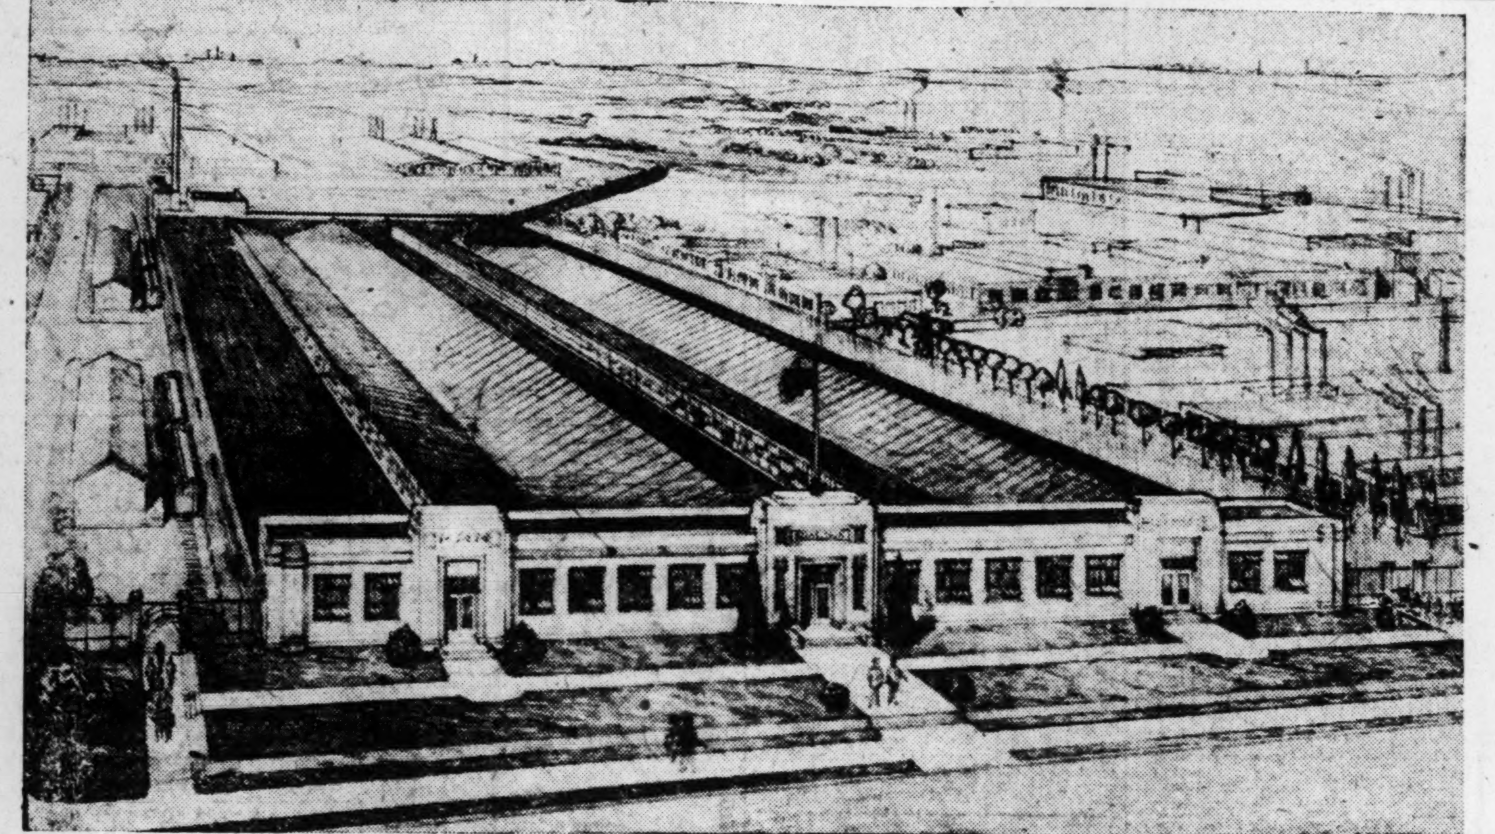
The Weisels-Gerhart comuany effected the sale of 100x200 feet at the northwest corner of Euclid and West Pine boulevard, which has been improved with a $150,000 garage. The price paid for the site was $30,000.

Weisels estimates that within the next five years that within a radius of four blocks of Euclid and Laclede avenues, more than $5,000,000 will have been expended for apartment buildings, hospitals and business structures. He says that the May Building and Investment company purchased the site at Forest Park boulevard and Taylor avenue with a view of fulfilling the demand for small apartments in this zone. Small apartments and flats in the district from Newstead to King's highway, West Pine to Clayton Road, are in great demand and vacancies are quickly absorbed.

TWO COTTAGES AND TWO LOTS SOLD BY M'ALLISTER FIRM

The McAllister Real Estate Co. reports the following sales for the week: 4307 De Soto avenue, a five-room frame cottage for William H. Turley and wife, to Alice Floerke; 5415 Lowell street, a nine-room frame double cottage for Manuel Alverts and wife to William H. Figge and wife; two vacant lots on the south side of Elias avenue for A. Klein to a client. The firm also reports making loans amounting to $12,000.

Plant Costing $1,000,000, to Be Erected in St. Louis for the Manufacture of Tacks, Will Start Operations About March 1, 1923



THE plant to be erected in St. Louis by the Atlas Tack Corporation of Fairhaven, Mass., on a tract between Union boulevard and Geraldine avenue, opposite the General Motors Co. plant, will start manufacturing operations about March 1, 1923, with approximately 750 employes, President Vesper of the Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday.

Representatives of the company recently announced the plant and equipment would cost $1,000,000. The contract for switch tracks and six buildings had been let to the Widmer Engineering Co. of St. Louis, Vesper said.

A survey by the Chamber of Commerce was said by Vesper to have been largely responsible for bringing the Atlas plant here. The survey showed tack consumption of 350,000 pounds annually by St. Louis shoe manufacturers, and annual distribution of nearly 1,000,000 pounds of tacks and small nails by wholesale hardware houses. St. Louis steel rolling mills, it was said, could furnish raw material needed by the plant.

SALES OF PROPERTY REPORTED BY DOERFLINGER REALTY CO.

The Doerflinger Realty Co. reports having closed the following sales: 3834 Hartford street, a brick residence, for August C. Menzenwerth and wife to Harry S. Striker and wife; 4021 Botanical avenue, a 4 and 5-room single flat for Walter H. Buxton and wife to T. J. French and wife; 4710 Virginia avenue, a two-story brick building containing store and flat above, for Martin Wind and wife to Casper & Gloor, who will conduct a shoe store in the property; 3456-58 Ohio avenue, northeast corner of Potomac street, a two-story brick building containing four flats of three rooms, for Louis Roller and wife to John Mueller and wife; 5029 Grave avenue, a frame cottage, for Frances Janson to Rudolph H. Dressler and wife; 2634-36 South Thirteenth street, a two-story brick building containing four flats for John O. Killes and wife to Joseph Albrecht and wife; 3779 Upton street, a brick building and large lot, for Kaspar Goetz and wife to Joseph Fischer and wife, who are conducting a dairy on the property; 3257 Michigan avenue, a four and five-room single flat, for Joseph Temperato and wife to Josepeh H. Gelzheuser and wife; 2632-34 Oregon avenue, a two-story brick building containing four flats for Elizabeth B. Quigley to a client; 2640 Arsenal street, a three and four-room single flat for Frank Hackmann and wife to Fred Censky and Theodore J. Halamicek and wife.

J. H. REHME, BANKER, TO BUILD HOME AT KLEMM AND FLORA

J. Harry Rehme, a south side banker, has purchased a lot on the northwest corner of Klemm and Flora, 75 by 150 feet, upon which he will erect a home to cost approximately $30,000, and construction of which will start at once.

The sale was made by the Dickmann firm, which reports the following additional sales:

4825 Hammett place, single five and six room flat for Albert J. Steinbruegge to F. J. Kommer; 3650 Louisiana avenue, single four and four room flat, for Fred Bockhouse to George R. Crawshaw; 3963 Shenandoah avenue, single five and six room flat, for Louis Dudenhoeffer to Fred D. Richards; 50 feet on south side of Connecticut street by 125 feet, to J. F. Cairns Jr.

YECKEL-FEYDT-EARICKSON SELLS BUSINESS BUILDING

The Yeckel-Feydt-Earickson Realty Co., reports the sale of the two-story brick building at 7906-08 Gravois avenue, for Alois Reck to a client of the firm. The building fronts 50 feet on the east side of Gravois avenue by a depth of 115 feet. The downstairs is occupied by a shoe store and a grocery store, and the second floor consist of two three-room flats.

Six-Family Apartment Buildings Just Sold to Joseph Boxerman

Joseph Boxerman has purchased, through the Anderson-Stocke-Bierman Company, two six-family apartment buildings at the southwest corner of Interdrive and Clemens avenue, in North Parkview, owned by the Alco Investment Co. The buildings are known as 745 and 751 Interdrive. Each apartment has five rooms and a sun parlor. The annual rentals aggregate $14,200.

APARTMENT BUILDINGS SOLD BY FRANCISCUS REALTY CO.

The Franciscus Realty Co. reports the sale of a 14-family apartment house at 4150-52-54-56-58-60 Waterman avenue and of six separate apartment buildings on Lake avenue. The property was sold for the Reliable Realty and Building Company. The firm also sold the following properties, it reports:

4109-11 Labadie avenue, four family double flat, for Max Rotter to Dr. Frank H. Boerger.

3448 Arseral street, five and six-room single flat, for Dr. Louis W. Grosse.

Four-family, double flat, 3303-05 South Eighteenth street, for the estate of Hercules Hummel to Fred Sexauer.

1900 feet on south line of McRee avenue, in the Shaw Tract, to the Mardyke Investment Co.

CORNER OF SEVENTH AND PINE LEASED TO CIGAR STORE FIRM

Isaac T. Cook and Company, Inc., reports having closed a long term lease on the store room at the northeast corner of Seventh and Pine streets with the Recall Cigar Stores Company. Alterations are now being made and fixtures installed for the opening on Saturday, October 14, 1922.

J. H. Farish and Company represented the Davis Estate awners of the property, and Arthur H. Fuldner of Isaac T. Cook and Company, represented the new tenant.

WARREN & CULVER REPORT WASHINGTON AVENUE SALES

Warren and Culver report the negotiation of a lease on a new one-story building at No. 2909 Washington avenue for the Keane estate, represented by Keane and Franke to the Ward-Groff Motor Corporation (Roy J. Ward and William C. Groff) who have incorporated to handle the sale of the Jewett automobiles. The building is of a modern type, and adapted for automobile salesroom purposes. The same firm also reports the sale of 3120 Washington avenue, a lot fronting 40 feet on the south side of the street, for the account of the Alton Realty Co., represented by Keane and Franke, to Mrs. Florence Gross, who intends to improve the property with a building for automobile business.

HOTFELDER REALTY CO. SELLS TWO NEW FAMILY APARTMENTS

A. J. Hotfelder Realty Co. announces the sale of two new three-family apartments at 721 and 723 Interdrive to Louis Caster and Joseph Hoefladerf for $42,000. These apartments contain five rooms and sun parlors each and were built under supervision of the Hotfelder Realty Co. The Hotfelder Realty Co. represented both parties in this transaction.

HODGES TO PUT 131 LOTS ON REALTY MARKET

Tract Three Blocks West of Carondelet to Be Known as Parkwood Embraces 19½ Acres.

James A. Hodges will place on sale today a tract of 131 restricted lots embracing 19½ acres situated at Loughborough avenue and Morganford road. The property is bounded by King's highway south, the River Des Peres promenade, and is reached by Cherokee cars. The location is three blocks west of Carondelet Park, and is within three blocks of Gardenville School. Protestant and Catholic Churches are only four blocks away. Tme addition also is sewed by a section of retail stores.

The tract, which is known as Parkwood, is owned by Hodges, who has specialized with notable success in subdivision property in the city and suburbs, including Gardenville Terrace, which was disposed of in record time and which has been a source of profit to investors, he declares. Hodges proposes to make Parkwood a show place of the South Side.

Construction of Houses.

The tract is restricted to brick, Kellastone, concrete and strucco construction, with pitch roofs on buildings less than two stories in height and a minimum floor space of 825 square feet.

A block of the lots has been dedicated for business purposes. The streets are 50 to 60 feet in width with 20-foot building lines, 20-foot alleys, the lots ranging in width from 25 to 45 feet by a depth of from 125 to 165 feet.

The addition has 1900 feet of macadamized streets and is to be equipped with electric lighting and 12-foot water and sewer mains. The side walks will be of concrete.

Sales Total $55,000.

Already sales aggregating $55,000 have been made to investors and home builders. Construction of three modern bungalows will be started this week. The Hodges company will finance and build for those who pay cash for the lots, it is announced.

The tract is high with a commanding view of the city and is reached by five leading automobile drives. The entrance to each street will be improved with large and beautiful Kellastone pillars, and shade trees will be planted on each lot. The terms of the sale will be announced at the sale Sunday. The tract now is available for builders.

NEW SUBDIVISION ON TRACT AT GRAVOIS AND LOUGHBOROUGH

A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. reports that "Gravois Homesites," its subdivision on Gravois road and Nagel avenue has been sold out and that the company now has acquired a tract on the southeast corner of Gravois road and Loughborough avenue, known as the Eymann property, which will be subdivided into lots immediately. Boody and Gollar, who had charge of the "Gravois Homesites" sales for the Schollmeyer company, will have charge of the new subdivision, which is as yet unnamed. Many of the lots face on Loughborough avenue. The tract also has a frontage of 500 feet on Gravois road, which will be used for business purposes.

NEW ARBOR TERRACE SECTION NEAR SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES

With the formal opening of the new section of Arbor terrace at Avondale and Natural Bridge road, embracing business lots facing the Natural Bridge road as well as a number of choice lots for residence purposes, the sale of this popular subdivision is progressing favorably.

Schools are within a short distance of Arbor terrace, as are several churches and stores of all kinds. Babson, in a recent report, stated: "During the last period of prosperity the workers spent their money for automobiles, while in this period they will buy homes. As soon as the worker realizes that with a flivver and a few hundred dollars he can have a country home, he will do so."

EXTENSIVE SALES REPORTED IN SOUTH KING'S HIGHWAY TERRACE

Since Oct. 1, when South King's Highway terrace, at 5000 South King's highway was placed on the market by the Mederacke-Barth Real Estate and Investment Co., E. R. Hammer, sales manager of the Mederacke-Barth company, states $30,000 of building lots have been sold. Many purchasers of building sites in South King's Highway terrace already are preparing plans and specifications for bungalows and flats, the erection of which will then start immeditlely, Hammer says.

South King's Highway terrace, a subdivision of 95 lots, fronts 740 feet on the east side of King's highway southwest, and extends eastward to within two blocks of Gravois avenue. This entire property has been divided into lots ranging in frontage from 35 to 90 feet. They will be improved with granitoid sidewalks, concrete streets, city sewers, water, gas and shade trees.

The Mederacke-Barth Real Estate and Investment Co., which last spring placed on the market Gardenville terrace, is now doing extensive building in it.

Richard Mederacke, president of the Mederacke-Barth Real Estate and Investment Co., has been in the contracting and building business in St. Louise for 20 years.

The Mederacke-Barth Real Estate and Investment Co. offers to finance and build on easy terms for prospective purchasers in South King's Highway terrace and all sales will be closed by the Grant State Bank.

FORMER LOCKWOOD HOME SOLD BY KENT JARVIS

Kent Jarvis reports the closing of the sale of the former home of James Y. Lockwood, known as the "Lockwood Estate," consisting of nearly 16 acres, bounded on the north by Lockwood avenue and Big Bend road, on the east by Old Orchard avenue and on the south by Garden avenue. This property was bought by the Loretto Literary and Benevolent Institution, a corporation, represented by J. D. Healy. It had been in the Lockwood family for 72 years, and Lockwood avenue, the main business street of Webster, was named after the family. The Lockwood residence has been a landmark for many years.

The late James Y. Lockwood purchased the interest of the other heirs in this property about 15 years ago. The house stands in a grove of trees. The property was bought by the Sisters of Loretto, whose main college building is one block west of this property, and they intend to use it as a location for their primary or preparatory department, as the present college building, which was built a few years ago at a cost of $250,000, is crowded. They expect to use the Lockwood residence temporarily and later erect a school building.

DELMAR DEVELOPMENT HAS SET A REMARKABLE RECORD

In the past two years there has been more than 5280 feet, or a total of one mile, of frontage on Delmar boulevard from Taylor avenue west which has been built up in stores and apartments. This is believed to be a record seldom equaled in any city of consequence in America in the same time. Promoters say that for years Olive street from Broadway to Taylor and then out Delmar to the city limits has been regarded as the "path of values."

The Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., in the Boatmen's Bank Building, owners and builders of University Park on Delmar boulevard, are rapidly developing the only remaining frontage on Delmar east of the Hanley road. A portion of the frontage is restricted to residential development, a limited section for business and apartment buildings. Many business and professional people of St. Louis have invested in this district, some with the thought of building themselves, others for investment.

A permanent sewer, street and sidewalk improvement is progressing in a substantial way in the district. At the offices of the company it was learned there is only a limited number of lots left. The company has been actively at work in the sale for about four months, during which time some $700,000 of sales are recorded.

SUBURBAN PROP'TY FOR SALE SUBURBAN PROP'TY FOR SALE SUBURBAN PROP'TY FOR SALE

My Son, Profit by My Experience

I thought Thos. Halpin unwise when he paid $7000 for vacant property at the end of the street car line in 1881, which is now Grand and Olive street. Yet today he receives $17,000 yearly rental from same. I have seen St. Louis outgrow its limits several times in twenty years or more and can point out hundreds who bought on the fringe of the city and made big profits. I advise you to buy vacant improved property located on one of the main arteries of the city, like Natural Bridge road, and the most promising subdivision I I know is

ARBOR TERRACE

THE TREE-SHELTERED BUNGALOW SITE

There you have every city convenience — near schools, churches, stores and street-car transportation. The proximity of the new industrial district, as well as Wellston, combined with the amazing growth of all this section immediately surrounding Arbor Terrace is proof of the desirability of this beautiful spot for home or investment.

PRICES ARE UNBELIEVABLY LOW, Which include improvements on both business locations and residence sites.

BUNGALOWS, $9250
NEAR CLEVELAND HIGH
WOULD COST $12,000
Go to 4300 S. 37th st., near Grand av., Sunday, and be convinced that the above comparison of figures is not an exaggeration. If you were to buy a lot in this location and build, you could not duplicate this house for $12,000; you can have this verified by your builder or architect if you will have him pass inspection on these, the best constructed houses in St. Louis. Unusually well built, consisting of 6 very large, light, airy rooms, sunrooms and sleeping porches, on one or two floors; slate or tile roof; built entirely of matt brick and strictly modern in every detail. If you have seen other houses, come down Sunday and make a comparison; 5 sold before completion; six left. With reference to location, positively the best in St. Louis, being entirely improved with new buildings, having an excellent future. Open Sunday afternoon. "SEE US."

IN MEMORIAM

Dear thoughts of my beloved daughter, Nellie Krage, on her 26th birthday. Sadly missed by her loving mother and sisters.

In memory of my dear son and brother, Arthur Bender, who departed this life Oct. 9, 1920; sadly missed by mother and brother.

Month's mind mass for the late Mary Lucille Moran at Annunciation Church, on Thursday, Oct. 12, 1922, at 8 o'clock a. m.

In everlasting memory of our dear mother, Barbara Koester, who departed this life Oct. 6, 1921. Sadly missed by ETTA AND GRACE.

In sad but loving memory of my beloved husband and father Jacob Knebel, who departed this life Oct. 11, 1918.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SON.

In loving memory of our dear mother who departed this life Oct 9, 1921:
Sadly missed by all who loved her.
ERNST SABECK AND CHILDREN.

In memory of our dear niece and cousin, Lena H. Hoffman, who departed this life Oct. 11, 1918.
Sadly missed by all who loved her.

In memory of our darling niece and grandchild, Maude Wilhelm, who departed this life Oct. 7, 1918.
Sadly missed by
GRANDPARENTS AND AUNT VIOLA.

In loving memory of Harry L. Budde, who departed this life, Oct. 5, 1916:

Upright and just in all of his ways,
Faithful and honest to the end of his days;
Forgotten to the world by some he may be,
But dear to my heart and memory he shall always be.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, SON AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our dearly beloved brother, George Bankerd, who died Oct. 7, 1921:

Dearest George, how much we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away;
And our hearts are filled with sorrow,
As we think of you today.

Sadly missed by
BROTHER AND SISTER.

In loving memory of our darling, Edna Mae Allen, who departed this life Oct. 10, 1917:

Gone my darling, gone forever,
How we miss your loving face,
But you left us to remember,
None can ever take your place.

MOTHER AND GRANDPARENTS.

In memory of my beloved husband and our dear son and brother, Carl A. Jorns, who left us one year ago, Oct. 4, 1921:

Surrounded by friends I am lonesome,
In the midst of pleasure I am blue;
A smile on my face, still a heartache,
Thinking and mourning for you.

Sadly missed by his broken-hearted
WIFE, MOTHER, SISTER AND STOLL FAMILY. (c)

In loving memory of our dear daughter and wife, Ida M. Kraft, who departed this life two years ago Oct. 10, 1920.

Dear is the grave where our loved one is laid,
Sweet is the memory that never shall fade;
The roses may wither, fade and die,
If others forget you never shall we.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND HUSBAND.

In loving memory of our dear son, Aurelius Lohbeck, died Oct. 4, 1921:

'Our darling son from us has gone
To a home beyond the grave;
I tried so hard to keep him,
But my boy I could not save;
To his grave I slowly wander,
Until death calls me away,
Where I hope to join him hand in hand
At the throne on judgment day.

Sadly missed by
His family and his bereaved mother, Mrs. Engelhardt. (c)

In loving memory of Elmer Forster, who entered eternal life Oct. 8, 1920, in his eighteenth year.

Our darling boy from us has gone
To a home beyond the grave.
We tried so hard to keep him,
But our boy we could not save.
To his grave we often wander,
Until death calls us away,
When we hope to join him, hand in hand,
At the throne on judgment day.

Sadly mourned by your heart-broken
MOTHER, GRANDMOTHER, AUNT, UNCLE AND COUSIN.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope

W. P. S.—The Soldiers' Bonus Commission is still considering claims. Yours may have been held up on some error. We can only suggest writing them for the information.

L. L. C.—Victory bonds can be sold any day at prices prevailing at the time. See the financial page. The Government will pay par on the day they are called in, thereafter no interest will be paid. It would therefore be of no advantage to hold them longer.

P. E. Z.—The bluing of gun barrels is effected by heating evenly in a muffle until the desired blue color is raised, the barrel being first made clean and bright with emery cloth, leaving no marks of grease or dirt upon the metal when the bluing takes place, then allow to cool in the air. It requires considerable experience to obtain an even clear blue by this method. Another formula is to mix finely powdered Prussian blue with rather thin shellac, then gently heat and apply varnish.

MRS. D. J. E.—The engraving would no doubt be of value to a curio dealer. Paul Girardet was born at Neuchatel in 1821. His copper-plate engraving of "Washington Crossing the Delaware" (after Leutze), is one of the four most noteworthy works submitted at the Salon in 1842. The three others are "The Battle of Isly" (after Horace Vernet); "The Combat of Rivoli" (after Phillipnoteaux), and "The Armada in Sight of Plymouth" (after Seymour Lucas). To determine the value take it to a curio dealer.

CRANK.—If the plaster of the gilt frames has become badly cracked we cannot see much use in either cleaning them or regilding. The proper way to clean them is to dip a soft brush in alcohol to which a few drops of ammonia water has been added, and with it go over the surface. Do not rub—at least, not roughly or harshly. In the course of five minutes the dirt will have become soft and easy to remove. Go over the surface again with the same or similar brush dipped in rain water. Then lay the damp frame in the sunlight or somewhere near warmth so it will dry completely. In order to avoid streaks take care that the position of the article during the drying is not exactly vertical. A polish is made by mixing and beating the whites of 3 eggs with one-third by weight of javelle water, apply to the gilt frame.

PARTY.—The following is the recipe for Parisian sweets: 1 pound figs, 1 pound dates, 1 pound English walnut meats, or pecans, confectioners' sugar. Pick over and remove stems from figs and stones from dates. Mix fruit with walnut meat, and force through a meat chopper. Work, using the hands, on a board dredged with confectioners' sugar, until well blended. Roll to ¼ inch thickness, using confectioners' sugar for dredging board and pin. Shape with a small round cutter, first dipped in sugar, or cut with a sharp knife in ¾ inch squares. Roll each piece in confectioners' sugar and shake to remove superfluous sugar. Pack in layers in a tin box, putting wax paper between each layer. These confections may be used at a dinner in place of bonbons or ginger chips. A combination of nut meat (walnut, almond and filbert) may be used in equal proportions.

MILLY.—Scalloped oysters are made as follows: 1 pint oysters, 4 tablespoons oyster liquor, 2 tablespoons milk or cream, ½ cup stale bread crumbs, 1 cup cracker crumbs, ½ cup melted butter, salt and pepper. Mix bread and cracker crumbs and stir in butter. Put a thin layer in bottom of a buttered shallow baking dish, cover with oysters and sprinkle with salt and pepper; add half each oyster liquor and cream. Repeat, and cover top with remaining crumbs. Bake 30 minutes in hot oven. Never allow more than two layers of oysters for scalloped oysters; if three layers are used, the middle layer will be underdone, while others are properly cooked. A sprinkling of mace or grated nutmeg to each layer is considered by many an improvement. 2. A French fruit salad is made of 2 oranges, 3 bananas, ½ pound of malaga grapes, 12 English walnut meats, 1 head lettuce and French dressing. Peel oranges, and remove pulp separately from each section. Peel bananas, and cut in ¼-inch slices. Remove skins and seeds from grapes. Break walnut meats in pieces. Mix prepared ingredients and arrange on lettuce leaves. Serve with French dressing.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

PERPLEXED.—The interest the brokers are charging is legal.

READER OF POST.—The tenants are responsible for these items, unless the landlord has agreed to supply them.

M. B.—If you have not been at fault yourself, you will have no difficulty in getting a divorce on the ground that your husband has deserted you for 2 years.

C. S.—We cannot suggest anything to do other than to report the facts to the persons over the foreman, who are in charge of the shop.

NOCA.—A vote of the stockholders of the corporation is necessary for such a merger, but it need not be a unanimous vote, as a general rule.

READER.—The woman's purchase of the mortgage at the trustee's sale gave her a clear title to it, and she can sell it without the signature of the children.

SUBSCRIBER.—It would be better to wait until you are permanently located before taking out your naturalization papers.

PROS. MOTHER.—If the woman can prove these relations exist, she can have her husband arrested, otherwise she would not have a right to do so.

ELLA B.—The summons can lawfully be served by leaving it with his wife, at his home. If she does not give it to him, he will nevertheless have to appear.

ANXIOUS.—You should consult a lawyer. If he cannot come to an agreement with the automobile company about the matter you can sue them.

A. B. C.—As a rule a Missouri corporation cannot purchase its own stock. The transaction about which you inquire would not be legal.

DAILY READER.—You can cancel your subscription to the magazine, but you are liable for the time you have taken it, and the company can sue you for what you owe.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

W. B.—You do not say if you are a man or woman. Impaired hearing would be a good deal of a handicap in the nursing occupation. State your sex and preliminary education for further details.

DESPAIR.—We strongly advise a full and careful physical examination. You do not state your sex or age. If middle aged or past, the condition is very suspicious of maglignancy. Consult a first-class physician or if unable to pay, a clinic, or seek admission to the city hospital.

D. R. E.—In mumps the glands of the neck situated under the angle of the jaw become swollen. Sometimes both sides are affected. There is a loss of appetite, pain on opening the mouth and sometimes a slight fever. This disease can spread; therefore all children should be kept away from it. If a child has been exposed he may develop symptoms as late as two or three weeks. These cases get well very easily if a liquid diet is given, the bowels kept loose and the swollen parts protected with cotton and oil silk.

STEADY.—There are many forms of rheumatism and treatment will vary accordingly. We are presuming you refer to the chronic form, and answer accordingly. Internal remedies are on the whole not of great service. The digestive functions and the general health should be kept at the highest possible standard. Potassium iodide, sarsaparilla and guaiacum are sometimes beneficial. Salicylates, so useful in acute forms, are useless. Local treatment is very beneficial. Counter irritation and massage are helpful, also baking with super heated, dry air. Electricity is not of much benefit. Climatic treatment is very helpful, selecting a climate free of damp and cold. Great relief is sometimes attained by wrapping the affected joints in cold cloths, covered with a thin layer of woolen cloth and protected with oiled silk. The Turkish bath is useful.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Elmer Fanter, who entered eternal life Oct. 8, 1920, in his eighteenth year:

Our darling boy from us has gone
To a home beyond the grave.
We tried so hard to keep him,
But our boy we could not save.
To his grave we often wander
Until death calls us away.
When we hope to join him hand in hand
At the throne on judgment day.

Sadly mourned by your heart-broken mother, grandmother, aunt, uncle and cousin.

A SOURCE OF PLENTY.

Ready money in your pocket—bountiful supply of health-giving provisions for your table; the pleasure and profit of introducing a great new economical development in your community, all to be gained by devoting all or part of your time to the sale of Economy Home Dehydrators in your neighborhood.

Dehydration is indorsed by the United States Government, state experiment stations and many foreign countries; Germany fought the war on 16 years' accumulated supply of dehydrated fruits and vegetables. Dehydration is a source of plenty for you, saved from the great waste in the fruit and vegetable crop each year. Radio, airplanes and automobiles have small economical value compared with the science of dehydration, yet all have made fortunes. Be the first in your community to introduce dehydration. Write us today for particulars of how you may greatly benefit yourself and assist us in introducing this great new science. Address Dept A., DEHYDRATION RESEARCH LABORATORIES, 316 W. 20th st., Kansas City, Mo.

Cadillac
Exchange Car Department

New Location
3015 Locust St.
BOMONT 3080

We offer what we honestly believe is the safest exchange car market in the city. Prices are fixed after careful inspection and fair appraisal. No attempt is made to conceal imperfections if any there may be. We frankly tell you what service these cars have given their previous owners and what you can expect from them in the future. You can be sure of obtaining here a car as good as we say it is, priced as it ought to be—Cadillac integrity behind it.

Ask yourself which is the better proposition for you—a good used car at a fair price or a new car of the same price.

EVERYBODY IS DRIVING A USED CAR

CADILLAC SEDAN

Type 59. This late series of our enclosed model is coming into our hands in almost new condition; just refinished and renickeled; the velour upholstering shows practically no wear; equipped with five excellent cord tires, bumper in front; no doubt this is the best bargain we have offered in this particular model for some time.

CADILLAC

Type 59, touring. This is one of the late series in a seven-passenger touring car that is being turned in to us for one of our new Cadillacs; equipped with a good set of cord tires, two extras; mechanically the car is in exceptionally fine condition; paint, upholstering in remarkable condition; this means that it has been properly cared for and has had due consideration. Your immediate action will be necessary.

PACKARD TWIN SIX

Roadster; sold this last May new off the sales floor; the mileage very low (1885 miles); it is very rarely that we are privileged to offer as fine a conditioned car as this; just worked enough to be in the pink of condition. It's in such wonderful condition that it could be sold for new. Imagine the value. You must act quickly on this bargain.

HUDSON

Touring, 1921 model. This is a standard 7-passenger touring car of this make that is in remarkably fine condition; has an extra good set of cord tires with wire wheels; the upholstering, top and paint are exceptionally fine. In fact, this car does not look like the ordinary used car. Will make excellent demonstration because it runs quietly and is in such mechanical condition that there are many thousands of miles left in the car. If you are looking for a 7-passenger standard price car we believe this car will surely please you.

FRANKLIN

Touring 9-B; all necessary mechanical work has been done on this car and it is ready to put into immediate service; has the original Brewster green finish; equipped with over-sized cord tires; the upholstery and top, in fact, the entire car shows very little service.

BUICK

Touring, 1923 model four-cylinder car. We believe in offering this car at the price that we are offering you an exceptional bargain. It is in the very finest mechanical condition; has an excellent set of cord tires, one extra. The paint is the original finish, dark blue, and shows practically no wear. This is a wonderfully light and economical little car. If you are interested in a late model car of this description we would advise immediate action.

Demonstrations freely given. Terms to responsible parties without additional cost other than nominal interest on notes covering unpaid balance.

Closed Car Offerings for the Fall Season!

For two reasons a conservative buyer will select his Winter job early. The first is that he can take his choice. The second is that Closed Cars will cost more 30 to 60 days later.

See our line of Closed Cars, Coaches, Sedans, Limousines, Coupes, Cabs.

Our large stock of Used Cars has been thoroughly rebuilt and refinished. And all carry our Standard Guaranty.

Hello! Used Car Sale. Hello!

Listen In on This Line a Moment.

This ad is just a little message to tell you of the exceptional values you can obtain at the Southwest Nash Co., 3000 Locust St. The distribution of Exchanged Cars by the Southwest Nash Co. reaches many points. If you could listen in on the great continental switchboard, you would hear many good things said of the Used Cars sold by the Southwest Nash Co. We have some acknowledged experts in this branch of our organization with just one thought in mind, that of satisfying the used car purchasers by selling them cars that will meet with their expectations—good tires, good motors, good paint, good top and curtains. A local or long-distance call will bring one of the exceptional values to your door, or, if you will call at the Southwest Nash Co., you will be approached by very select and courteous salesmen who will allow you to inspect our Used Cars on display and more than likely you will make your selection. The following cars are on display, prices marked in plain figures, cash or time:

- Hudson
- Elcar
- Paige
- Nash
- Olds
- Jeffrey
- Regal
- Ford
- Buick
- Dodge
- Studebaker
- Maxwell
- Essex
- Overland
- Demonstrator
- Chandler

In the above-mentioned makes of cars we have roadsters, touring cars, sedans, coupes and sport models.

Your visit here will be appreciated.

GET A DIVORCE

Some guys get married to an idea that a used car can't be good. Yahlem has built up a reputation for selling griefless used cars. Stop to consider that a new car becomes a used car in twenty-four hours. The guy who fills his dome with an idea that a used car is someone else's trouble is all wrong. The best little divorce court for such rummy ideas is at Yahlem's.

We are going to knock 'em dead this month. 100 cars must be sold. We won't be satisfied if we sell 99. Yahlem is the cause of better, cheaper and guaranteed used cars. They call Yahlem "The Price Wrecker," and you can't blame them.

READ THESE PRICES, THEN THINK.

C. OF C. MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TO OPEN TUESDAY

Twenty-Five Teams to Take Part in "Coast-to-Coast Airplane Race."

Twenty-five teams made up of Chamber of Commerce members will start a three-day campaign Tuesday morning to increase the present membership of 4300 to a number that will assure the success of the large program for the coming year. The campaign will continue Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and a reception will be held for new members Friday night in the Chamber of Commerce dining room.

The membership teams will compete in a "coast-to-coast airplane race," each application for membership being counted as 50 miles and each dollar brought in with an application counting for an additional mile. Progress of the team "planes" will be charted on a map at the Chamber of Commerce building, 511 Locust street.

Loving Cups as Prizes.

Eleven loving cups contributed by former presidents will be awarded for the eleven teams obtaining the greatest number of applications.

Names of 4000 prospects will be turned over to 300 workers at a meeting at 9:30 Tuesday morning of the twenty-five teams.

"The Chamber of Commerce has a program of vast, far-reaching effect, not only upon the present welfare of St. Louis, but upon the entire future of the city," President F. W. A. Vesper said yesterday. "I do not doubt that if the tax returns, alone, from the new industries brought to St. Louis by the Chamber of Commerce were totaled for the year, this sum would represent more than the entire revenue of the organization."

Thousands of dollars had been saved for St. Louis shippers by the Chamber of Commerce Traffic Bureau, he said, and advantages in rates have been obtained that place St. Louis concerns on an equitable basis with any market in the United States.

Gain in Foreign Trade.

The Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, Vesper said, has done much in bringing about an increase in foreign trade in St. Louis. Information is obtained from all world markets and made available to members.

Vesper recalled the report drawn up by the Engineers Committee of the Chamber of Commerce on traffic problems relating to railroads entering the city, following a study of two years, and said adoption of the recommendations would effect a great saving for St. Louis shippers.

Active participation in preparation for the proposed $78,100,000 bond issue for public improvements was given as another constructive the organization.

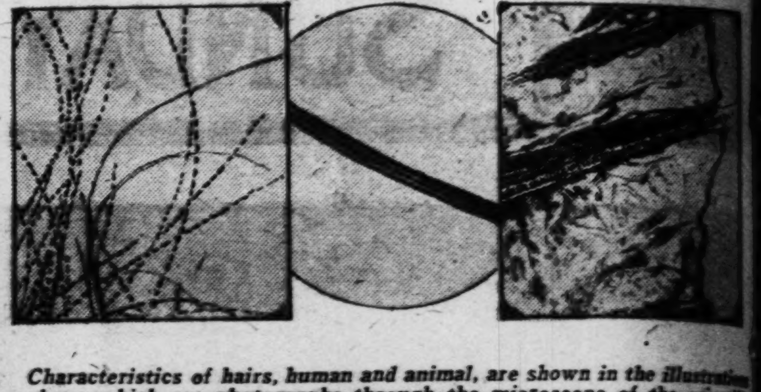
What You Can Learn In A Detective Laboratory



Characteristics of hairs, human and animal, are shown in the illustrations above which are photographs through the microscope of the scientific investigator. Hairs taken from a bat are shown at the left. Irregular edges are scales like those of a fish which form the surface of the hair. Center—Single human hair much magnified. Human hair has scales, but of much smaller size than those on hair of animals. Right—Hair of a cat shown growing in a cross section of skin and magnified to the same number of diameters as the photograph of bat hair.

Dust or mud on your shoes will usually tell the scientific detective where you have been. Could you learn to do this yourself?

Do you know that invisible odorless gas is responsible for gas poisoning? Its deadly work can be identified in the blood of the victim even many months after death. Do you know how?

The poisonous alkaloids, like strychnine and morphine, can be detected microchemically when the amount available is so small that you cannot see it at all with the naked eye. Would the method interest you?

Can human relationships be determined by blood samples? Some courts have attempted this. Are the results of real value as evidence? Dr. Free says sometimes they are, more often they are not, and he will tell you why.

How does the detective "develop" finger prints, that is, bring them out and make them visible on articles where no finger prints could be seen by the naked eye?

Simple tests to develop powers of observation at home are described and explained by a scientist—Human hair as a clew to identification and as an aid in capturing criminals—Fascinating uses for the test tube and microscope—How science may supplement deduction in solving mysteries.

THE detective instinct is strong in man. Most individuals have it developed to a greater or lesser degree. Half the fascination which comes from reading detective stories is that the reader, consciously or unconsciously, pits his own wits against the story's solver of mysteries and tries to beat him to the solution. This is not always easy, and it is more difficult when the detective in the book is a scientific investigator who does not depend entirely upon deduction but draws upon a store of special and technical knowledge and uses scientific instruments and chemicals to help him reach his conclusions.

Not only in fiction, but in real life, scientific methods are sometimes used in the solving of crime mysteries, but in such cases it is necessary to bring experts in to supplement the work of the police.

It is possible for anyone to undertake simple scientific tests and studies at home to increase their keenness and develop their detective talent in a useful way. This is the first of a series of articles written to show how this may be done. The writer, Dr. E. E. Free, has high standing in the scientific world and spent a number of years in research work for the Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Free holds membership in the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Chemical Society, American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the Association of American Geographers, the American Ecological Society and the American Society of Agronomy.

IS IT possible that a hair or a small fragment of hair may be identified as human? Can we go further and say that it is or is not from the head of a given person?

To both questions the scientific detective can answer yes, provided the observer is a skilled microscopist and experienced in examining human and other hair.

One of the classic stories of microscopic science turns upon this possibility. It is related by Phillip Henry Gosse, distinguished British naturalist and microscopist.

There was sent in to the microscopic laboratory a tiny piece of what seemed to be parchment. Microscopic examination showed that this was a piece of human skin and that it bore attached to its surface a few fragments of human hair. It was evident that the skin and the hair had come from a person of light complexion.

When these laboratory results were obtained the microscopist did not know the source of the fragment of skin. Afterward he learned that it had come from under a large, flat-headed nail on the door of an ancient English church, and that there was a tradition of a Danish raider caught and flayed more than a thousand years previously and whose skin had been nailed to the church door as a warning to other evildoers. In the lapse of a thousand years all trace of the skin had disappeared except the tiny fragment under the nail, but this fragment was sufficient for complete analysis by the scientific detective.

Of course, this was an exceptional achievement. Only an expert could hope to make a final identification with material so meager and so unfavorable for examination. But with practice anyone can learn to use a microscope and to distinguish human hair from that of other animals, or hairs of different persons from each other.

Note those words "with practice." You cannot learn to recognize hair merely by reading about it, any more than you can be sure of recognizing a stranger merely from a verbal description. You must actually see and handle hairs under the microscope, let your own eyes become familiar with what they look like and how they differ.

Nearly every physician nowadays has a microscope. Every professional scientific detective must have one and must learn how to use it. Examine all the samples of hair you can find. Compare the different kinds of human hair. Study and compare the hairs of animals. Only by such personal experience, and repeated practice, will you acquire the ability to make real determinations.

There are, however, a few ways in which descriptions and pictures will help you to get started. In the first place, all human hair has the same general appearance. It is a translucent cylinder, sometimes more or less oval in cross-section. The surface is marked with very fine, wavy lines, running crosswise of the hair. These are really the edges of very thin scales, not unlike the scales of fishes. These scales overlap each other and grow more or less together, forming the surface sheath of the hair. Sometimes the edges of the scales stick out a very little, and this is what makes some hair feel rough. The hair of nearly all animals has these surface scales and some of them project more than do the scales of the human hair.

Inside this scaly surface sheath is the main body of the hair, the pith. In human hair this pith is made up of very fine fibers bundled together. Sometimes there is a distinct threadlike canal, usually darker in color, running through the main part of the pith at the center of the hair.

The most usual problem of the scientific detective with hair is to determine whether two given samples of hair come from the same individual. To settle this we study and compare five main characters of each sample.

First and second, are the more obvious characters of diameter, measured under the miscroscope in thousandths of an inch, and of color. In applying these characters, however, you must remember that a person may have three kinds of hair: head hair, beard hair and body hair, the last being the very fine, downy hair which grows on the backs of the hands and more or less generally over the body.

These three kinds of hair may differ considerably in color and diameter, even on one individual. Accordingly samples of all three of them should be examined, if possible, before concluding positively as to the origin of the suspected sample.

The other three of the five characters of hair which must be examined and compared are, third, the presence or absence and the degree of definiteness of the central core or canal; fourth, the patterns, distance apart and other characteristics of the surface markings caused by the scale edges; and, fifth, the shape

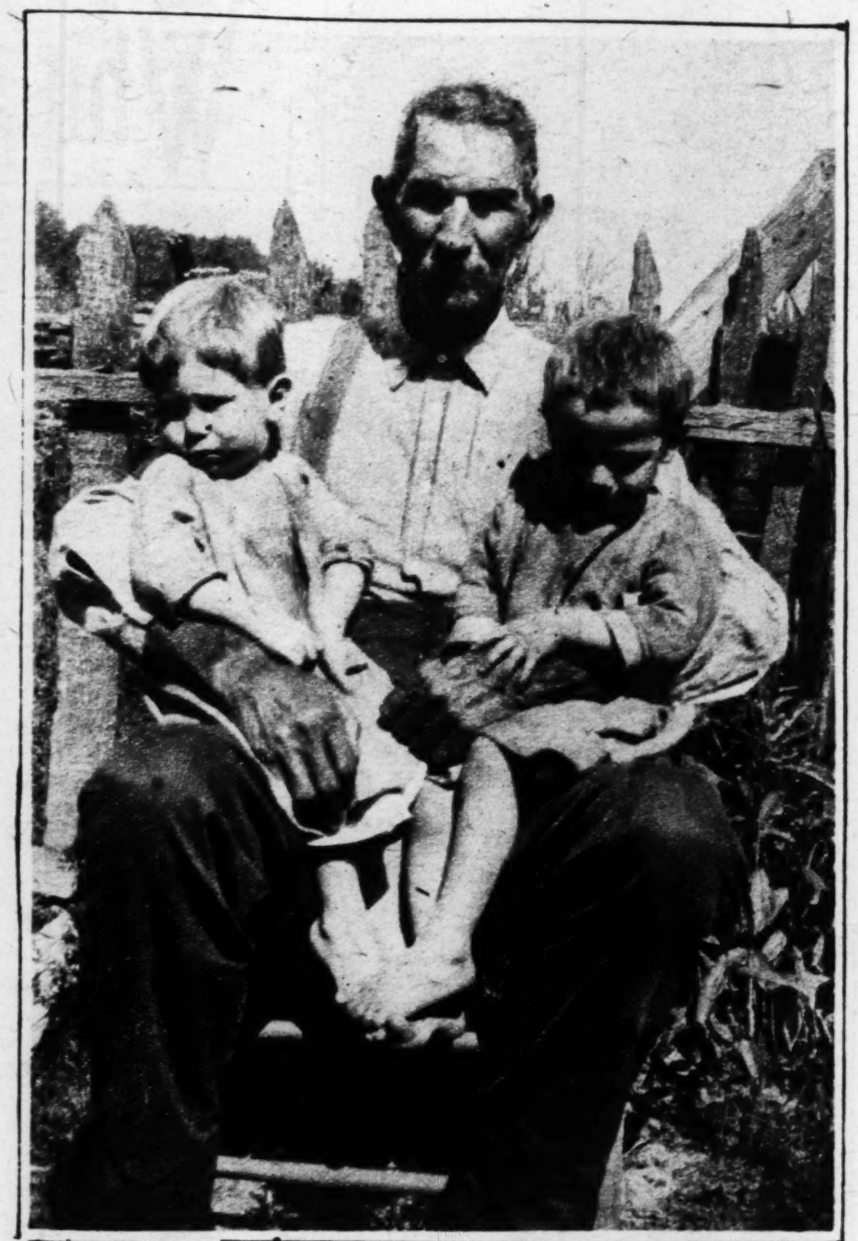
"THE MAN WHO TOLD"

Uncle Tom Ward, 79 years old on his next birthday, came down from his home in the hills to inform the grand jury of all he knew about the Herrin mine massacre, including the names of participants in the murder of 19 strikebreakers—"Threats? I've been shootin' my old rabbit gun for 25 years, and she's as good as ever," says patriarch—When testimony of witnesses had resulted in more than 200 indictments, Attorney-General Brandage voiced the tribute: "Old men for courage" :: :: ::



Old Tom Ward has no concern about his own safety. "But I don't callate to let 'em hurt these younguns," he says, of grandsons.

THEY call it the Williamson County spirit, the spirit which supplied the evidence upon which the 214 indictments have been returned for the Herrin massacre, and that spirit is personified by Uncle Tom Ward, 79 next birthday, who came out of the hills of the White settlement to tell the grand jury what he knew.

That day in June when 19 men were done to death with bullet, bludgeon and knife and as many more fell with fearful wounds, after they all had surrendered at the Lester strip mine and had given up their arms under assurance of safe conduct, nobody expected the slayers would ever be prosecuted, because everybody is familiar with the usual complaisance of county officials toward mob outlawry. And when Federal and State investigations were under way everybody said no evidence would be obtained because nobody who had knowledge of the killings would be brave enough to tell what he knew.

But these apostles of pessimism failed to take into account the old men of Williamson County, who would rather jeopardize their lives than perjure their souls. These told what they knew and the 214 indictments were the result.

Outstanding among these was Uncle Tom Ward, patriarch of the hills, who came from his cabin, disdainful of threats that he and his house would be blown up if he testified, and told the grand jury all that he knew. Unmindful, too, that two of his sons are coal miners and members of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, the organization which has aligned itself with the men accused of the Herrin massacre and made their cause its cause. These sons of his were not in the mob, but if they had been it would not have made any difference to their father.

"It wouldn't induce me none if they had been in it," he said. "If they'd a had a hand in that killin' I'd a testified agin 'em. I ain't in favor of that kind of business. After a feller has give up I ain't got no heart to punish him. I never raised my boys that way. There's too much good blood in them to kill a man after he's give up."

Finding Uncle Tom, after he had testified before the special grand jury at Marion was no easy matter for one unacquainted with the byways of Creel Springs Township. "Six miles south" was the most specific information that could be obtained in Marion. A wayfarer overtaken about six miles south was more accurate. "Take the first road to the left," he said, "and go about a mile to the big road and across a field and through the woods and on yon side of the woods is where old grandpap lives."

The home in Creel Springs township where Ward and his wife live with six grandchildren whom, Ward admits, they are "spoiling."

Mrs. Ward and her spinning wheel. Her husband says she is the only woman in Williamson County who knows how to card, weave and spin.

Which directions, faithfully followed, led to a closed gate on yon side of the woods, and beyond the gate, down the slope, past a solitary persimmon tree, with fruit purpling in the sun, was grandpap's cabin, fringed with damson plum trees, the only habitation visible in the miles of undulating landscape.

Uncle Tom was sitting at his cabin door, with twin babies (part of the family of six which he and his wife have taken to raise since their mother was sent away to the asylum) on his knees. "Toddle away, boys," he bade them, in the comradely manner which comes easy as between a grandfather of 79 and twin grandsons at 2, and cane-seat hospitality was provided in the shade of the plum trees.

"It wa'n't much that I did," he said. "I told 'em all I knowed, which was about as little as I could do, I reckon. I only wish I'd a had more to tell 'em. It was hearsay, at that, but I give the grand jury the names and I guess they followed it up and got the straight of it.

"I didn't volunteer to tell what I'd heard because I didn't know whether they'd care to hear me, but somebody must a told 'em and one day when I was in town a deputy comes up to me and says he's glad to see me, because it saves him a trip out to my place, and tells me the grand jury wants to see me.

"Well, I went in, and the State's Attorney began askin' me round-about questions, not knowin', I guess, whether I'd be willin' to talk free or not. So I says to him: 'You don't need to beat around the bush with me. If there's some pint that you want to know about, jest ask me straight out and if I know it I'll tell it.' I knew a lot of them old fellers on the jury and after I said that we understood each other and got along fine. It ain't much use to try to dodge when you know somethin'. It's better to out with it.

"So I told them all that I knowed about it and if I'd a knowed any more I reckon it would have come out. I don't believe in holdin' back.

"It's an almighty pity that the thing happened. It jest about ruined this county. And it ain't fair, either. The good people of the county don't sanction nothin' like that. Nobody in this part of the county approves of it, or if they do they're keepin' mighty still about it.

"I hadn't heered about threats agin me when I testified, but if I had it wouldn't a made any difference. I 'spect they didn't want me to hear about it. I don't reckon they'll come out here and blow me up. If they do callate to come all I ask 'em is to let me know when they're comin'. I've been shootin' my old rabbit gun for 25 years and she's as good as ever. I don't wear no glasses. Never found none that was as good as my natural eyes. But I can still hit a rabbit runnin' across yon hill.

"For that matter, they wouldn't have much of a victory if they got me. I ain't got fer to go. But I don't callate to let 'em hurt these younguns."

The "boys" were joined by the other four, home from school, and with the odds against them it was not in vain that they invoked the championship of their grandpap. "Old folks," he said, apologetically, "ain't fit to raise children except to spile 'em. I've just about ruined these boys. But me and my woman are goin' to do the best we can to help their pa raise 'em. If the old woman keeps up we'll raise 'em together and raise 'em up as right as we know how."

There was a slight wavering in the old man's straightforwardness when he was asked how old his wife was. "About 70," he said. "She's the only woman in the county who can card and weave and spin. She's

Why Are Noted Beauties So Unfortuna

The former Isabel Valle, who obtained a divorce from James Hope Nelson.
—Copyright by Speaight, Ltd., London.

A survey by Marguerite Martyn of the domestic difficulties which have been encountered by certain lovely St. Louis brides, and similar tragedies in other cities, with a discussion of the possible causes for the unhappy outcome of their romances :: :: :: :: ::

By MARGUERITE MARTYN

WHY do so many celebrated beauties make unfortunate marriages? Being a beauty, a recognized, established, popular beauty, requires something more than mere good looks. It involves at least ordinary intelligence and wit, charm, personality, whatever are the attributes that attract people.

Doubtless there are many beauties who also were belles in their youth who have found contentment in marriage. That is not strange. The puzzling thing is that even one of these women who are at once beautiful and clever and who should, from the very fact that they are attractive to men, have had the experience which would give them superior knowledge of men, should ever make a mistake when it comes to choosing a husband.

And yet, the divorce suit in which the plaintiff is to be described as having been "a beauty and a belle" is almost always in the public eye.

Possibly the hackneyed phrase often is misapplied; but that it should ever need be applied, that is the puzzling question And that it really need be applied to such a long list of our most conspicuous beauties is a thought to ponder over.

With brains and cleverness we all know how limitless are the powers of women. They can have anything they ask; anything they want; certainly anything they desire in the way of masculine attention. Proposals? Few men are deterred by any records the divorce courts disclose from seeking to marry a popular beauty. The brainiest, the bravest, the handsomest, the richest, the men most desirable in every way, are the first to lay their all at the feet of the popular beauty. She may have as wide a field as she cares to command from which to make her choice of a husband.

Mystifying, then, is it not, that she so frequently selects the wrong man!

Cruel men, men who subject them to indignities, men who beat them, men who neglect them, men who fail to provide for them, men who are unfaithful to them, men who desert them, these are the kinds of men so many of our popular beauties have married, according to sworn testimony of official record. It nearly always is, in these cases, the wife who files suit as the injured party.

Of cases in point there is no end. Beauties celebrated the country over, beauties who have held undisputed sway over a court of admirers; who had only to incline their scepters to command the knights of their choice; international beauties, such as the present Lady Waldorf Astor, now a member of Parliament, who, as one of the beautiful Langhorne sisters of Virginia, at her first marriage chose a member of the aristocratic Shaw family of Boston, only to divorce him—all have made the same grievous errors.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who, however she may look now, was a beauty, and a fascinating one, in her youth, made the same mistake twice, captivating two millionaires, one a Vanderbilt and the other of an equally powerful family, later to air her disillusionments in the divorce courts.

Veronica Mulvihill, who became Mrs. Walter Schwartz, then divorced him.

There was Katherine Elkins, whose romance the whole country watched and applauded when she turned down the Duke d'Abruzzi of the Italian royal family to marry handsome, American Billy Hitt, and who now, in the divorce courts, is acknowledging that she made a mistake.

There was the exquisite little Cornelia Drexel Biddle who, with wealth and great position in Philadelphia society, could certainly have had her choice in marrying, and who exercised it by annexing a goodly share of the Duke fortune, only to discard the handsome Angier after a short time.

But no need to go so far from home for typical in-instances of the same situation. There are conspicuous examples here in St. Louis.

Remember Isabel Valle, pronounced by leaders of New York's 400 at Newport one summer, "the most beautiful girl in America," and one of the greatest belles this city ever knew?

She married the son of a titled English family, and echoes of her social triumphs, especially in the smart Irish hunting set, came back to us. Six years later she acknowledged her marriage a failure by filing the conventional suit for restitution of conjugal rights, which, in that country, precedes the plea for divorce.

This decree she obtained in 1919, and a cablegram from London in March of last year said that she had obtained a divorce. Her husband was James Hope Nelson, son of Sir William Nelson, and heir to the baronetcy.

Nobody who recalls the exquisite, fragile type of beauty and all the graces and accomplishments that went with the personality of Ann Drew will deny her the title of belle of the season when she came out. She married Jim Platt, also a shining light in society—and later divorced him.

Other belles of other seasons—Cora South Brown O'Fallon, Helen Aull McRee, Eleanor Dozier Stickney—all beautiful, all reigning belles, before whom one gallant swain after another pressed his suit, and presumably in each case the best man won—only to be divorced.

Remember, too, what a beauty Pearl Hyman was? How much sought after and admired, not only for her beauty but for histrionic talents and a voice said to be of operatic caliber; how she married Bob Nolker, wealthy club man, and how badly they got along? So badly that, if memory serves, neither of them has been able to get a divorce, though both have tried.

One of the latest and most conspicuous beauties to add to a list that might be extended almost indefinitely, is Mrs. Edna Shea Reakirt-Nulsen-Healy. She is a beauty celebrated in three cities and she made the same mistake three times; first when, as Edna Shea, with wit and beauty as her chief fortune, she captivated the Cleveland millionaire, Llewellyn Reakirt; then in St. Louis, when she married Freen Nulsen, member of a wealthy family, who proved, according to her divorce petition, to be a poor provider; and now, in New York, where she is seeking to free herself from James Healy, a prominent sportsman, on the plea that he "cursed and beat and otherwise mistreated her."

Of Veronica Mulvihill one is reminded as Edna Reakirt's running mate in a race for popularity for a gay season or two, during a brief widowhood of the latter. With their contrasting types of beauty, both of Irish extraction, one the black-haired, blue-eyed colleen, the other of the blonde, or auburn, coloring—they were effective foils, one to the other. Veronica undoubtedly had her choice of many suitors, among them a foreign nobleman offering brilliant social position, as one recalls. When she went out to an officers' training camp and married Walter Schwartz, everybody smiled upon their romance. And now they are divorced.

Examples there are without end to establish the fact that women who ought to have been in position to make the best possible matrimonial alliances have chosen unwisely, their marriages ending in utter failure. Why is it? Are they, the spoiled darlings, only attracted to the type of man who makes a bad husband? The man who is so practiced in the art of charming women and deceiving them, and whose insincerity is to be discovered only when it is too late?

Is the great beauty, having known only admiration and adulation, really lacking in the perception of the character of man beneath the veneer of drawing-room manners and the glamour of the artificial life? And is the discovery that he is only common clay a ruder awakening to her than it is to an average woman who has not been led to expect so much? Is she so steeped in romance that she is unable to adapt herself to the grim realities of life?

Or, on the other hand, has her craving for the purely material things been so stimulated that she is unable to appreciate true character without them?

It must be very hard for the best of men to live up to the expectations of a woman surfeited with the good things of life. In justice to the discarded husbands of great beauties, we ought to give them the benefit of the doubt, that perhaps they are not always as black as they are painted in divorce petitions. Probably many a one has gallantly defaulted when a beautiful and disappointed woman has grossly exaggerated his faults and misdeeds.

And, then, it may be that the beauty, surfeited with admiration and devotion, really is attracted by the novelty of something different, and that may be the reason why she capitulates to the type which takes her by brute force and continues to treat her brutally. The cave man may strike a responsive chord inherited from the cave woman. Some primeval instinct may surprise her into the belief that this is true love, and afterward reason returns and she knows she has made a mistake.

Possibly the discord originates on the other side of the house. Maybe it is the man who is deluded. They often are. He may have married a beauty and expected her to remain beautiful only to him, whereas, she continues to be beautiful in the eyes of others as well. She attracts a train of admirers. Jealousy and selfishness set in and make him intolerable even to the truest of wives.

Another reason why beauties so frequently figure in the divorce courts may be, not that their marriages are total failures, but that they are less inclined than plainer women would be, to put up with things as they are. Seeing themselves still young and beautiful, they believe they are deserving of something better, so they divorce the first choice, with the expectation of doing better a second time.

A conclusion is that, while beauty may not always be fatal to married bliss, it is too often a disturbing element. Happily, it doesn't threaten the marriage institution as a whole. Too many of us have to be satisfied with something else.

No, we're not talking about the She may be a little fast, but the girl we have just swift. She is the girl athlete, the girl championships in tennis, golf, swimming, jumping—even shooting. She has no time she's too busy running up records, smashing tions along with the records. This 1922 season smashed her way into popular favor everywhere has been a season of astounding revelations as athletic prowess of girls in their teens. Never have so many girls under 20 won such distinction outdoor sports. Why, some of them are famous now as the super-press-agented movie

For instance, there's Helen Wainwright of the York Swimming Club. She is a 16-year-old when she was only 13 she startled the public by ming through Hell Gate in almost record time year she has broken the world's record for in a special race at the Brighton Beach pool. was 1m. 49 3-5s, which bested the previous one-fifth of a second. Anne Powell of Oakland, Cal., is 17 and a junior at the Technical High School in Oakland. She has won the California championship in rifle shooting for girls and promises to become another Annie Oakley if she doesn't marry early and settle down. Anne is a beauty, and Cupid also is a sharpshooter, you know.

Alice Hope Doerken, 17, also shoots. This New Jersey beauty recently broke 180 out of 200 clay targets.

Muscle development de luxe is expressed in the case of Miss Babe Kalishek, an 18-year-old Los Angeles girl. Babe—they still call her that—startled spectators at a recent aviation meet when she ran out on the field and cranked the propeller of an airplane about to take off. That is a job for the strongest of men. Miss Babe's arm power is said to be phenomenal, and when she becomes a licensed pilot she will know how to take care of herself if she lands in a pasture and annoys the bull.

When Mercy Came To The Rescue Of Fugitive Convict No. 2483~

Changed viewpoint as to purpose of imprisoning offenders figures in good fortune of Joseph Vacek, who in boyhood killed his father; served seven years of a 25-year sentence, escaped from prison, changed his name, worked hard, married a good girl who bore him a son, was ready to build a home when recaptured, and now has been pardoned by the Governor of Illinois

Joseph Vacek greeting Lena, his wife, who holds the baby.

WHEN the superintendent of the Western Foundry Co.'s plant in Chicago was called to the telephone a few days ago the voice at the other end said:

"This is Mahoney talking—Frank Mahoney, you know. I—I'm back, and ready to go to work tomorrow, if—if"——

"Aw, forget it, Vacek!" the superintendent broke in. "Come on back—your job's waiting."

So the next morning Joseph Vacek punched the time clock at the entrance to the big plant, registering the fact that Frank Mahoney was back on the job. Before the day was over the assumed name of Mahoney was changed on the office records to the right name of Vacek, and thus he who for more than seven years was merely No. 2483 in the State Penitentiary at Joliet began a new industrial life under his old name.

In his leisure hours since then Joseph Vacek has consulted legal talent. Though the State of Illinois has nothing against him now, he has worried more or less. Lena, his little Irish bride of more than a year, is Mrs. Frank Mahoney according to the records of the church and of the Marriage License Bureau. Their wee son, 2 months old, is Cyril Thomas Mahoney, according to birth and christening records. Vacek himself is Frank Mahoney on the membership roll of the Catholic church where he worships.

"But it's all right, Joe," his lawyer has told him. "We'll soon have your whole family changed back to the right name. Don't worry."

Vacek, who is 27, with the world before him, really has little to worry about. Naturally, he may be inclined to regret that he found it necessary 11 years ago to shoot his father, Joseph Sr., and that he was pronounced guilty of murder and sentenced to serve 25 years in prison. But he has a happy home with his wife and baby in the little red brick house at 2625 Hamlin avenue, Chicago, where his mother, Mrs. Barbara Vacek, and his sisters, Hattie and Anna, can visit him without fear of betraying him to the police as an escaped convict. He does not own the house, but he has saved up some money and is saving more, intending to build a little home of his own. He had the plans all drawn when, about the middle of September, the fate he had feared for more than three years overtook him suddenly.

As Frank Mahoney he was aboard a street car, on his way to the foundry. A man of about his own age peered under the visor of his cap, which he always wore pulled down when in public places.

"Vacek," said the other man, ominously.

The other man was John P. Connorton, who had grown up in Vacek's neighborhood and once had been Joe's seatmate in school. Connorton had served as a policeman in Chicago and now is a detective for a railroad company. He reported his old schoolmate as an escaped convict.

When the officers came to take Vacek back to Joliet to serve out the unexpired 18 years of his sentence there was a sorrowful scene at home. The baby, then about five weeks old, was the only person not cognizant of the sorrow.

"It's all true, Lena," the man said to his wife. "Ever since I met you, two years ago, I have been afraid something like this would happen. I didn't tell you about my trouble, because I feared you wouldn't have me, but"——

"But you've been a good husband, Frank," said Lena, "and I'm going to stand by you. If you have to serve out your time I'll be waiting for you when you come out."

Then Vacek kissed his wife and baby and was taken down to Joliet. He was dressed in again and placed in the solitary cell in the dungeon, where all escaped convicts are kept for a month after being recaptured. That is a gesture of discipline, designed to teach them to be good.

Vacek stayed a little less than a week in "solitary." Then he was taken up to the Warden's office, where Mrs. Joseph Vacek, alias Mahoney, holding in her arms little Cyril Thomas Vacek, also alias Mahoney, rushed into his embrace. Mrs. Vacek had carried a suitcase in addition to the baby. An attendant handed the suitcase to Vacek. Inside was Vacek's best civilian suit, his Sunday-go-to-meetin's.

"I pressed 'em for you, Frank," said his wife. "Put 'em on."

"Frank?" queried the attendant. "Why, his name is Joseph."

"Yes, I know," said the smiling wife, "but he's Frank to me, and always will be."

With a pardon from Gov. Len Small in his pocket, Vacek returned to Chicago with his wife and child. There was a family reunion in the little red brick house, the restored citizen's mother and sisters being present. There were also some old friends, not including John P. Connorton.

"I've baked you some ginger snaps, Joe," his mother remarked. "I remembered that you always liked 'em."

After sampling the snaps, Vacek went to the telephone. He had been told that his job in the electrical department of the foundry plant was awaiting him.

"But I want to make sure," he said. "Maybe some of those fellows won't fancy the idea of working with an ex-convict. I'll call up the boss."

The boss took the same view of the matter that the general public seems to have taken. Gov. Small and the Division of Pardons and Paroles had taken that view, which, briefly, is to the effect that society would suffer more from the continued incarceration of Joseph Vacek than from his restoration to his family and to citizenship. This view had been reached by the State officials after serious consideration of all the pros and cons of the case. Gov. Small, in his office in the State Capitol at Springfield, had spent the greater part of a day in examining the documents and hearing the arguments. The Governor's decision to grant a pardon to a man who killed his father and then made his getaway from prison was announced only after a struggle with the old-time conventional theories as to what constitutes justice.

Around the State Capitol the general opinion is expressed that if a similar case had come up a few years ago the outcome would have been different. The prisoner would have had to serve at least a considerable part of his unexpired term before the Division of Pardons and Paroles would have recommended release. That was in the days when punishment rather than reformation was the theory of imprisonment for crime. Since then the State of Illinois has undergone a distinct change of viewpoint. This change is expressed concretely in the new Illinois State Penitentiary at Stateville, now building, a few miles [illegible] of Joliet. The new prison will take the place of the old institution at Joliet. It is being built on the prison farm of [illegible] acres. In the new prison the "progressive merit system" is to be in operation, whereby the inmates will be aided by the management in working out their [illegible] salvation.

"This can only be done with the [illegible] of suitable and adequate prison construction," according to John L. [illegible], State Superintendent of Prisons. "Conservation of health, both physical and mental, is one of the prime demands of the new theory. The idea, in a few words, is to turn out built-up men instead of broken-down men.

This appears to have been the underlying thought in the pardoning of Joseph Vacek. He is now a built-up man. If he should be compelled to serve out the rest of his sentence, or any considerable part of it, he would be a broken-down man. Against him was counted the fact that he made his escape only about a year before he would have been subject to parole based on good behavior and on the extenuating circumstances in his case. In his favor was counted his good behavior prior to his escape; his immurement in jail for a year before he was sent to the penitentiary; his seven years, three months and one day incarceration at Joliet; and—bearing heavy weight in the decision—his three years of hard, honest work since his get-away; his marriage to a good woman, his devotion to her; and—weighing much more in the scales of justice than his few pounds of flesh and bone—the baby [illegible]

Vacek's father was a well-to-do contractor in Chicago. The records show that he had been an inmate of an asylum for the insane, but was discharged as cured; that he left his wife frequently almost destitute; that he drank liquor and at times became violent; that his son Joseph, a boy of 16, clerking in a Chicago store to help support his mother, remonstrated when the father came home and threatened violence to the mother; that because of this remonstrance the elder Vacek got a revolver and said he would teach the boy how to behave; that there was a scuffle, and the boy got possession of the weapon and shot his father.

It was represented to the Pardoning Board and the Governor that young Vacek had an inadequate defense at his trial. When the Chicago newspapers told of the young husband and father's recapture and return to prison, scores of persons in Chicago and elsewhere insisted that he had "been punished enough" and should be set free to look after his family. One of these is Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal Court of Cook County, who sentenced Vacek to 25 years in prison. After hearing the story of Vacek's life since his escape, Judge McKinley said:

"Not only will I give my general support to his application for a pardon, but I will write a letter to Gov. Small recommending it."

Judge McKinley forthwith wrote and mailed the letter. Many other missives of similar nature were received by the Governor. The import of all was that society would be served best by the release of the prisoner.

When Vacek went inside the stone walls at Joliet he was 17 years old. That was March 21, 1912. When he made his escape on June 22, 1919, he was a strong and vigorous young man, because he had been on good behavior and had been working for a long time on the State farm outside the prison walls.

That farm, on a portion of which the new prison is being completed, helped to build him up. Also it helped him to get away. To have escaped from the grim stone stockade would have been quite difficult. It was comparatively easy for young Vacek to elude the farm guards and keep going. He went as far as Whiting, Ind., where he got a job—two jobs, in fact. For months he worked in the daytime for the Standard Oil Co., earning $4.95 a day. At the same time he did night work for the Steel and Tube Co. at Whiting, his pay being $5 for each night shift. He got along on four hours' sleep in the 24 hours. Napoleon Bonaparte, so history or tradition tells us, got five hours' sleep a day. Bonaparte, like Joe Vacek, also made one get-away and was retaken. There the parallel must end, for Napoleon died a prisoner.

About two years ago Vacek quit his double shift at Whiting and returned to Chicago. As Frank Mahoney he found employment in the Washington [illegible] Hospital. One of the other employes was Lena, a pretty Irish girl. "Frank" and Lena got chummy. An old-fashioned novelist would say that "their friendship soon ripened into love." In any event, the [illegible] convict wooed and won the girl, who never suspected his past.

Vacek, in the meantime, had become a member [illegible]

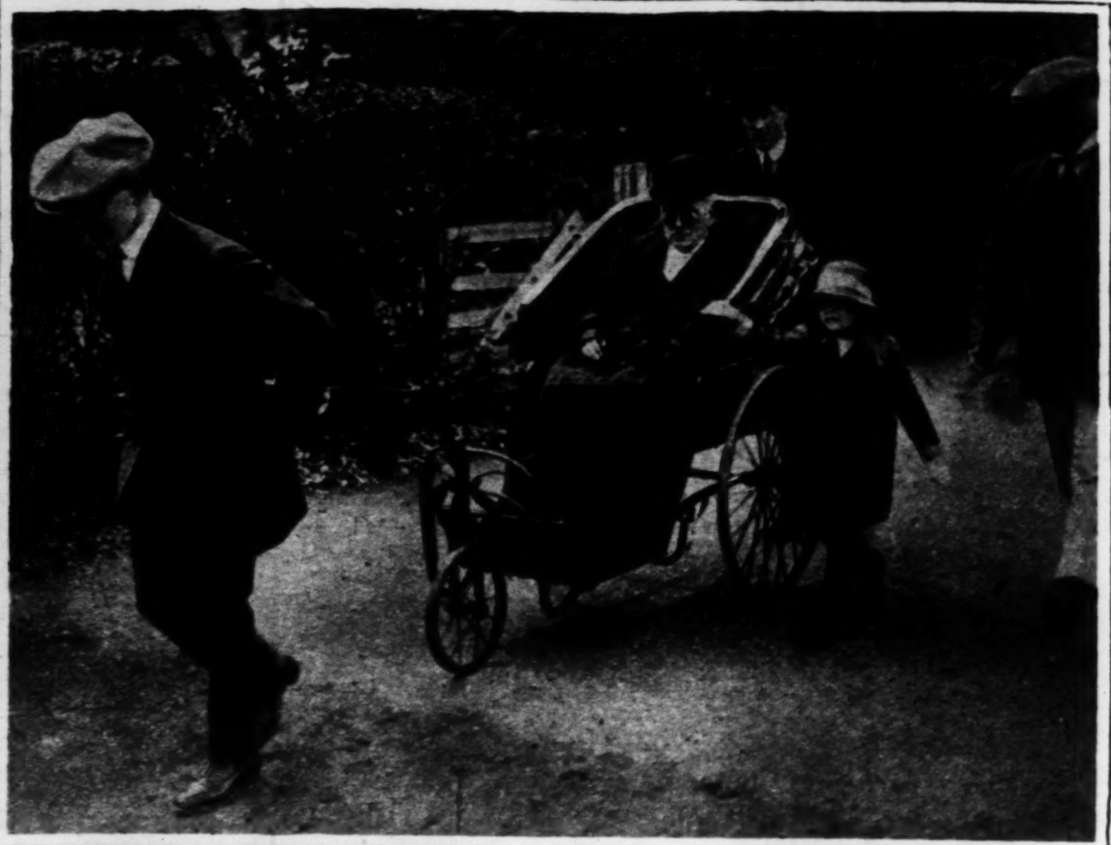
ONCE THE MOST ENVIED MAN IN ALL EUROPE — AND NOW!

Lord Rosebery, who achieved youthful ambition to win the Derby, marry the greatest heiress and be Prime Minister, tells tenants of his vast estate "We shall never meet again" as he is wheeled in a roller-chair on his farewell tour of inspection—Statesman whose fame filled world many years ago now 75 and preparing for the end :: :: ::



Lord Rosebery, with Ruth Primrose, his little granddaughter, bidding farewell to one of his estates.

SITTING in a roller chair, propelled by a husky young attendant, an old man was wheeled the other day about a vast rural estate in England. Covering his legs, rendered virtually useless by an attack of paralysis some years ago, was a thick plaid robe. Walking alongside was a little girl, daughter of his son, who was slain in battle in Palestine during the World War. Through his spectacles the old man peered at his tenants and employes. These gathered in little groups as the pathetic caravan approached and paused.

"We shall never meet again," said the old man, sadly. "Good-by."

Other aged men, some of whom had known the invalid when he was Archibald Philip Primrose—and that was more than half a century ago—leaned on their walking sticks and with cracked voices bade good-by to Lord Rosebery, their employer and friend, who was making his farewell round of the estate. Those old fellows remembered well when the grandfather of young Mr. Primrose died. His father had died earlier. The grandfather was Viscount Rosebery, Baron Primrose and Dalmeny, Viscount of Inverkeithing and Baron Rosebery. At his death, in 1868, all those titles descended to young Mr. Primrose, who was but 21. With the titles went the estates in both England and Scotland, many thousands of acres, with ancient castles for his lordship and many houses for the tenants.

The old retainers doffed their hats, not because this man once had been Prime Minister of England and as such a figure of world-wide importance; it was because he was overlord to the soil on which they were born and where they had grown to manhood and come down to tottering age. They were saddened by his farewell, their sadness made more poignant because of his physical helplessness.

Now, in his seventy-sixth year, almost forgotten by the world at large before he has gone the way of all flesh, Lord Rosebery's wheel chair outing was like that of an apparition from the buried past. Here was he who once was the most envied man in all Europe—rich, famous, powerful—a phantom of his former self. In retirement for years, partly because of his physical disability and partly by reason of having adopted the policy of "plowing his furrow alone," as he expressed it, Lord Rosebery is hardly to be regarded as a man of the living present. The World War, with all its tremendous incidents and influences, flashed and thundered past him almost without arousing him to utterance. The world in general has swept past him, many persons who followed his career having been under the impression that he died years ago.

"Rosebery? Lord Rosebery!" they exclaimed. "Why, this man can't be the one who succeeded Gladstone when the 'grand old man' finally retired! That must have been nearly 30 years ago."

Nevertheless, this is the same man. If the movie industry had a scenario artist of really active imaginative faculties, and if he should set himself most diligently to work, he might evolve a life story as interesting and as unusual as that of Lord Rosebery. In the apparent absence of such an artist, a few of the simple facts in the Rosebery career may be substituted for the fiction scenario suggested.

As the Hon. Mr. Primrose the future Earl had plenty of money. He was an undergraduate in Oxford University and already possessed a notable stable of racing horses. He was born with sporting blood in his veins. In England, as we know, the chief sporting event of the year is the horse race known as the Derby. To win the Derby is the dearest desire of every man who owns a promising horse.

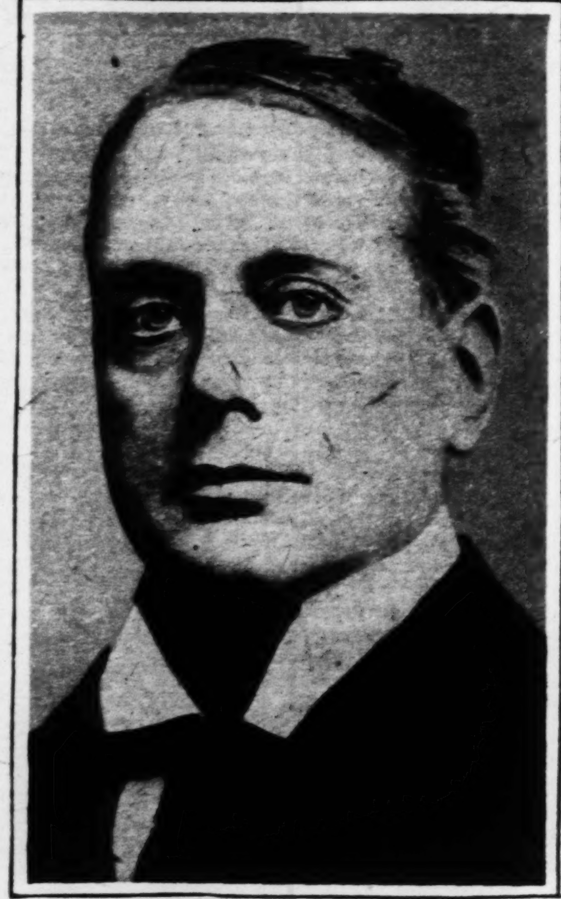
One of the sedate proctors at Oxford made protest because young Primrose was doing some betting on his own horses.

"Young man," he said, "if you do not alter your views you will end badly."

The young man was slightly indignant. With some spirit he retorted:

"I intend some day to win the Derby, marry the richest heiress in Europe and be Prime Minister of England."

The creator of material for the movies would introduce just here some lively business about the contempt with which the sedate proctor received this youthful boast, and the "Ha! ha!" of fellow students would be lettered on the screen between laughs. Just what the learned Oxford don replied is not a matter of history available for use here, but it is a matter of history that the Primrose person achieved each and all of his three ambitions.



Lord Rosebery five years ago, before he was stricken with paralysis.

Before he had finished his university course he became Lord Rosebery and left college to enter the House of Lords. He won the Derby three times. At the age of 31 he married Miss Hannah Rothschild, daughter of Baron Meyer de Rothschild, banker, richest man in Europe. She inherited all the Rothschild millions. At 47 Lord Rosebery became Prime Minister. He was at the head of the Government only about 15 months, but that was long enough to include two Derby dates for 1894 and 1895, and his horses, Ladas and Sir Visto, respectively, won the event both those years. (Fade-out business of the Oxford don doing a get-away from the "I told you so" of Lord Rosebery.)

The most envied man in Europe? Yes, for he had climbed the summit of his mount of ambition and set his standard upon each of its tripled peaks. He had conquered his three-cornered world. Still measurably young, still robust and hearty, still capable of enjoying life to the full, he possessed in superabundance the material wealth which, according to a certain type of mind, is supposed to be absolutely necessary to human happiness.

All those titles and estates which his grandfather, the fourth Earl, Lord, Baron, Viscount, et cetera, had left him were augmented in good time by additional titles and estates. Rosebery became, in 1911, Earl of Midlothian, Viscount Mentmore of Mentmore and Baron Epsom of Epsom. It was on his Epsom estate, by the way, that he was photographed the other day in his wheel chair, bidding farewell. His land holdings in Scotland include 700 acres in Linlithgowshire, 18,500 in Midlothian; in England, 5000 acres in Buckinghamshire, 2000 in Norfolk, 500 in Hertfordshire, 170 in Kent, and three acres in Suffolk.

All those acres were worth a great deal more in the matter of income to Lord Rosebery before the recent war than since, though he has not been pinched financially to the extent of suffering any privation. He has plenty of money now; but in his earlier days, up to 1914, what with the Rothschild millions and the Rosebery acres, he was one of the richest noblemen of the United Kingdom. With his pre-eminent political, social and sporting successes—premierships in all three—surely if envy ever had a shining target it was the Earl of Rosebery.

Another thing—Rosebery was one of the handsomest men of his day. There are proud and mighty British Lords with physiognomies calculated to stop Waterbury watches, but Rosebery in his prime was one that might have been counted upon to wind the town clock and set it striking vociferously in admiring applause. Pictures of him in his youth and in his days of power, physical and political, prove him an outstanding figure for sheer good looks. In those years it was a matter of comment in the British and American press that Lord Rosebery was of exceptionally fine physique, overflowing with health and spirits, a man to be envied!

And England expected great things of Rosebery, far greater than he had achieved. When, in the summer of 1895, his ministry fell, there was expectation that he would return to power later. He never came back. The ex-Premier was not in sympathetic touch with the trend of human events after 1895. He had broken with the Liberal policies of the Gladstone party, which he had supported from his youth and which had carried him twice into Gladstonian Cabinets as Foreign Secretary.

Whether Rosebery cared to come back is not clear to the casual historian of today. Reading between the lines of his subsequent career, one is inclined to the opinion that he preferred the ease of the scholar and the joy of the sportsman to the hubbub of politics.

For one thing, Lord Rosebery throughout his career has been a hater of war. "Europe is rattling into barbarism," he once declared, in an eloquent speech against the struggle for supremacy in armament. At another time he said:

"The British Empire is the greatest secular agency for good ever known to mankind. I do not say that I am unwilling to draw the sword in a great and necessary cause, but I say that anybody who engages in a war except under the pressure of direst necessity is a criminal."

In November, 1915, Lord Rosebery came out of retirement to preside at a Rhodes lecture in the University of London, and in his address on that occasion he said:

"I know nothing more disheartening than the announcement recently made that the United States—the one great country left in the world free from the hide-

One corner of K S D studio. Notice that radiators, pillar, and all furniture, even the adjustable pedestal for the microphone, have individual kimonas of soft cloth to eliminate any reverberation of sound waves.

Marvelous possibilities of the radio telephone demonstrated by midnight program broadcast from Post-Dispatch station, K S D—Letters received from listeners in every state in the Union, five provinces in Canada and ships on eastern, western and southern coasts — Many hearers sent telegrams expressing wonder at this unusual demonstration of long distance radio efficiency

THE marvelous possibilities of radio telephone broadcasting, a method of communication less than two years old, are so great that the public even now has hardly begun to grasp the significance and promise of this new method of annihilating time and space in the transmission of thought.

Through all the ages human thought has been the supreme simile for quickness, but, in comparison with the celerity of thought, its transmission has been painfully slow. Homer's recital of his deathless poems reached only a few who were within sound of his voice and through the succeeding centuries depended on mouth-to-mouth transmission until the art of printing preserved them for succeeding generations.

The smoke signals of the Indians, the beacon fires and later the lighthouses for the guidance of mariners, were primitive methods of broadcasting, but their effectiveness was limited to the range of vision.

Pheidippides sacrificed his life to carry to Athens the news of the Greek victory at Marathon, less than 30 miles away. Paul Revere exhausted himself and his steed in his famous ride. With the "toy" radio set of today Pheidippides could have flashed the information to Athens and Revere could have warned "every Middlesex village and farm" without heartbreaking physical effort. These instances are cited because, despite the radiophone's tremendous achievements there are many who still regard it as a toy, limited to short distances for its most effective work.

It is difficult to tune the average human mind to the possibilities of a method of communication which sets time and space at naught and carries its messages through the ether across continents, over mountain ranges and out over the wastes of far-flung oceans, radiating to all points of the compass at once, with the quickness of thought.

The completion of the telegraph brought forth the expression of rapt wonder: "What hath God wrought?" The telephone was hailed first as a toy and then as a necessary adjunct of human civilization.

The marvelous power and range of this new method of communication, radio, were shown in a startling way on the night of Tuesday, Sept. 12, and the early morning of Sept. 13, last, when a special midnight program was broadcast by the Post-Dispatch from its station, K S D, in the Post-Dispatch Building. The station has an output of 500 watts on the antennae.

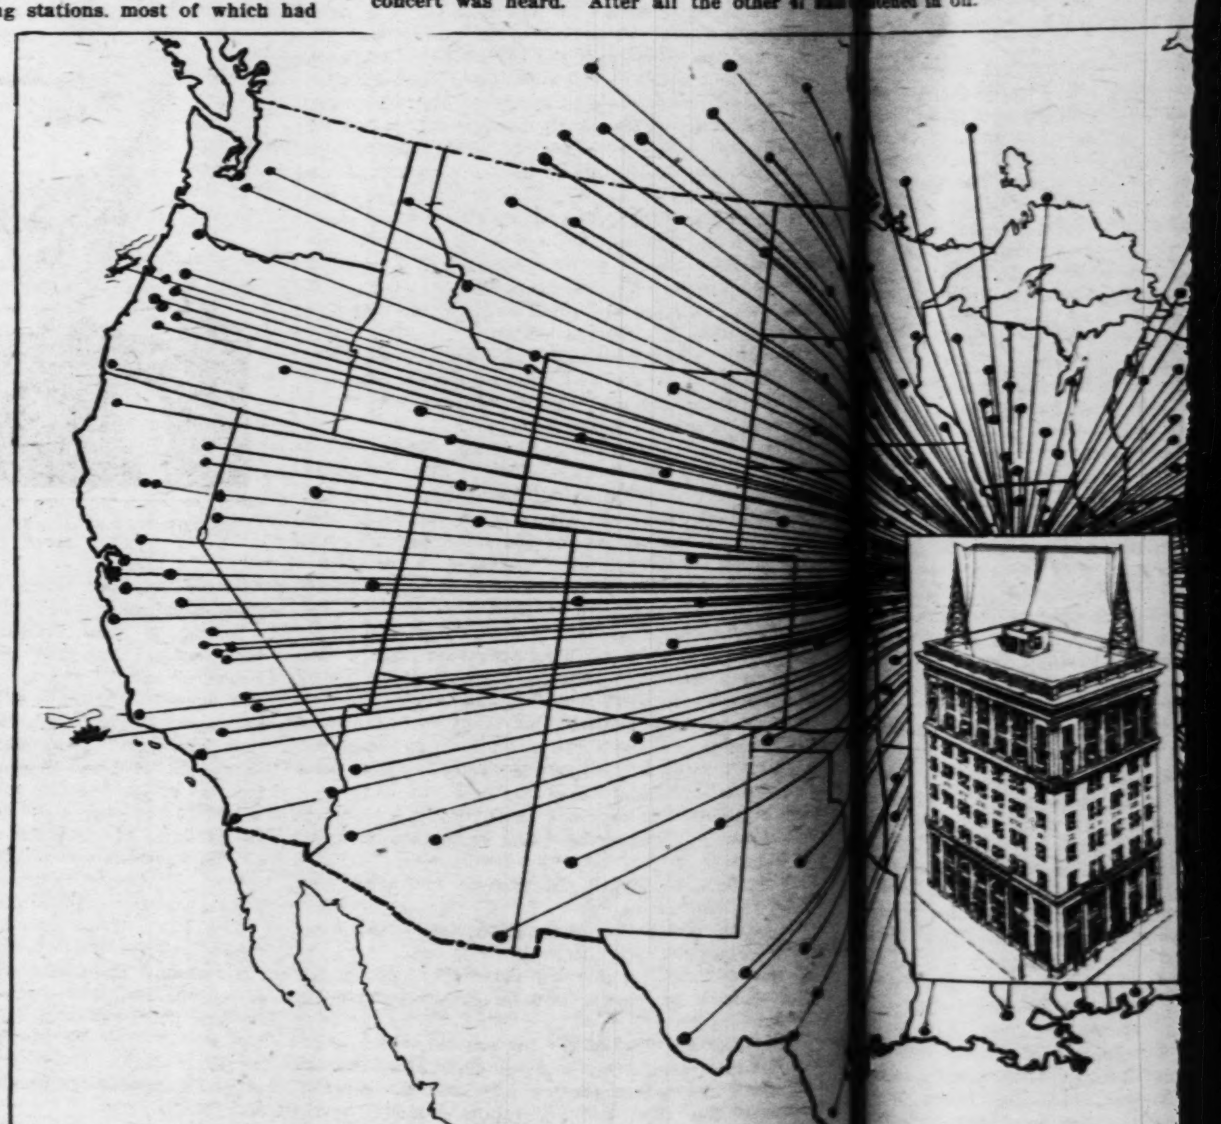
This was a program of vocal and instrumental music, the artists being Verna Day, violinist; Marie Gardner, lyric soprano; Eleanor Milham, dramatic soprano; Frank D. Papin, basso, and Edgar Shelton, pianist.

The midnight and early morning hours were selected for the dissemination of this concert to test the range of the station under favorable air conditions because in those hours there would be less interference from other broadcasting stations, most of which had ceased operating for the night.

It was especially desired to learn if the broadcasting would carry to the Pacific Coast and a request sent out over the radio that all persons hearing the concert in the Pacific slope states send a telegram to that effect to the Post-Dispatch.

The result was astounding. Not only did many telegrams come from the Far Western states, but more than 1000 letters reached the Post-Dispatch from persons who had heard the concert in all parts of the country. Examination of these letters showed that the concert was heard in every state in the Union, in five provinces of Canada and on vessels in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and in towns close to or on the Gulf of Mexico.

The program was picked up far above the most northern town in Maine, at Mont Joli, on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, 350 miles northeast of Montreal and more than 2700 miles from the point where it was picked up in the Pacific Ocean. It was heard in New York and San Francisco and in Florida and the State of Washington.



When the broadcasting started at midnight, [illegible] Louis time, it was 2 a. m. in the Eastern cities [illegible] have daylight saving. In the Far Western [illegible] was only 9 p. m. when the program started. [illegible] though the clocks showed so wide a range, all [illegible] hundreds who received the concert heard it at the [illegible] instant, for the radio waves travel in all [illegible] with a velocity which would take them around [illegible] 25,000-mile circumference of the globe in less than [illegible] tenth of a second.

If Lincoln had spoken his Gettysburg address [illegible] the mouthpiece of a radio set like the one [illegible] Post-Dispatch station his immortal words would [illegible] carried instantaneously all over the United [illegible] instead of reaching only the comparatively small [illegible] ering which he addressed.

The letters received by the Post-Dispatch [illegible] that even at the most distant points the concert [illegible] bers came in with remarkable clearness and [illegible] and fine modulation. That the announcements [illegible] clearly heard was shown by the fact that [illegible] those who sent in telegrams and letters referred [illegible] the artists by their correct names, which they [illegible] heard only over the radiophone.

That there were so many listeners in the [illegible] states was surprising, considering the lateness of [illegible] hour at which the concert started for them, but [illegible] radio enthusiasts remain up until late hours [illegible] for messages when the air lanes are clear, and in [illegible] sections there are persons whose hours of employ[illegible] make it possible for them to use their sets only [illegible] at night and early in the morning. A Boston [illegible] his letter explained that he was a chauffeur and [illegible] after working late he was turning the dial on his [illegible] ceiving set when he accidentally tuned in on the [illegible] Dispatch concert. Others wrote that they were [illegible] cians and moving-picture-theater employes who [illegible] no opportunity to use their sets until after [illegible] their work at midnight.

Sidney Y. White, on the Mallory steamship [illegible] Jacinto, picked up the midnight concert when the [illegible] was 90 miles north by east of Jupiter Inlet, [illegible] He wrote: "Tuned you in very clear. You could [illegible] knocked me over with a brick when you signed [illegible] Listened from 2:10 to 2:27, when you quit. [illegible] lin selections by Miss Day and solos, "O, Promise [illegible] etc. Also about telegrams from Arizona. [illegible] A-1; no fading at all."

At the same instant when White was enjoying [illegible] concert in Florida waters, J. Howard Anderson [illegible] listening to it in Melville, Saskatchewan, Canada. [illegible] derson wrote: "Just a line to let you know [illegible] heard your special midnight concert. We [illegible] enjoyed it."

Arizona completed the roster of states in which [illegible] concert was heard. After all the other 47 [illegible]

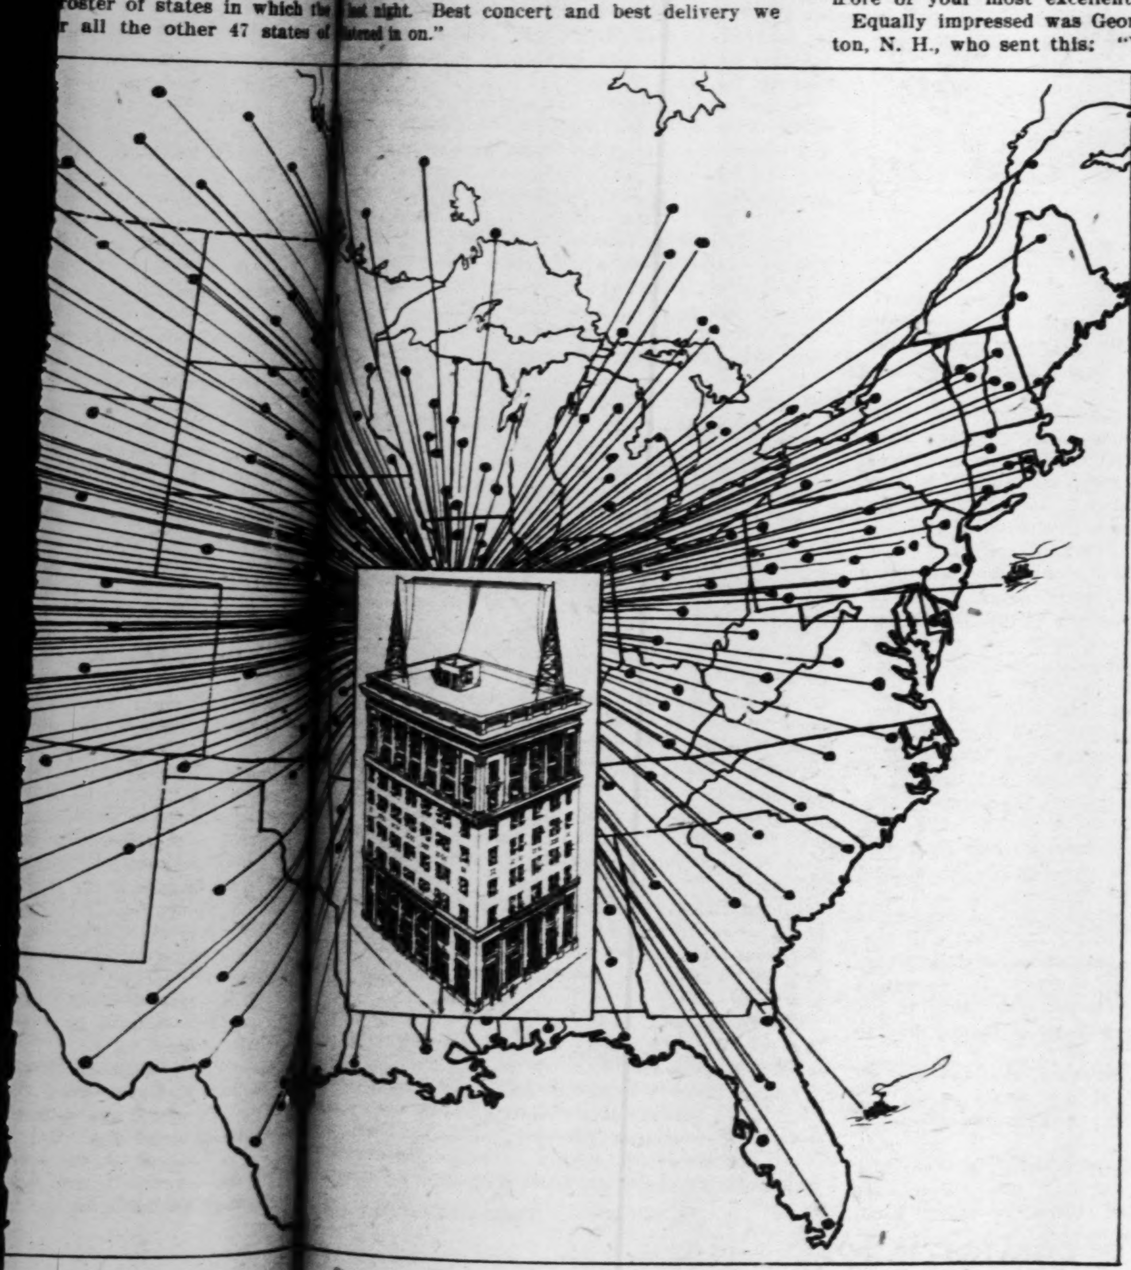
A view of the transmission room in brick building on roof of the home of the Post-Dispatch. The speech input panel, which will amplify several hundred thousand times, is shown at extreme left. Back of the table are the cabinet containing the four 250 watt power tubes and to the right of that the switch panel.

For anything but radio it is a long jump from Colorado to Pennsylvania, but in this case the gap was easily bridged, for the same concert numbers that pleased the Ordway man gave equal joy to L. F. Deming of Philadelphia, who wrote: "I listened in on your midnight program last evening. I get many long-distance stations, but K S D comes in clearest and best of all. Your announcing is perfectly articulated and I congratulate the lady who does it. Hope to hear more of your most excellent programs."

Equally impressed was George G. Blanchard of Wilton, N. H., who sent this: "You will be interested to know that last evening a group of friends were greatly entertained by your musical program. I could hardly believe my ears when I heard the announcer say: 'K S D, St. Louis.' The music was very clear, the weather announcement perfect, and I call it high-class broadcasting. I hope to get you again.



The steamer F. H. Buck, off the coast of California, picked up the midnight concert, as was thus attested by a letter from Gordon E. Robinson, the ship's radio operator: "Am getting you fine now, 9:50 p. m. here. Modulation fine, clear and distinct. The violin selections were great and all the notes came through fine. I like them best. We are off the coast of California, about 50 miles north of Point Arguella and about 30 miles out."

The clearness with which the names of the artists were transmitted to L. M. Thompson of Arcadia, Neb., is shown in his letter: "I received your midnight concert great last night. I enjoyed Miss Day's selections very much and wish to thank her and Mr. Shelton and also Miss Gardner for 'A Perfect Day,' one of my favorites."

Stephen Inns, radio engineer in naval torpedo barge 4, at Piney Point, Md., wrote: "Would you accept a letter of comment and appreciation from a critic? Have just finished listening to a number of vocal selections by Miss Gardner and I might state that they were as clear as though I was present in the studio."

Away up in the Northwest, at Backoo, N. D., 10 miles from the Canadian border, W. R. Beaver, a bank cashier, heard the concert. He wrote: "We are very glad to be able to report that we received your Tuesday evening special artist program in excellent shape. It was one of the best, if not the best, we have heard during the entire summer by radio. You people are to be congratulated on the fine quality of your entertainment."

L. D. Hoy, proprietor of the Shanghai Cafe, Cheyenne, Wyo., sent this: "Received your midnight concert and wish to congratulate you on your modulation and the splendid program which you broadcast. You came in so loud that I laid down my head phones and could hear it 20 feet away."

There is no way of computing the number of persons who heard the concert, but the letters showed that in many instances others besides the operator of the receiving machine listened to the concert. Some told of having guests at their homes to hear the concert, while others with loud-speaking machines told of crowds gathered in the streets to listen. The Stanford-Schulte Radio Co., at Delta, Colo., has a public radio outfit. H. F. Schulte wrote that 300 adults listened to the Post-Dispatch midnight concert. "We tuned in about 10 o'clock, mountain time, and never touched a knob until you quit at 1 a. m.," he wrote. "All through this time your signals did not fade the least bit. The modulation of K S D is perfect."

B. Gero Jr., proprietor of a moving-picture theater in Manistique, Mich., wrote: "The vocal selections given by Miss Gardner we considered perfect, due to the great volume without distortion. By placing one of our receivers to the telephone transmitter several of these selections were heard by people in other parts of the city."

High Standard Set for Class B Radio Broadcasting Stations.

SEVERAL applications from broadcasting stations for the Class B license, permitting the use of the 400-meter wave, have been received by the Department of Commerce, but to date only two have been authorized to transmit this wave. They are the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which got the first license, and the Westinghouse Station at Chicago. The officials in charge of the licensing of radio stations do not anticipate that more than a dozen applications for the Class B license will be received, as only the most powerful stations, carrying high-class entertainment regularly, can hope to qualify.—From radio bulletin issued in Washington.

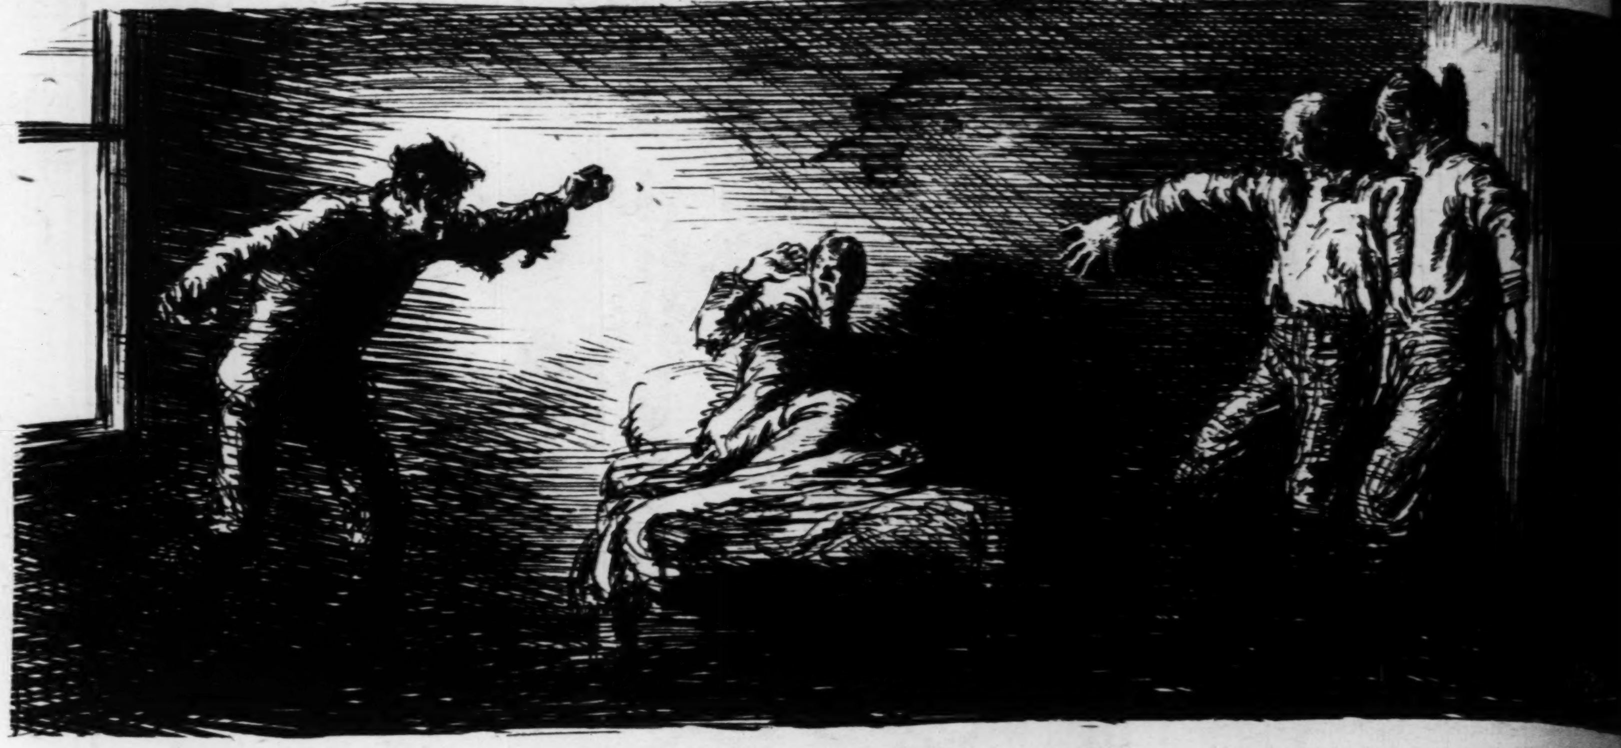
Tragic Plight of Many of Missouri's Paupe



During State-wide tour of the almshouses, an inspector finds squalor and wretchedness in some counties like those which Charles Dickens excoriated in England, years ago— Rickety old "shacks," infested with vermin and lacking all the conveniences, provided for some of the public charges—Others are "boarded out" to farmers at cost of $12 to $22 a month, and the most pitiful cases are in county-owned institutions where the indigent must dwell with imbeciles and the insane

This shabby old building is the almshouse of Pemiscot County, Mo.

THE pitiable condition of the paupers in some Missouri counties, where no provision is made for their comfort nor even, in some instances, for the common decencies of life, is revealed in reports to the State Board of Charities and Corrections by W. L. Miller, until recently the board's inspector of jails and almshouses.

Some places which the inspector visited were just examples of sordid wretchedness, due to callous officials or lack of funds; in other places, where the "county farm" is leased out to the highest bidder, and the latter thinks only of a profit, conditions sometimes are still worse; and the most shocking cases are where the indigent who have become public charges are obliged to live with the insane.

There are numerous Missouri counties, of course, where the paupers receive kindly treatment, but too often their lot is one of wretched squalor, not exceeded by conditions in England a hundred years ago, which were to be remedied when the pen of Charles Dickens brought the facts to public attention.

Aged men and women, cripples, disease-ridden unfortunates and the feeble-minded, stripped of their means by misfortune or illness, unable to earn their own living, bereft of or abandoned by their kindred and friends, are in some counties herded together in old buildings. Described as "shacks," these buildings have two, three or four rooms and some of them are said to be infested with vermin. Rickety old furniture adds to the cheerlessness of the surroundings.

Missouri has no State institutions for the care of the indigent, that function being left to the counties, subject only to periodical inspection by an agent of the State Board of Charities and Corrections in years when the Legislature has appropriated the necessary funds.

The only power in the State board, when its agent finds unsatisfactory conditions, is to recommend to the County Court the changes which are needed. Occasionally these changes are made—grumblingly. More often the recommendations are pigeonholed and forgotten, for the delegations which are active before county courts and which have the support of bodies of voters, are, more often than not, those seeking the building of roads and bridges or of drainage ditches and levees.

Miller recently completed a tour of the almshouses of the State. He found some of them in splendid condition, with modern brick buildings, steam-heated, electric-lighted, equipped with bathing facilities and sanitary systems, the inmates housed in light, airy, comfortable rooms, and the various classes properly segregated. These, he said, are largely in the wealthy counties, many of them north of the Missouri River, where the population is greater and where more progress in community life has been made.

In contrast to that picture, however, he found others—and the daily living conditions in some of them can hardly be pictured in words. Seventeen counties, he reported, have no almshouses. They are: Benton, Hickory, Madison, Ozark, Taney, Knox, St. Louis, McDonald, Camden, Miller, Maries, Phelps, Shannon, Oregon, Reynolds, Carter and Wayne counties.

Taney County, in the Ozark country and adjoining the Arkansas line, has no county charges. In the others, for the most part, the wards of the counties are boarded out, some farmer or other person receiving a stipulated sum monthly for the care, clothing, medical attention, food and housing provided.

The extent of the comforts furnished can be conjectured when it is known that for all this the counties pay from $12 to $22 a month.

Some of these wards have a rather bad time of it, Miller found. But their lot is not the worst. That condition prevails, he said, in counties where the county farm (for most county wards are kept on farms) is leased out, along with its paupers, to the highest bidder.

This system throws wide the door to abuse. In years when crops are not abundant the profits, if any, have to come out of the limited necessities which would have gone to the county charges. It also means that almost inevitably the first consideration of the lessee will be to "make the farm pay," rather than to take the best care of his wards.

Miller is inclined to feel, however, that the darkest pictures are those in some of the county-owned and operated institutions which are in the hands of county-paid overseers.

Several counties whose County Courts are thriftily inclined as to the care of the poor and insane have elected to care for their own insane, instead of sending them to one of the State hospitals for the where the counties pay $18.50 a month for each sent.

One county is quartering, in the same its charity wards, 10 insane persons, the poor ing the lower floor and the insane the upper. of the latter are violent and rave almost One little man weighing about 100 pounds handcuffed and manacled. He lies on the and night. Then there is a religious former circus wild man who are at each other constantly.

The lower floor became rather congested ago, so one pauper who was sane was to room with the insane. Now he, too, is insane, says.

Another almshouse, operated under the tem, is a two-room shack in a hill county, well ventilated through large cracks in the heated by a "monkey" stove in each room. women, including a feeble-minded girl, are proximity. The place is on the crest of a some distance above a spring-fed creek. Water be dragged up this hill by the inmates, bathing facility is the creek. In winter, they get no baths.

In another hill county the almshouse is an cabin, with a lean-to shed in which five and women are kept and through the roof of sky can be seen. One of the aged inmates, crippled beyond activity by rheumatism, is in control. The inmates wash their own clothing old iron kettle and tubs out-of-doors, which presents somewhat of a problem.

On the bed of one of the old men the tattered and torn so that sharp ends of the beneath stuck through and prodded his back. were there in profusion. Now and then person at this place has to be kept in chains, being no other facilities.

Six men paupers live in a one-room in which the odor of coal oil and disinfectant ening, in still another county.

These instances are samples.

Sanitary conditions in such abodes, where everything ordinarily counted as worth living gone, where days and nights follow each cheerless monotony, can be imagined as well as can be described. Miller says they often are

One of his principal indictments of present tions is the fact that feeble-minded persons are mingled with the others with so little Of the paupers in these county institutions, one-half are aged persons, he says. Of the about one-half are feeble-minded, to whom care should be given. Yet there they are, and the discriminate housing of the two sexes creates situation, the outcome of which is that, year in and out, feeble-minded women in these places bring dren into the world to become a further charge society.

In the main, Miller believes, the counties are about as much financially as they well can do, instances recounted are from the poorer counties, property values are low and where relatively money is obtained for the county budget.

The life of persons in the almshouses in these ties, as to the kind of buildings in which they housed, the quality of the clothing and of the not much more primitive than that of a large the other residents of the counties, Miller says.

The other factors, however, of being forced close companionship with the feeble-minded and insane, living under wretched sanitary conditions,

Finding the Bones of Moloch's Victims

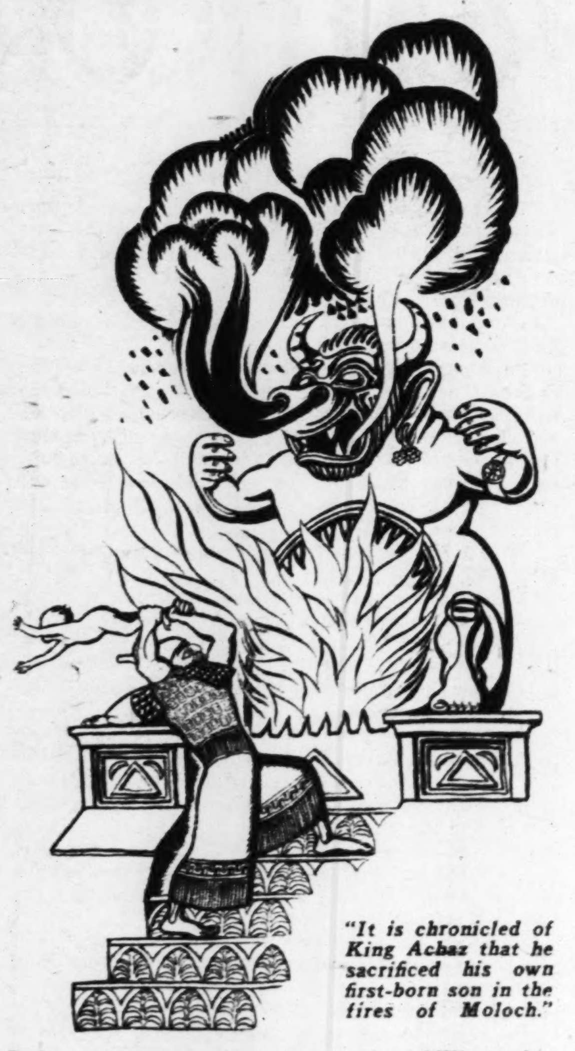
Ruins of Carthage yield urns with the ashes of babies sacrificed by their parents in the furnace belly of the awful god and offered in her temple to the pale veiled goddess Tanit or Astarte :: :: ::

By ARTHUR BENINGTON.

THE temple of Tanit, goddess of the Carthagenians, was unearthed last January and February by French archeologists, and beside it they found the burying place for the charred bones of the little innocents whose fathers and mothers gave them alive to the furnace that roared in the redhot belly of the great god Moloch to hymns of adoration sung by the parents as they stood by and watched their babies burn. Multitudes of little urns of terra cotta were dug up, each containing the charred fragments of the bones of a baby. Over each little grave was a stele of stone, a sort of tombstone inscribed with the symbols of the goddess to whom the ashes were offered. No record of the name of the baby or any prayer for its soul, but a phrase of adoration for the goddess or a thanksgiving to her for a favor obtained.

Two separate expeditions have been at work at Carthage, one American, one French. Count Byron Khun, a Pole, who has been in New York recently, has told of the wonders discovered by the American explorers. The French expedition is headed by M. Icard, a famous archeologist, aided by M. Gielly. It is these latter who discovered the temple of Tanit and the graves of the innocents who had been sacrificed to Moloch or Baal-Ammon. They worked down through four different levels, each marked by steles and altars. The uppermost one is contemporaneous with the Roman occupation. In it is a vast field of steles in rows, one behind the other, each bearing the symbols of either Tanit or Baal-Ammon, some with dedications, some with the symbol only—a crescent reversed over a disc or triangle, some with ears of wheat—symbols of fecundity. Roughly cut in the stone, they indicate that they were of the period of the decadence of Carthagenian art.

Below these steles was discovered a great bed of urns, all alike, about 12 inches high, of white or red terra cotta, with handles and wide mouths sealed with a plug of pure yellow clay. These urns contain the calcined bones of babies and young children, and a few of them those of lambs and birds. In one of them were a skull, jaws, teeth, femurs and hip bones, only slightly burned and still in such condition that Dr. Pallary of the Pasteur Institute at Tunis was able to reconstruct almost a complete skeleton, of which M. Jaubert de Benac sends a photograph to L'Illustration to accompany an article describing the discoveries.



"It is chronicled of King Achaz that he sacrificed his own first-born son in the fires of Moloch."

As the explorers went down they came upon altars and pillars and capitals carved in the best style of Carthagenian art, many of them with the crescent and triangle of Tanit, some with the head of a bull, a mummy or a temple in high relief. Other urns containing charred bones of animals and birds were found at the lowest level, and some beautiful jewelry of pure Egyptian style, bones of the children, calcined by fire and laid away under the Egyptian altars.

But by far the most interesting of all the finds is that of the walls of the temple of the pale goddess Tanit.

There is a terrible chapter in "Salammbo" in which is described the sacrifice to Moloch of all the eldest boys of all the families of Carthage. The city was in deadly peril; the great Hamilcar Barca was far away fighting the Romans, and the Carthagenian mercenaries had rebelled. Hannibal was still a small boy and his sister Salammbo was hiding him from the stern priests for fear that he, too, might be placed alive in the hinged arms of the brazen monster and dropped into the roaring fire of his white-hot belly.

Who does not remember that blood-curdling picture in "Cabiria" which showed a baby writhing in the flames of Moloch's maw?

In "Salammbo" Flaubert tells how his heroine saved her little brother from being sacrificed to the insatiable Moloch and thus finding his miserable end in one of the urns offered to Tanit, saved him to become the great General who led the Carthagenian armies through Spain, across the Alps and gave the Romans such a terrible dance till the waiting tactics of Fabius Maximus finally brought about his defeat. It was the high priest of Tanit who instructed Salammbo how to save her city, who gave her the sparkling veil of the goddess to wear as her cloak when she went at night to the tent of the rebel leader.

Human sacrifice, a feature of many pagan religions, is practiced even today in a few remote parts of the world, but it seems incredible that a form of sacrifice in which fathers and mothers gave their own children to be burned alive while they stood watching the agonies of their loved ones in flames could ever have attracted whole nations—yes, fascinated them to such an extent that they were with the greatest difficulty won away from it.

History, both sacred and profane, tells the story of this inhuman cult, but it has taken the most recent discoveries on the site of the City of Carthage to bring forth visible, tangible proof of its savage rites.

Moloch and Tanit were the twin gods of the Carthagenians. The Carthagenians were Phoenicians, of that Semitic race which seems to have had its origin in Arabia and which included the Hittites, Philistines, Moabites, Amorites, Aamalekites, Jebusites and all the other tribes of Canaan against whom the children of Israel had to wage war for so many years in conquering the Promised Land. All those Canaanites worshiped Baal, whose other name was Moloch, and Astarte or Ashtoreth, whose other name was Tanit. And all of them sacrificed their children to Baal by throwing them alive into the furnace.

It was because of this practice that the children of Israel were sternly commanded by God to destroy utterly all the inhabitants of the Land of Canaan, and it was their disobedience in sparing the beautiful Canaanitish girls that was the beginning of all their woes, for it brought down upon them the wrath of an outraged God.

Very early in their conquest of the Promised Land did the Israelites succumb to the wiles of the pagan beauties and adopt the cult of Baal and Ashtoreth; in fact, it was before the death of Moses.

He called to her to come out and have her picture taken beside her spinning wheel at the well. It was the eternal feminine which spoke its protest from the cabin's dim interior, to the general effect that she wasn't dressed up for having her picture taken, and when she emerged a little later there were evidences of a hasty sprucing up for the ceremony.

Uncle Tom was born within two miles of where he lives now. He has never moved out of the settlement because he has never found a better place to live. "I ain't never been away no great sight," he said, "but once in a while I used to go off looking for a good country. But I always come back. I never did move away because I noticed that them that moved away always moved back."

He stands a straight six feet and looks 20 years younger than the years he confesses. His sight and hearing are unimpaired. He has no rule for staying young. "I never took much care of myself," he said, "When I was a young feller I was a good deal of a sporter. My father lived to be 101. The only difference between him and me is that I use a little tobacco, the only member of my family that ever did."

Col. Samuel Hunter of the Illinois National Guard, who had accompanied the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent on the visit, handed him a cigar and Uncle Tom tucked it away. "I'll smoke it after breakfast tomorrow mornin'," he said.

The gift reminded him of his father's attitude on the subject of smoking. "He used to take me to town with him sometimes," he said, "and some feller would come up and say, 'Well, Dick, let's have a seegar,' but father always said he never took nothin' in his mouth that he didn't callate to swaller."

Comparison of notes revealed that the Wards and the Hunters were among the pioneers of the neighborhood. Uncle Tom reminded Col. Hunter that the original Wards came to the community with "your pa's grandpa."

"The Hunters and Wards," he said, "used to visit back and forth a lot. The Hunters used to come to our house once a year. One of them was a preacher, and as there wasn't no church house he preached at our house."

He was asked about his religious affiliations and said: "My mother was a Hardshell Baptist and my father wasn't nothin'. I reckon I belong to the same denomination as him. I ain't never found no church hard up enough to take me in. I've been tryin' a long time to get religion, but I ain't never struck the right note yet. Politics? Oh, I'm a Democrat. I was born a Democrat and never knowed nothin' only to be a Democrat. I don't see how I could better it much, the fix that things is in. I'd be willing to quit if the Republicans was any better, but I can't find many of them that's goin' to vote their own ticket. The Republicans have been runnin' this country. The people are sore at the whole outfit and I believe they're goin' to clean 'em out.

"I blame some of our county officers with a heap of what happened over there at Herrin. The right kind of a man would hace stopped it before it got so far along, or asked for soldiers. I kep' listenin' and listenin' for it, but no call came. Now that the devilment's done I hope them that's guilty will get all that the law owes 'em. There wasn't much that I could do, but I done that much, because I want these younguns, when they grow up, to be able to say that their old grandpap stood up for what he thought was right."

It was the recollection of the testimony of Uncle Tom and other old men of Williamson County that wrung from Attorney-General Brundage the tribute: "Old men for courage." There is good reason to doubt that if dependence had been upon the truth-telling of young men any indictments would have been found.

The courage of the old men who testified is equaled by that of the old men who questioned them. The members of the grand jury which returned the indictments average more than 50 years of age.

NEW DISCOVERIES IN THE HEAVENS

APPROIXMATELY 2000 new nebulae have been discovered by Donald H. Menzel on ninety photographs taken with the 24-inch Bruce telescope at the station of the Harvard College Observatory at Arequipa, Peru.

Of the 800 brightest ones, it is believed that about 35 per cent are spirals, which are by far the most numerous of all the varied types of nebulae. Several years ago Prof. Keeler, working with the Crossley reflector at the Lick Observatory, estimated that there were about 120,000 spirals within the reach of this instrument and probably five times this number are within reach of the great reflectors of the Mount Wilson Observatory.

The total number of nebulae now recorded and catalogued is about 20,000. One-fourth of the number have been found at the Harvard Observatory, on photographs taken with the Bruce telescope, with exposures of from one to five hours. The station at Arequipa was established to obtain photographic surveys of the southern heavens and to classify objects which cannot be observed from northern observatories. Most of the newly discovered spirals lie within 45 degrees of the south pole of the heavens, and so are below the horizon in our latitudes.

The distances of the spirals are unknown, but they are the most rapidly moving of all celestial objects, and it is generally believed that they are hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of light years away from the earth. Their velocities through space average about 480 miles per second.

The origin and nature of the spirals is still one of the mysteries of modern astronomy. An analysis of their light shows it to be such as would be emitted by a cloud of stars with intermingled nebulosity, and spirals viewed edgewise are almost invariably surrounded by a band of dark, absorbing matter cutting off the light from the inclosed nebula.

There are some excellent reasons for believing that the spirals are systems of stars or "island universes," as the term is, that are at enormous distances from the earth.

In addition to the recent discovery of new nebulae at Arequipa, another nova has just been discovered at the same station by Miss Annie J. Cannon in the constellation of Scorpio. Many novae have been discovered by Miss Cannon and Miss Woods on Harvard plates in recent years.

THE PAPERED DOOR

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

THE small house was drafty. Air currents moved the curtains at the windows and billowed the cheap rug on the floor. The baby had had the croup; it had given her an excuse for being up, for the roaring kitchen fire and lights.

Early in the evening she had sent over to the doctor's for medicine. The drug store was closed, and a curious crowd had gathered in front of it. The doctor dispensed his own prescription and had sent back with the bottle a kindly note:

"Dear Molly: If we can do anything, let us know. Would you like Ann to spend the night with you?"

The 8-year-old girl had trotted back with the message that she thought she could manage nicely. The thought of Ann's prying eyes made her shudder.

Then the quiet night had settled down on them. Some time after 11, moving about the room, she had glanced out of the window and had seen glowing in the darkness a lighted cigar.

She knew what it meant. The house was being watched.

By 1 o'clock the baby was breathing easier. A light snow was falling; frozen hard, it beat against the windowpanes with little, sharp cracklings. In the next room the 8-year-old girl was sound asleep, one arm thrown over her head.

She went to the window and looked out again; the man across the street moved uneasily, hesitated, came over and signaled her to raise the window.

"How's the boy?" he called through the snow. She knew him then—Cooper, one of the county detectives.

"Better; the doctor's medicine has helped him."

He hesitated awkwardly. "You'd better go to bed," he said at last. "There is no use of two of us staying up. I guess he won't come back while I am hanging around."

"No," she replied, wearily, "he won't come back, Mr. Cooper. That was the last word he said."

The detective coughed, cleared his throat, spat.

"We are all mighty sorry," he observed, using a carefully conversational tone. "These—things happen now and then."

"I expect you are right cold out there."

"Well, I am not warm," he replied, cheerfully. "I am burning up considerable fuel, but it doesn't seem to heat much." To show his ease he lighted a fresh stogie. The match flare showed his good-humored face drawn and strained in spite of his tone.

"You wouldn't care to come in and warm your feet, would you?"

He hesitated. The village street was quiet. Owing to its semi-isolated position, he had commanded all approaches to the house from his vantage point across the street. Once inside—— But then again—the house was small and lightly built; one could hear a footfall through it. A man ought to be able to thaw out now and then.

"I don't know but I will for a minute or two, Mrs. Carter," he assented, "if you'll unlock the door."

She came downstairs very soon, a shawl over her thin wrapper, and set a match to the fuel already laid in the parlor stove before she admitted him.

She was a pretty, slender woman, still in her twenties—an ultra-refined type for the village. Indeed, she had known better things than this thin clapboard house. She had taught school at the county seat before her marriage. The village had always resented her shy aloofness, the books on her parlor table. It had predicted calamity from the marriage, and now it had come.

The detective eyed her with appreciation as he drew up his chair to the fire and warmed his numb fingers.

"How did it happen, anyhow, Molly?" he said at last. He had known her for a long time. "Had he been drinking?"

"I don't exactly know, myself." Her tone was dreary. "I had asked him not to carry a gun—but when you ask Jim not to do a thing, he wants to right off. It was over a woman."

The detective was uncomfortable; he had known about the woman, of course. Molly Carter went to the foot of the stairs and listened; all was still. The baby still slept. So small was the house that she could hear his slightly stertorious breathing. The baseburner was glowing now. She did not sit down again. She rolled her arms in her shawl and stood looking at the blaze.

"It was the girl at Heideger's. He's been hanging around her for quite a while. Jim was sociable, you know, and lately, with the baby and the house, I haven't had much time for him. At night I was tired."

The detective nodded.

"And he went out, I suppose?"

"Well, you can hardly blame him. I guess here in the town they'll say I drove him to it. I have the reputation of thinking more of my children than I do of my husband. In the evenings I liked to read. Jim was no hand for reading."

In her nine years in the village she had adopted many of its colloquialisms.

"From what I gather, because with everybody talking at once I got kind of mixed up, it seems that the clerk from the drug store walked into Heideger's while Jim was there and asked the girl what she meant by fooling around with a married man. Then he told Jim to come home because his baby was sick. I'd sent over this afternoon for some ipecac. That was the start. The trouble came then."

"Then Jim came home," the detective prompted, "and after that what, Molly?"

"Then Jim came home," she repeated, in a spiritless voice, "and said he was in trouble and he would have to leave town. I gave him all the money I had and got his winter overcoat out. It smelled of mothballs, but there wasn't time to air it. He put it on and went."

The detective sniffed.

"Mothballs!" he said. "That's what I've been smelling. You must have spilled them around."

There was no light in the room or he would have seen the woman grow paler and her hands clutch under her shawl.

For a few moments there was silence in the parlor, save for the creak of the self-rocker in which the detective gently swung himself. He yawned and stretched out his legs.

"You don't mind if I smoke in here?"

"Jim smoked all over the house. Is the drug clerk badly hurt?"

The creaking of the self-rocker stopped. The detective looked hard at his stogie. "Yes, he's pretty bad," he said, after a moment. "He's—well, Molly, you will learn it soon enough anyhow—he's dead."

She sat down on one of the stiff plush chairs. Her jaws quivered nervously. She could scarcely articulate.

"Then it's murder?"

"I am afraid so."

He made an eager attempt to comfort her, bending forward.

"After all," he said, "something of this sort was bound to come sooner or later. If he gets away, you are better without him. If he doesn't"—— He threw out his hands. "He has never supported you. You have worked for him, haven't you, and borne his children? What have you had out of it? Try to be sensible. Things are pretty bad just now, but—they have been pretty bad for you for the last eight years. It's been drink and gambling and other women, and I am going to tell you the whole thing straight. There is no use cutting off a dog's tail an inch at a time. He shot the girl, too. They are both dead. The Sheriff is out with a posse, and there is a thousand dollars on his head."

The real blow had fallen earlier, in that early dusk when Jim had come in, frantic, and told her part of the truth. She only winced now, went a little paler; with the increasing warmth of the room the odor of moth balls seemed to fill the house.

She was dizzy, rather. Holding to the back of her chair, she listened for the sick child above. He still slept.

"Two of them!" she said at last. "The drug clerk was a nice young man. We used to talk about books and articles in the magazines. And now—oh, my God!" She pulled herself together sharply. "It's a pity of the girl, too," she said, quietly. "She was young and the men made a fool of her. I guess she wasn't really bad."

The detective said nothing. he rose, hoisting himself slowly out of the low rocker.

"Well, back to work!" he said. "It's been mighty good of you, Molly. I am warmed through now." He yawned again. "The sister hasn't got out my flannels yet and I was nearly frozen. I wasn't expecting an all-night job."

He threw the end of his stogie into the stove, drew a revolver from his coat pocket and glanced at it, remembered suddenly that the action was hardly delicate, and thrust it back. The woman's mind was working again—a subconscious intelligence that seemed to have been scheming all the while.

"I was thinking," she suggested, "that if I leave the latch off you could come in now and then and get warm. I can leave a cup of tea on the fender. Do you want milk in it?"

"Sugar, thank you, and no milk," he said. "You were always a thoughtful woman, Molly." There was something almost wistful in his voice. Mindful of the sleeping baby, he closed the door cautiously behind him as he went out.

Only the most casual search had been made of the house. Jim Carter had been seen after the tragedy to go home and shortly after to drive fiercely out of town in his buckboard wagon headed for the mountains. No one in the village had tried to stop him. He was grim, white-lipped and armed.

The posse had found the buckboard eight miles away at 9 o'clock that night, the wagon wedged in a fence corner, with a wheel off and the horse lame. There was every likelihood that Carter was in the hills.

It was Heideger, the hotel keeper, who had offered the reward. It was Heideger who, with German shrewdness, had suggested that the house be watched. But it had been almost midnight when the detective took up his position across the street, and in the interval—

* * * * * * * *

Molly Carter went back to the kitchen and lighted the lamp. The room was stifling, but the fire in the range was low now. She put in a fresh piece of wood and set the kettle over it. Then, and not until then, did she go to the wall beside the range and put her lips to it.

"Can you breathe?" she said, cautiously. The reply came with astonishing clearness through the thin wall; even the sound of a body turning in a [illegible]ow space.

"I am making another air hole. Go out and see if any chips fall out."

"I can't, Jim. Chester Cooper is across the street. Did you hear what he said? They are both dead."

There was no reply to this. In the silence she could distinctly hear the bit as it worked its way through the outer wall.

"Jim, did you hear what he said?"

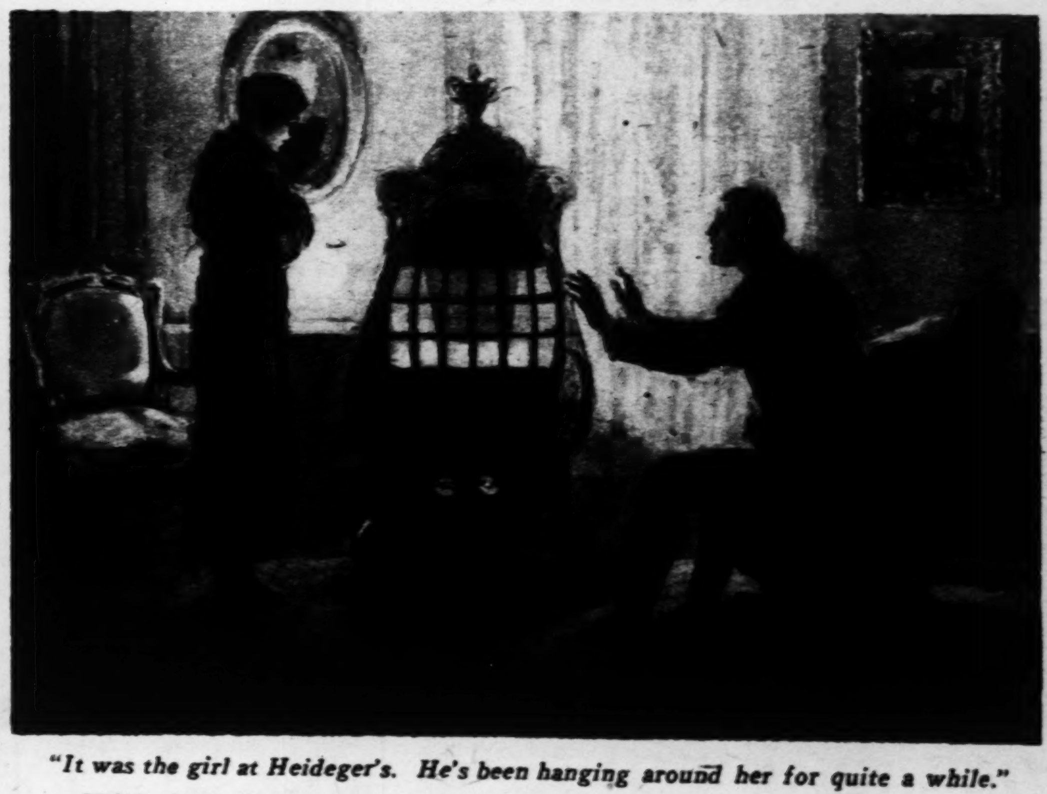
"I heard," he said, sullenly.

The plan had been his. He had thought it out when the horse had gone lame and he had had to work his roundabout way back home through the commencing storm. But the execution was hers, and the work was well done.

Beside the range there had been a small unlighted closet, with a flat wooden door that fitted close, without a frame. Long ago the door had been papered to match the kitchen. It had been the work of only a few moments to take off the lock. After that he had gone inside and drawn the door to behind him, shutting out from her sight, to her relief, his shaking hands and death-colored face. It was done and the paste almost dry before the Sheriff's officer had made his cursory search. The child upstairs had been coughing hoarsely all the time. The little girl was with him, locked in. Half distracted, she had papered anew from the ceiling to the floor over the little door and built a fire in the range to dry the paste. In the lamplights the unfaded strips did not show against the old ones. Daylight would reveal them cruelly. If she could only keep the neighbors out! They knew the kitchen. Even at that she had gained a night.

She made tea, crossing and recrossing the little room cautiously. When she came back from placing the cup on the fender of the parlor stove, the querulous voice was speaking from the other side of the partition. "What the devil do you mean by bringing him in here anyhow?"

"I thought it looked as if I



"It was the girl at Heideger's. He's been hanging around her for quite a while."

hadn't anything to hide, Jim. He'll never think you are here now I have left the latch off, so he can go in and out when he likes."

"Well, you'd better see about those chips. Wait until he comes in the next time and then slip out the back door."

"The snow will cover them. Jim, there's a thousand dollars on you!"

"Well, why don't you sell me out? I haven't been worth much to you living; a thousand dollars dead wouldn't be bad."

Her lip quivered, but she made no reply. That was what the detective had said.

"If I could get to the barn," he grumbled, "I could work around behind Shultz's fence and get to the railroad siding. Where is that fool standing?"

"He's just across. You can't get to the barn. Jim, is that sleeping stuff of yours bitter?"

He gathered the meaning in her tone and came close to the papered door.

"Yes. Why?"

"Would you notice it in a cup of tea?"

"I don't know. Not with sugar, maybe."

"Have you got your knife?"

"Yes."

"I thought this way, Jim: If he comes in to get warm and goes to sleep by the fire, I will rap three times lightly. You'll be listening, will you? You won't go to sleep?"

"God in heaven! do you think I am sleeping tonight?"

"Then listen. You can slip the blade around the door from the inside and cut the paper, can't you?"

"How do you know he is coming back?"

"He said he might. I think he will. What's that?"

She turned toward the rear of the house; a pair of peering eyes were staring at her from the window. She turned her back to them.

"Jim!" Almost a whisper, but he heard.

"What?"

"Mrs. Shultz is on the back porch."

When she looked again, the eyes had gone, and her neighbor was trying the door. With a despairing gesture Molly blew out the lamp and opened the door.

"I've been in bed for three hours," explained the visitor, "and seems like I can't sleep, with you so near and in trouble." She pushed herself through the half-opened door into the room. "I'm sorry. I guess there's nothing anyone can do to help.

"I could sit here by the stove. I can't sleep anyhow. It's a comfort when you're in trouble to have someone about to lean on."

There was a sort of ghoulish curiosity in her face, but there was real kindness also. She came close and lowered her voice.

"I thought you was talking to someone a minute ago."

"I was speaking to the detective. He was in. I'm making him a cup of tea."

If the curiosity faded from Mrs. Shultz's eyes, the kindness also left them.

"Tea! I don't know that I'd care to make tea for a man who was waiting to hang Shultz or fill him full of lead!" She turned toward the door, hesitated. "I told Shultz I was going to stay. He locked the door after me. You wouldn't mind, would you, if I lay on your parlor sofa?"

Molly was a mild woman, but now she was desperate.

"I'm afraid I would mind," she said, quietly. "This is a very sad night for me. I should like to be alone; absolutely alone."

The kitchen door closed with a bang. She was alone —with the papered door.

She ran up the stairs and brought down the sleeping powders in their pasteboard box. One she emptied swiftly into the teacup on the parlor fender. The box she put into the stove and waited until it was entirely consumed.

"I've fixed it, Jim. Listen for three raps. If he doesn't drink it, or the powder doesn't work"——

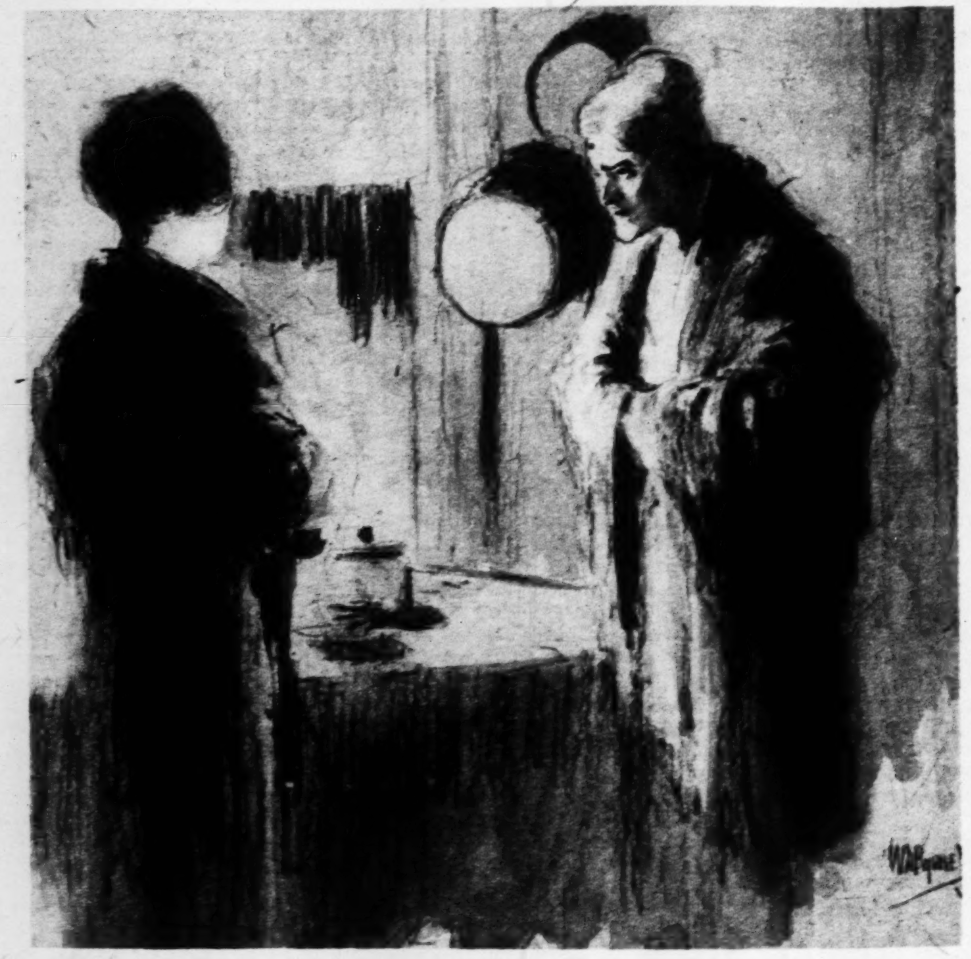
She broke down. There was only the sound of the bit from beyond, creaking as it turned. She opened the front door and called across in a low voice:

"I've left your tea for you and the door is unlocked. Be sure to close it tight when you go out."

Then she went upstairs.

The baby slept soundly. She put out the lamp and, drawing her shawl close about her, sat down in a chair before the fire. She thought of many things: of the days when Cooper, across the street, had wished to marry her; of her husband; of the blond girl at Heideger's; of the papered-up closet in the kitchen and the man in it drilling madly for breath.

Her eyes fell on a small white object on the floor. That brought her back with a start. She made another painful excursion to the lower floor.



"Tea! I don't know that I'd care to make tea for a man who was waiting to hang Shultz or fill him full of lead!"

"He smelt the moth balls on your overcoat," she said to the wall. "I've got to hide it again. It's under the parlor sofa. Where'll I put it?"

"Hide it behind the wood on the back porch." The voice was muffled.

"Jim, have you got enough air?"

"Oh, I'll manage, somehow."

The kitchen clock struck, a thin metallic ring. It was a very old clock, with flowers painted on the dial. It had marked in its time death and birth and giving in marriage. But never, perhaps, had it marked so tragic a night.

Two o'clock.

She went back to her chair and sat listening. The blizzard had come now. Wind whipped the window sash and roared about the house corners. Beneath the ill-fitting frame a fine line of snow had sifted. She was painfully alive. Every sense ached with waiting.

More than once she mistook a slamming shutter for the closing of the front door, only to be disappointed. But it came an hour later, when the clock with the painted dial was striking 3. The bait of the unlatched door and the glow of the baseburner through the parlor window had caught their victim.

Cooper had compromised with his conscience by making a careful round of the house. At one place he stopped. In a lull of the wind, it seemed to him that there was a curious, grinding sound. Then the gale rose again, caught his hat and sent him running and cursing. When he came back the noise, whatever it was, had ceased.

He stamped cautiously on the low porch and opened the door. A homely odor of tea met him, mixed with comforting warmth. He turned up the lamp and took off his overcoat. It was his best overcoat and shabby at that. If he had any luck and the storm drove Carter back, he'd be able to buy a new one. He dusted it off with his hands before hanging it over the back of a chair to dry. On one shoulder a few grains of sawdust caught his attention. He looked at them with speculation, but without suspicion. He had a sense of humor.

"Ha!" he said to himself. "Even the sky has gone in for adulteration. Sawdust in the snow!"

He smiled at the conceit and sipped the tea. It was not very good, but it was hot. Overhead he could hear the slow rocking of a chair.

"Poor child!" he said. "Poor little girl—all this for that damned skunk!"

He effected a further compromise with his sense of duty by getting up every few minutes and inspecting the street and pulling open unexpectedly the back door. Always on these occasions he had his hand in his revolver pocket.

Three-thirty.

The storm had increased in violence. Already small drifts had piled in still corners. The glow of the baseburner was dull red; the rocking overhead had ceased.

Cooper yawned and stretched out his legs.

"Poor little girl!" he said. "Poor li'l girl! And all for the sake—all for sake"——

He drew a deep breath and settled lower in the chair.

Molly Carter bent down from the top of the stairs and listened. The detective had come in and she had not heard him go out. It would not do to descend too stealthily, for fear he were still awake. As an excuse she took down a bottle of the baby's to fill with milk.

Cooper was sound asleep in the parlor, his head dropped forward on his breast. There was a strong odor of drying wool as his overcoat steamed by the fire.

Still holding the bottle, she crept to the kitchen and tapped lightly three times on the papered door. There was no reply. Her heart almost stopped, leaped on again, raced wildly. She repeated the signal. Then, desperately, she put her lips to the wall.

"Jim!" she whispered.

There was absolute silence, save for the heavy breathing of the detective in the parlor. Madness seized her. She crept along the tiny passage to the parlor door, and, working with infinite caution, in spite of her frenzy, she closed it and locked it from the outside. Then back to the kitchen again, pulses hammering.

The bottle fell off the table and broke with a crash. For a moment, she felt as if something in her had given way also. But there came no outcry from the parlor, no heavy weight against the flimsy door.

She got a knife from the table drawer and cut relentlessly through the new paper strips. Then, with the edge of the blade, she worked the door open.

Jim half sat, half lay, in the bottom of the closet, with closed eyes. Drink and fatigue had combined with stifling air. She reached in and shook him, but he moved under her hand without opening his eyes. With almost superhuman strength she dragged him out, laid him prone on the kitchen floor, brought snow and rubbed it over his face, slapped his wrists with it to restore his pulse—the village method.

He came to quickly, sat up and stared about him.

"Hush," she said, for fear he would speak. "Can you hear me, Jim? Do you know what I am saying?"

He nodded.

"Cooper is locked in the parlor, asleep. You can get away now. My God, don't close your eyes again. Listen! You can get away."

"Away from what?" he asked, stupidly.

"Away from the police. Try to remember, Jim. You shot the clerk from the drug store and—the girl at Heideger's. The police are after you. There's a thousand dollars on your head."

That roused him. He struggled to his feet, reeled, caught the table.

"I remember. Well, I've got to get away. That's all. But I can't go—feeling like this. Get me—some whisky."

He needed it. She brought it to him, measured out. He grumbled at the quantity, but after he had had it his dull eyes cleared.

She had gone to listen at the parlor door. When she came back he was looking more himself. He was a handsome fellow, with heavy, dark hair and dark eyes, a big man as he towered above her in the little kitchen. His face did not indicate his weakness. There are men like that, broken reeds swinging in the wind, that yet manage to convey an impression of strength.

His wife brought the overcoat and held it out for him.

"By Shultz's fence, you said, Jim, and then to the railroad. There's a slow freight goes through on toward morning, and if that doesn't stop, there's a milk train. And—Jim, let me hear about you now and then. Write to Aunt Sarah. Don't write here, and don't think once you get away that you are safe. A thousand dollars' reward will set everybody in the country looking."

He paused, the overcoat half on.

"A thousand dollars," he said, slowly. "I see. When I'm gone, Molly, how are you going to make out?"

"I'll manage somehow; only, go, Jim! Go!"

"I don't know about this going," he said, after a moment. "They'll grab me somewhere. Somebody'll get that thousand. You'll manage somehow! What do you mean by 'somehow'? You'll get married again, maybe?"

"Oh, no; not that."

He cared a little, then—in spite of the girl at Heideger's!

If he would only go! This thing for which she had schemed the whole night might fail now while he talked.

"You can't stay here," he said, slowly. "You can't bring the children up where everybody knows about their father. They can't run any sort of a race with that handicap."

For answer she held out his overcoat. But he shook his head. Perhaps it was his one big moment. Perhaps it was only a reaction from his murderous mood of the afternoon. For now, quite suddenly, he put his arms around her.

"I am not worth it, Molly," he burst out. "I am not worth a thousand dollars alive or dead, but if they're offering that for me, if you had it you could go out West somewhere and nobody would know about you

You could start the kids fresh. That's about the only thing I can do for you—give you a chance to get away and forget you ever knew me."

She did not understand at first. When she did she broke into quiet sobbing. She knew his obstinacy; the dogged tenacity of the weak. Now, when every second counted, to have him refuse to go!

She pleaded with him, went down on her knees, grew hysterical finally, and had to be taken in his arms and quieted, as he had not quieted her in years. And still there was no sound from the parlor.

"They'll get me somehow," he repeated over and over. "And I—I would like to feel that I had done one decent thing first. That red-eyed ferret in the parlor will get the money if you don't. For the children, Molly; they've got a right to ask to be started straight."

That was the argument that moved her finally into a sort of acquiescence. There seemed nothing else for her to do. He even planned the thing for her. He would hide in the barn in the loft. The swift snow would soon fill the footprints, but in case she was anxious, she could get up early and shovel a path where he had stepped.

When Cooper wakened she could say she thought the thing over, that she needed the money, that she would exchange her knowledge for the reward.

"Only you get a paper for it—get a paper from Heideger. He'll bluff it out if he can. He was stuck on the girl himself."

"Jim, did you—care for that girl so much?"

His face hardened. "I thought I did; for a—for a little while. She made a fool of me, and I—showed her! But all the time I loved you, Molly."

He kissed her solemnly as she half lay in his arms and went toward the door.

"Good-by and God bless you," he said. "And kiss the"——

He choked up at that and made his way out through the drifts on the porch to the little yard.

She closed the door and fastened it behind him. Then very carefully she unlocked the parlor door and opened it. Cooper was still in his chair, sunk a little lower, perhaps, and breathing heavily, the overturned teacup on the floor beside him.

She went back to the kitchen and filled a fresh bottle for the baby.

As before, it served as an excuse for her presence; with it on the table near at hand she trimmed carefully the rough-cut edges of the papered door. The inside of the closet was a clear betrayal. Still listening and walking softly, she got a dust brush and pan and swept up the bits of wood and sawdust from the floor. The bit she placed on the shelf and, turning, pan and brush in hand, faced the detective in the doorway.

He made a quick dash toward the closet.

"What have you got there?" he demanded, shortly.

But now, as through all the long night, her woman's wit saved her.

"Don't jump at me like that. I've broken one of the baby's bottles and I am just about to sweep it up."

She stooped and swept the broken glass on to the pan. He stared into the empty closet.

"I'm sorry, Molly—I didn't mean to startle you. That tea and the heat of the stove put me to sleep. I've been half frozen. I guess it was the bottle breaking that wakened me. I thought you said you would go to bed."

"I couldn't sleep," she evaded, "and about this time the baby always has to be fed."

She took the bottle of milk from the table and set it inside the teakettle to warm. Every vestige of suspicion had died from the man's eyes. He yawned again, stretched, compared the clock with his watch.

"It's been a long night," he said. "Me for the street again. Listen to that wind. I'm sorry for anyone that's out in the mountains tonight."

He went into the parlor and, putting on his overcoat, stood awkwardly in the little hall.

She faced him, the child's bottle in her hand.

"I guess you know how I hate this, Molly," he said. "I—I—this isn't the time for talk and there ain't any disloyalty in it, but I was pretty fond of you one time—I guess you know it—and—I'm not the changing sort. I have never seen anybody else I liked the same way. It don't hurt a good woman to know a thing like that. Good night."

Before she went upstairs she took a final look out the back door. Already Jim's footprints were effectively erased by the wind. An unbroken sheet of white snow stretched to the barn. By morning, at this rate, the telltale marks would be buried six inches or more.

She blew out the kitchen lamp and went slowly up the stairs.

The baby cried hoarsely and she gave him his bottle, lying down on the bed beside him and taking his head on her arm. He dropped asleep there and she kept him close for comfort. And there, lying alone in the darkness with staring eyes, she fought her battle. She had nothing in the world but the cheap furniture in the house. Her own health was frail. It would be a year perhaps before she could leave the children to seek any kind of employment.

The deadly problem of the poor, inextricably mixed as it is with every event of their lives, complicating birth, adding fresh trouble to death—the problem of money confronted her. Jim had been, in town parlance, "a poor provider," but at least she had managed. Now very soon she would not have that resource.

To get away from it all! She drew a long breath. From the disgrace, from the eyes of her neighbors, the gossip, the constant knowledge in every eye that met hers that her husband had intrigued with another woman and killed her. To start anew under another name and bring her children up in ignorance of the wretched past—that was one side.

But to earn it in this way—that was another. To sell out to the law! All her husband's weaknesses and brutalities faded from her mind. She saw him—with that pitiful memory of women which forgets all but the good in those they love—only as he had looked in the one great moment of his life an hour ago. Once again he was her hero, her lover; once again he held her in his arms. "I would like to feel that I have done one decent thing."

The battle waged back and forth. She no longer cried. There are some tragedies to which the [illegible] of tears is denied.

Four o'clock.

She slipped the baby's head from her arm and got up. Cooper was still across the street, huddled against a house, stamping to keep warm and swinging his arms. In an hour the milk train would come in and wait on the siding for the express. That would have been Jim's chance. If he could get away, he could start all over again and make good. He had it in him. He was a big man—bigger than the people in the village had ever realized. They had never appreciated him—that was the trouble. Why should she have a fresh start? It was Jim who needed it. She moaned and turned her face to the pillow.

Five o'clock.

The milk train whistling for the switch. It was still very dark. She crept to the window and looked out. It was gray dawn, with snow blowing like smoke through the trees. The cold was proving too much for Cooper. He was making his way cautiously across the street through the snow toward the house. Once in the parlor again, she could get to the barn. The freight waited on the siding 10 minutes sometimes, and tonight, with the snow, it might be longer.

She leaped off the bed and hurried down the staircase. Just before the front door opened to admit the detective the kitchen door closed behind her. She was out in the storm.

She stumbled along, sometimes knee-deep, holding up her thin cotton wrapper.

The barn door was open and she slipped in.

"Jim," she called. "Jim!"

She was standing at the foot of the loft ladder, all her heart in her voice.

"I can't do it, Jim. I can't sell you out, even for the children, Jim!"

There was no sound from above.

She climbed up, trembling. The loft was dark. She would not believe the silence, must creep around to each corner.

"I can't do it," she said, over and over. "I can't do it, Jim!" He was gone.

She felt her way down through the darkness and staggered to the door of the barn. Cooper was standing there, quietly waiting for her.

From the railroad came the whistle of the express as it raced through, and the slow jangle of the milk train as the engine took up the slack.

"He's gone, Molly," said the detective. "He went out by Shultz's at a quarter to five. I guess he'll make his getaway." There was shame and something else in his eyes.

The freight gathered way. As they listened it moved out on to the main track.

What You Can Learn in a Detective Laboratory

of the cross-section of the hair, whether round or oval. Curly hair, by the way, nearly always has an oval cross-section. Straight hair is nearly always round.

If you find two samples of hair which are alike in all five characters, namely, diameter, color, central core, surface markings and shape of cross-section, you may feel sure that the two samples came from the same person. If all or most of these characters are unlike, the samples are probably of different origin.

Of course, there are scores of other things that might be said about the examination of hair. Some of them will get into later articles. But the main thing for the ambitious hair expert to get is experience. Study all the hair samples you can secure. Form your own mental pictures of what they are like and how they differ.

Absorbing entertainment awaits those men and women who may attempt experiments for themselves in scientific investigation, either of crime or in any other field of research.

Elaborate and expensive apparatus is not necessary. Glass vials, test tubes and a few similar utensils of science are necessary, but may be obtained for the expenditure of small sums, oftentimes to be counted in pennies rather than dollars. A gas flame is available in almost any home. The other "props" are a table and quiet or freedom from interruption by other persons.

Scientific observation and investigation is intensely interesting, whether conducted by the amateur or the trained observer. Very many persons are familiar with the thrills that accompany the practice of amateur photography. There is a certain pleasurable excitement to be derived from developing a photographed plate or film in the dark room. From a plain surface the outlines of the photograph grow out. It is as if the plate were coming to life. Few photographers, either amateur or professional, outgrow the thrill that comes with watching the development of the negative or paper print. It is as if the photographer were watching the performance of a miracle under his own hands.

Scientific research and investigation represents the difficult, the seeming impossible. In its application to the unraveling of crime it consists of outwitting the other fellow, testing one's brains and wit against those of the lawbreaker.

The amateur investigator need not undertake, at least at first, research that will revolutionize the world of biology and anatomy. But he or she may nevertheless undertake to study and solve the thousands of little natural mysteries that enter into the everyday lives of the average family and the average individual.

Once the Most Envied Man in Europe

ous burden of war—is about to embark upon the building of a huge armada, destined to be equal or second to our own. It means that the burden will continue upon the other nations and be increased exactly in proportion to the fleet of the United States."

Shortly after Lord Salisbury succeeded him in the premiership, Lord Rosebery resigned the Liberal leadership because Gladstone urged intervention in Turkey on account of that country's atrocities in Armenia, and Rosebery refused to support the demand at the risk of a European war. He did support the war against the Boers in South Africa at the outset, but soon disagreed with the manner of its waging. Lord Rosebery has been, for a quarter of a century, England's premier pacifist; and, it may be insinuated, he has lived to see Europe rattle wellnigh into barbarism.

This old man in the wheel chair has been a friend of America throughout his career. Four times he visited this country in his days of strength. "The United States," once he remarked, "is the most democratic community in the world."

Always a scholar, Rosebery has written several notable books. His first work was a life of William Pitt. "Napoleon: the Last Phase," is one of his best-known books. Living chiefly on his estates in Scotland and rural England and but rarely in his London house since his retirement from the premiership, he has devoted his days to study and writing. His wife died in [illegible]. From time to time there were rumors of his engagement to women of the nobility, but he never has remarried. His youngest son, Neil Primrose, a member of Parliament, fell in the war. Lord Dalmeny, his other and elder son, also an M. P., is heir to the title and estates. A few weeks ago Lord Rosebery formally turned over to Lord Dalmeny the chief estate the family holds in England.

That was but another gesture of farewell from this man of remarkable career, who seems to feel that his days are numbered.

Tragic Plight of Many of Missouri's Paupers without the love and companionship of relatives and friends, puts their lot low in the scale of human comfort.

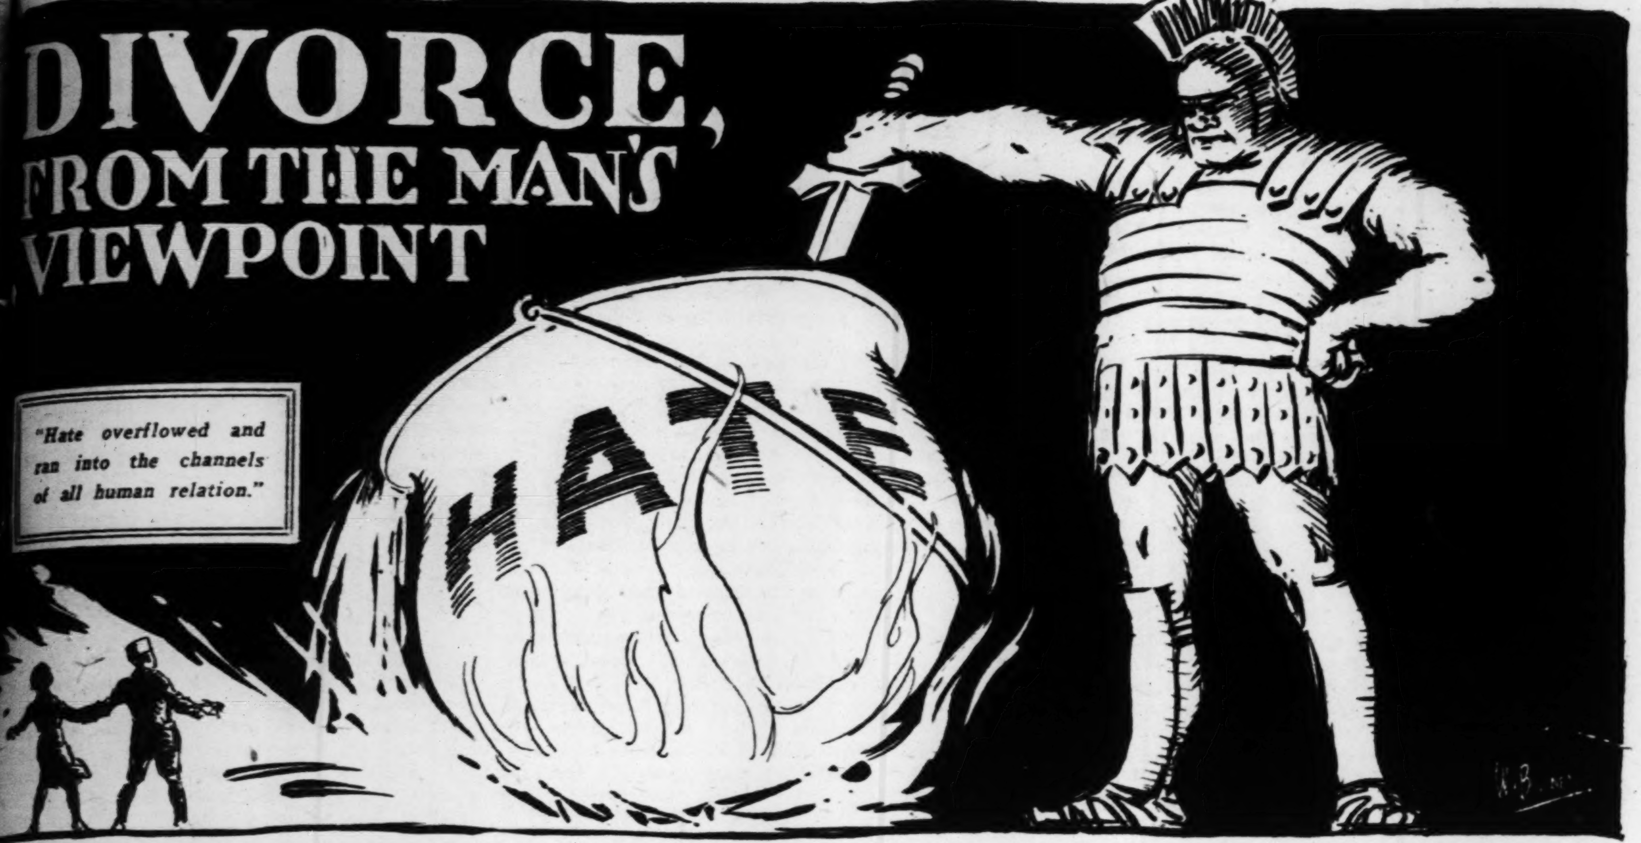
Something is being done toward the alleviation of all this wretchedness. A few counties are improving their almshouses. And, through the co-operation of the State Eleemosynary Board, a small start has been made toward getting feeble-minded children out of the county institutions and into the State colony at Marshall.

But not until some State agency, perhaps the Board of Charities and Corrections, has the power to compel communities either to make existence bearable in their almshouses, or close them up and pay for the care of their paupers at institutions which are properly equipped and operated, will the situation be remedied, in Miller's opinion.

The former inspector, who resigned recently to become an instructor in the high school at Mountain Grove, Mo., has concluded that the best practical solution, eventually, would be the establishment of two or three State colonies at advantageous points, where county wards could be cared for on a plan similar to that under which the insane now are handled.

This plan would contemplate that the State furnish the buildings and equipment, while the counties, at a stipulated sum per month for each individual sent there, would pay the maintenance and operation expenses. More could be done for each ward, at a smaller aggregate expense and under the trained supervision of experts, in this way, Miller thinks. His view in this respect is echoed largely by Homer Talbot, secretary of the Board of Charities and Corrections.

DIVORCE, FROM THE MAN'S VIEWPOINT



"Hate overflowed and ran into the channels of all human relation."
HATE
W.B.

Noted Reno jurist finds that in many cases continuance in the galling bonds of an unhappy marriage would be cruel to the husband—Strange ways of some women since adoption of the Nineteenth Amendment made them politically free—How the war sped up divorce by introducing new problems into the field of domestic relations :: ::

By GEORGE A. BARTLETT,
For Many Years District Judge, Reno, Nevada.

ARTICLE IV.

IN THE discussion so far, perhaps, I have seemed to reverse the Biblical situation—to put all the blame on Adam, that is, and to make Eve a model of injured innocence. There are two sides to the medal in the divorce situation, as in all human affairs. Though the man gives, he equally often gets the worst in the marriage deal. And the man as plaintiff in the divorce action is becoming more and more common.

Let us take, at random, a typical session in the Reno court. The one selected occurred in September, 1921, and involved four cases. In three of them it was the husband who brought suit.

The first of the three was that of a foreigner who said his wife declared she loved "nodder fella"—that she was through with him for good. He said that for some time past she had been spending all her time, and much of his money, in social frivolities; that she refused to do any housework, and that she certainly was not a wife to him in any sense. The note that occurred over and over again, however, was that she no longer loved him, but had given her affections elsewhere.

This naive lack of vanity in divorce court admissions is common enough, but it is always pathetic. It is an individual's confession of failure as a personality; it is a confession of inability to hold another's interest, even though, as is frequently the case, one's own interest is just as strong as ever.

The next case in our typical session illustrates this point even more fully.

This was the case of a countryman who had been married 30 years. He had 10 living children, and one dead. He recounted how his wife declared her predilection for his hired men—plural number. She said she could not resist their advances and did not intend to try. She emphasized at the same time her distaste for him. He told, with an astonishing simplicity, unmingled with any tone of anger or resentment, the names she applied to him and how, five years before, declaring she couldn't bear to look at him any more, she had driven him out.

Asked whether he had attempted to effect a change in her attitude, he replied in the affirmative—then added, still with that amazing unresentful simplicity which it is hard to reproduce:

"She said she'd rather die than live with me."

He was then asked whether he would be willing to live with her again, to which he replied, with his first shading of emphasis:

"I wouldn't live with her. I couldn't." A slight pause, then, with a resumption of the former simplicity:

"She don't want me!"

The last case was that of a young fellow of 26—a clean-cut, decent youth, who testified that his wife was of the same age and that they had a 3-year-old child. He said he entered the navy, when he went into the war, at which time they had been married about a year. After that they had quarreled about the failure of his Government allotment to reach her. He had papers to prove that it was not his fault, but merely the effect of a slip-up in the executive functioning. She refused to believe it, but declared that he was trying to pose as a single man.

Her whole attitude, however, demonstrated that she was grasping at straws in the way of excuses, for she left him shortly after, announcing that she was done with their marriage. Desertion was the ground upon which he brought suit.

Asked about the child, he replied: "Oh, there is no question about the mother's being a fit person to care for it; she is a good girl—her morals are beyond reproach."

I have no "inside information" upon which to estimate how far that young fellow's matrimonial trouble was indirectly traceable to the war. But I want to say right here, however, that I believe many divorces are directly or indirectly the outgrowth of it.

There are no actual figures yet upon which to base conclusions, but observation furnishes some interesting signposts which will no doubt be validated by the findings of the next census.

It is wholly natural that war should speed up divorce. For one thing, the effect of the war was to infuse into the community a general carelessness with regard to human life. Since human lives were to be thrown, like shovelfuls of coal, into the conflagration, human happiness was surely not a thing to be bothered about very much. Nothing was more logical, therefore, than an access of carelessness regarding the other fellow's happiness, and an increased tendency to shirk responsibility with regard to it.

Another effect of the war—or rather concomitant of the war—was the widespread dissemination of hate. For purposes of expediency, hate was created and carefully nurtured against the enemy. Now, for the purposes of expediency, the cultivation of hate may or may not have been necessary; that point has no place in the present discussion. It is the deplorable aftermath that is our concern here.

Hate, once launched, could not be expected to restrain itself within the decreed boundaries. Human emotions do not work in any such careful and well-organized manner. Hate, well started by relentless propaganda, swelled into a torrent, until it overflowed and ran into the channels of all human relation. Human beings, keyed up to hate, found no difficulty in turning that emotion upon those close at hand.

But that is not the only aspect of the war's influence upon divorce. In the all-round emotional acceleration of that troubled period, it was to be expected that affections, deprived by absence of their legitimate object, should fasten themselves upon some other object in proximity.

The men in Europe, far from home and living amidst hardships, found solace in the affections of native girls. The wives who remained at home with superabundant emotions seeking outlet, naturally fastened upon objects not separated by 3000 miles of ocean.

Though in a good many cases these emotional entanglements proved ephemeral, in a good many others they did not. The new affections were found to be stronger than the old; and release from the weaker ties was sought, in order to give permanence to the others. Sometimes, even though the new tie itself was not binding, it was sufficiently potent to loosen the old one.

Then, too, there were the many hasty, hysterical weddings that took place just before the departure of soldiers for overseas. These sowed a crop that is reaping a considerable harvest of divorces.

In the calm light of after experience, many of these "war weddings" were found to have no solid basis for continued companionship.

There is another kind of war divorce that seems to have frequent exemplification. A young fellow in Reno, who looked hardly old enough to be out of his college period, declared that he was "serving time" because he was the victim of a "frame-up." These it appears, were fairly common. A girl would come to the officers of a regiment to make complaint against a soldier. The soldier would thereupon be summoned; and if it could not be denied that the girl had grounds for her accusation, he would be persuaded to marry her, or at least support her.

The next article by Judge Bartlett will be entitled "Divorce and the Stage." It will include Mrs. Leslie Carter's suit and its snappy testimony, Nat Goodwin's "tardiness" in buying drinks and the McKim suit.

"I had only seen my wife two or three time before our wedding," said the young fellow. "I left her five minutes later, and have never seen her since. Lots of soldiers went through the same experience."

An isolated instance of another sort may be worthy of comment—though how far it is typical is hard to say. A man in Reno said that he had been happily married for 11 years. During the two years of his stay in Europe his wife died. When he came home, blue and desolate, he sought consolation in a second, too-hasty marriage. It proved a flat failure. It is impossible to estimate how many persons, weakened in their zest for living by contact with the grim realities of warfare, turned for renewed hope and strength to unions that were ill-considered, and proved to be flat failures. But it offers interesting material for conjecture; and it is well within the psychological probabilities that there should be a good many.

It would not be fair to omit mention of the effects of the emancipation of woman, from the man's point of view—or that of some men, anyway. There probably never was, and never will be, anything in human affairs which hasn't its abuses as well as its uses, no matter how excellent the latter may be. It is true, also, that in any transition period there is certain to be some degree of unbalance. So in the matter of woman's changed status—there are naturally a lot of women who understand it very superficially, and who are ready to take the perquisites and ignore the requisites of the changed condition.

Some women interpret "woman's freedom" as license to do whatever pleases them. They do not realize that "being a person" involves grave responsibilities. Noblesse oblige; the dignity of being people—which, as I have said, is the real gain of the woman movement—entails the obligation of taking a person's part in the world.

A marriage is a partnership; and there are some women who, under the influence of their distorted idea about woman's present-day rights, interpret that to mean that they get all they can and give as little as possible. They do not add money to the family exchequer by outside labor; and they evade their end of the partnership by sketchy and inadequate domesticity.

Men who find themselves tied up in such a partnership are wrong in thinking that they are victims of the "modern-woman" idea.

The true modern woman has a stern sense of equity. She is a sturdy advocate of the 50-50 idea. She values above all things her self-respect, and she knows that it will suffer if her relation is all take and no give.

The emancipation of women means also the freeing of men; the woman who becomes a comrade ceases to be a burden. But liberty in this case, as always, is in danger of being interpreted as license; and when that is done, the man suffers. It is such suffering, in many cases, that is the path by which the husband travels to the divorce court.

Singing to Two Countries in One Night

E. C. Hildreth of Fairfield, Ia., had only one complaint. The midnight concert caused him to consume all of his smoking material. "Station K S D certainly depleted my supply of cigars and cigarettes last night, for my supply ran out at 1 a. m. and you were still going strong," he wrote. "Modulation was perfect and your program came in so strong that it could be heard all over the house. I wish I could thank the various artists who took part in this fine program."

Away up in Souris, Manitoba, Canada, A. R. Ibbotson was so deeply impressed that he wrote: "By the holy samdoodle, what kind of a station have you got? We heard your splendid concert right up to 1:35 a. m., the clearest, loudest and most distinct of any radio we have ever heard. It is in a class by itself—absolutely perfect. I am buying a loud speaker today to add to my outfit and hear more from you."

From Artesia, N. M., came this, written by L. P. Evans: "From the way your signals roared through New Mexico last night at both your regular and special midnight programs they must have been heard in Honolulu. Every state on the western slope, including Arizona, Utah and Nevada must have wired you a report as requested."

H. L. Cousins of Dummer, Saskatchewan, Canada, wired: "Last night at 12:30, standard mountain time, I picked up your station, K S D, and heard your request to let you know by telegram. We heard clearly the singing by Miss Gardner and playing by Miss Day and enjoyed the concert very much. Thank you."

The concert made the time fly for B. F. Phillip of San Antonio, Tex., who wrote: "Your midnight concert came in at my residence in fine shape. Tones on all pieces played were perfect. The modulation was fine and the concert very entertaining and we all felt when you signed off at 1:45 a. m. that the time had flown so swiftly that it was hard to realize it was that hour in the morning."

"This was the first real good music that I have heard on radio," wrote H. H. Robertson of Marlin, Tex.

Stanley W. Cobb of South Portland, Me., wrote: "Miss Day's violin selections were fine; also Miss Milham's solos, "Light" and the aria from the "Blind Girl" song. Mr. Shelton's piano numbers were wonderful."

Joseph Lesmeister of Harvey, N. D., an electrician, sent this: "Permit us to say a few words of appreciation with congratulation for the excellent program broadcast last night, Sept. 12. Please be advised that your program has been of the very best picked up here."

From the steamship Munisia, by way of Mobile, came this letter from Robert M. Watson, the radio operator: "Just to let you know that your concert of last night was heard very clearly and we even heard the music with 'phones on the table. At this time we were 100 miles south of Mobile Bar, which is 40 miles south of Mobile., Ala. Your modulation and the lady announcing were very plain and pleasing to listen to. Five of us were enjoying your program and we stayed up until 2:45 a. m., our time, to get all of it. Will listen for you on our trip down to Cuba, leaving Mobile Sept. 15."

Another tribute to the announcing was this from Fred Unwin, St. Boniface, Manitoba, Canada: "Many thanks for concert of last night. You came in very loud and clear. Modulation very good. Congratulations to Miss Gardner for her fine singing; also Mr. Shelton's playing. They all came in fine."

From the "Farthest North" came this, written by A. G. Royce, Bowsman River, Manitoba, Canada: "I believe my receiving station is at present the farthest north in the Province of Manitoba. I am 250 miles in an air line north of the international boundary. So you can figure how far I am receiving you. While listening on my radio set last evening I was much surprised to get in touch with a very good concert, which I found was being broadcast by K S D. St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and was in time to hear your announcement of a special concert from 11 to 1 o'clock. I got all of your special concert and it was a rare treat and came in excellent, everything being clear and distinct. The soprano solo, 'Good-by," being particularly good. Your program was loud enough to hear plainly with the 'phones lying on the table in front of me."

R. A. McGowan of Fort Collins, Colo., wrote: "Several times I had to cut down the intensity, the sound being too loud for the room. 'The End of a Perfect Day' came in great. A visitor here had the line telephone open and the lady on the other end of the line said it was the most beautiful thing she had ever heard."

In New London, Conn., the concert was heard and appreciated by H. M. Beebe, who wrote: "This morning between 2 and 3 a. m., Eastern daylight time, I listened in on your concert. This is the first time I have picked up your station. The music and announcements came in loud and clear. The singing by Miss Gardner was exceptionally good. 'A Perfect Day' was fine, and also the violin selections."

C. D. Longserre, manager of a telephone company at Bardwell, Tex., heard the concert with delight. "I wish to express my appreciation of your wonderful

PRESCRIPTIONS FOR THE DEAF

SPECIALISTS in ear diseases and deafness may soon prescribe "deaf sets" with the same ease as the oculist prescribes a pair of glasses, says R. L. Wegel of the research laboratories of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the Western Electric Co., New York.

"Many persons, now deaf, can be made to hear intelligently," he declares, "even though their hearing can never be made normal. The ear of the deaf man differs from the normal ear in its ability to react to the range of frequency and intensity of sound, or, if it has an equal receptive range and can actually hear the sound, it can not intelligently understand it.

"The ears of some deaf persons do not react to high frequencies, those of others cut off low frequencies and those of still others react abnormally in certain regions in such a way as to distort the quality of tone.

"An apparatus has been designed which shows the definite mechanical limits of the ear. By this means a curve is plotted which shows for various frequencies the vibration intensities at which sound waves overload the nerves of hearing and begin to become painful. The maximum point of audibility on this curve, beyond which sound cannot be heard by a normal ear, corresponds to a pulsating pressure of about one one-hundredth of a pound, and the smallest which can be heard by a normal ear corresponds to a pulsating pressure of about one-billionth

"With this information it sible to construct deaf sets needs of each individual patient."

New Discovery Gives You Glorious Wavy Hair

Remarkable New Liquid Quickly Gives Every Girl a Wealth of Soft, Glistening, Curly Hair

If your hair is bobbed, Domino Curling Fluid will keep it wavy and in curl, without the least bit of bother.

The youthful coiffure is kept at its best—wavy and fluffy—with just a few drops of this marvelous liquid.

Busy mothers appear ever so much more youthful, when their hair is "well dressed" with no straight wispy strands.

Every child can now have delightfully curly hair, in just the style she wants — without ruining her hair with hot irons.

The theatre and social functions call for more elaborate hair dressing, and for this Domino Curling Fluid is indispensable.

No longer need you envy the girl with beautiful, wavy hair. For beauty experts have at last discovered a new harmless liquid, which gives even the most stubborn hair a wonderfully natural waviness and curliness.

This new liquid makes your hair fall in soft, fluffy waves and silky curls. It adds a wonderful new charm, youthfulness and beauty to your appearance. No fuss—no bother. Simply moisten the hair with a few drops of this wonderful new liquid called Domino Curling Fluid. One application will keep your hair wavy and in curl usually for a week or more. Why ruin your hair with hot irons, or pay big fees to hair dressers? Try this new harmless method and see if your friends aren't amazed at the wonderful improvement in your appearance.

An Amazing Discovery

Domino Curling Fluid is one of the greatest beauty discoveries made in years. It is entirely new—nothing just like it has ever been known or used before.

No matter how unruly or stubborn your hair may be—no matter how obstinately it has withstood your efforts to keep it curly—you will be simply astonished to see how quickly Domino Curling Fluid makes your hair soft, wavy and charming.

All you have to do is follow the simple, easy directions. Domino Curling Fluid is just what you have been waiting for—because it provides a new way to keep the hair wavy and curly, without the bothersome disadvantages of old-fashioned methods.

Special Offer—Send No Money

So that everyone may test this wonderful new discovery we are making a very special introductory offer. You need not send a penny in advance. Simply mail the coupon below and a full-size bottle of Domino Curling Fluid will be sent you by return mail. Although the regular price is $2.50, you may pay the postman the special reduced price of only $1.45 (plus a few cents postage) in full payment.

Furthermore, if you are not more than delighted with the results, you may return the bottle within five days and your money will be instantly refunded. We have backed up this guarantee with a special deposit of $10,000 in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia. Thus, you do not risk a penny.

ONLY $1.45

Send No Money

You have always longed for soft, wavy, curly hair. Here is your opportunity to have it—easily, quickly and surely.

Already Domino Curling Fluid is bringing new beauty and charm to thousands of others—and it will do the same for you. Mail the coupon now—today. Remember, on this special offer you get Domino Curling Fluid at a greatly reduced price. This offer may never appear again—so mail the coupon at once. Domino House, Dept. To free your skin from blemishes

ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes.

He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.

Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through the dust and soot in the air.

To free your skin from blemishes, use this simple treatment:

EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.

Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, creamlike lather.

Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.

Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

GET a cake of Woodbury's today. A 25-cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks.

Beautiful and Durable

"ONCE I was in tears over this room — it made no difference what furniture or hangings I tried. Then I spied this rug in a dealer's window, and see — the problem was solved. I was afraid it was some Oriental that cost all outdoors. Imagine my delight to find it was a 'Whittall' and so must be thoroughly dependable and couldn't be expensive. By the way, Jack and I saw the original in the British Museum last summer."

To women everywhere—

THIS is Twin Compact with both sides open. The center section contains powder on one side and rouge on the other. Notice the large powder compact—five times as large as the rouge. ❡ There is an ample mirror in each cover and each side has its own soft lamb's-wool puff. Center section, the refiller, can be renewed in any of the three odors for 75 cents.

Patented April 4, 1922
Patents Pending

Richard Hudnut presents

the new Twin Compact that his most discriminating customers have made famous

FOR three generations the house of Richard Hudnut has had for its clientele women who have, without exception, demanded the highest quality and the latest mode.

These very women are now making the newest Richard Hudnut product, the Five-to-one Twin Compact, this season's greatest success in toilet accessories.

So Different

They have been quick to recognize that here was not just another powder and rouge compact—with perhaps some slight improvements over those they were familiar with—

But an entirely new and different kind of compact.

A twin compact that contains five times as much powder as rouge—the proportions women actually use.

A compact case that keeps powder and rouge so separated they cannot possibly get mixed. Each has its own separate opening, its own soft puff, and its own ample mirror.

Refillers, too

A case that can be refilled more easily and with greater satisfaction than any other compact case. The refillers really do fit as perfectly as the original compacts.

Serviceable? Very—but also more beautiful than you can imagine. The case itself is a delight just to look at. Like a delicate bit of jewelry.

Success of Season

It is no wonder that the discriminating women who have always found just what they wanted in perfumes and powders at the house of Richard Hudnut should now be making this latest Richard Hudnut product the season's outstanding success.

How thousands are regaining the splendid vigor of health

When a man "slows up"—begins to feel his strength and vigor slipping away—gets run down, nervous, irritable—

One of two things is wrong.

His body is either failing to nourish properly the living cells which compose it, or it is failing to throw off the poisonous waste that gathers in the system.

Check either of these processes, even temporarily, and health is threatened. And yet the bodies of millions are either half-starved or clogged up!

The fresh, living cells of Fleischmann's Yeast contain a natural food—with the very elements which help the body perform these two vital functions.

Like any other plant or vegetable, yeast produces the best results when fresh and "green"—not dried or "killed." Fleischmann's Yeast is the highest grade living yeast—always fresh. It is not a medicine, it is a natural food. Results cannot be expected unless it is eaten regularly.

Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast to correct constipation, skin disorders and to restore appetite and digestion.

"Assured perfect regularity and added 25 lbs. of weight"

A recent letter tells of an unusually bad case of a common ailment—a New Yorker who suffered from chronic constipation. Since he was eleven years old, he had used "everything that could be suggested"—without a cure. Three operations had been necessary. And then three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day for a period of one month not only assured perfect regularity, but by adding 25 lbs. restored him to his normal weight.

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

Eat two or three cakes a day regularly—plain, or spread on crackers, or mixed with water or milk. If you prefer, get six cakes at a time. They will keep in a cool, dry place for two or three days. Begin at once to know what real health means! Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

You Have Often Wished for Just This!

BEING a dainty woman, you have often wished that you might have nightdresses, chemises, bloomers, petticoats, "kick-ins" and negligees, with the beauty and the soft, lovely feel of silk, but with the tubbing and wearing qualities of cotton! Now your wish can be fulfilled!

Lingette

Everybody thinks it's silk

is made of a long fibre-cotton, chosen for wear-resistance. It is woven and finished by several modern "magic" processes that transform it into a fabric of rare loveliness.

Naturally, a fabric so unusual was quickly imitated. Do not trust to appearances—sometimes it is only after tubbing and wearing that you can detect the false from the true!

To protect yourself, then, you will wish to make sure that "Lingette" is on the selvage of every yard; in the label of every ready-to-wear garment.

We'll gladly send you the names of stores near you that sell Lingette. Just address:

The two kinds of cream your skin needs—what each is for

To give your skin a special freshness and really hold the powder—

a certain kind of cream

Something to make the skin look its best at a moment's notice. Every woman wants to know about it.

Something that will actually make your skin feel and look softer and smoother the moment you apply it.

A cream to do this must be one that your skin will absorb instantly. It must be delicate and made of soothing ingredients yet not contain a drop of oil.

This is Pond's Vanishing Cream—the cream to use whenever you want to look your best at a moment's notice.

How to make the powder stay on

If you want face powder to go on evenly and stay on don't put it directly on your face. Powder put directly on the skin seldom goes on evenly and it cannot stay on long. Bits of it catch on little rough places and soon fleck off.

Always smooth Pond's Vanishing Cream on your face before you powder. It gives your skin a clear transparent tone. The powder goes on evenly and clings for hours to the smooth velvety surface the cream gives your skin.

And how to protect your skin

The skin is in constant need of protection. Wind whips the natural moisture out of an unprotected skin, sun burns it, cold chaps it. Any of these three will make it dry and rough. To protect your skin, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream before you go out. This cream, which is absorbed instantly and completely, holds the natural moisture in the skin and acts as an invisible shield against the drying effect of wind, cold and sun.

Use Pond's Vanishing Cream every day before you go out. Use it whenever your skin needs instant freshening and always before you powder. It is indispensable for daytime and evening use.

For cleansing—a cream with just enough oil to remove every bit of dirt from the pores and not overload them

Only a cream that your skin can absorb will give it that clear fresh look in an instant

A totally different cream for a thorough cleansing

Your skin must be kept really clean or it becomes dull looking.

Ordinary washing cannot reach the dust and fine particles of dirt that every day bore deep into the pores of your skin.

For thorough cleansing you need a cream with an oil base. Made with just the right amount of oil, Pond's Cold Cream works into your pores, loosens every bit of dirt, and comes out again bringing the dirt with it.

Use it every night before retiring and whenever you come in from a dusty trip. Pat it on with your finger tips. You will delight in its use, as it is very soft and light. After you have let it stay a minute wipe it off with a soft cloth. The grime on the cloth will convince you how thorough a cleansing the cream gives.

Keeps the skin supple

This delicate oil cream keeps your skin supple and elastic. Little lines first appear when the skin begins to lose its suppleness.

To avoid this, you must give your skin proper attention every night. Smooth Pond's Cold Cream into it. The nightly use of this delicate oil cream will help to keep your skin in the supple condition that resists the coming of lines.

Use both creams every day

Use both these creams every day, each for its own purposes, and you will keep your skin fresh and lovely.

Many women have really never known the correct use of creams. They use one cream for all purposes, or a good cream for the wrong purpose, and do not get all the benefit they should.

Go to any drug or department store anywhere and buy a tube or jar of each of these two creams that every normal skin needs. Neither contains anything that can clog the pores or promote the growth of hair. The Pond's Extract Co., New York.
